Allies Launch the Big One

By ROBERT D. OHMAN

SAIGON (AP) — At least 50,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops are sweeping between Saigon and the Cambodian border in the biggest operation of the Vietnam war, the U.S. Command announced today.

Elements of six divisions and two special task forces moved out Monday in an ambitious maneuver designed to regain the initiative seized by the Viet Cong with their countrywide assault on Jan. 30.

215 Reds Killed

The allied force has killed 215 enemy soldiers, seized 22 suspects and uncovered three huge arms caches, spokesmen said.

U.S. losses were reported as 11 killed and 94 wounded, while the Vietnamese Command said its troops had suffered light casualties.

The vast operation—named Quyet Thang, or Resolved to Win—is anchored in Saigon and extends in a semicircle through five provinces north, west and south of the capital.

Fifty allied battalions have been committed plus support troops and national police units.

It is the first significant operation uncorked by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the commander of U.S. forces in South Vietnam, since Viet Cong forces invaded Saigon Jan. 31 and turned the city into a battlefield.

While the first goal of the operation is to destroy enemy units that continued harassing attacks around Saigon, a second aim is to restore a sense of security and confidence among the shaken civilian population, officials said.

A volunteer army of South Vietnamese marching to the north to liberate North Vietnam from its Communist masters? It's considered possible but not many Vietnamese or American officials are taking it seriously. Story Page 24.

For the first time in the war, sections of Saigon were included in the battle plan of an allied offensive, search-and-destroy operation. National police and units of the 5th Vietnamese Ranger Group were assigned objectives in western Saigon and Cholon, the Chinese quarter of the capital.

The force for the operation includes units of the U.S. 1st, 9th and 25th Infantry divisions, the South Vietnamese 5th and 25th Infantry divisions, task forces of Vietnamese paratroopers and marines, the Vietnamese Ranger group, and national police units.

Generally, the various units kicked off the coordinated action from areas to which they have been assigned for the past year.

Uncover VC Caches

A U.S. spokesman said soldiers of the U.S. 1st Division killed 28 enemy soldiers in two engagements Thursday near Ben Cat, 25 miles north of Saigon. Three American infantrymen were wounded.

Viet Cong caches containing tons of ammunition and weapons were discovered only 10, 12 and 24 miles northwest of Saigon.

Hit Haiphong Targets

Hike Interest to Thwart Frenzied Gold Buying

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Battling the frenzied wave of gold buying in Europe, the government triggered higher interest rates for American borrowers today and convoked an emergency meeting of representatives of gold pool nations.

In a related move, the London gold market—accepting a U.S. suggestion—did not open today. There was no immediate word on when trading would resume.

U.S. officials sought to stem the gold buying spree, which threatens the very existence of the international money system, in this series of rapid-fire developments late Thursday:

Raise Discount Rate

—The Federal Reserve Board raised its discount rate from 4.5 per cent to 5 per cent, effective today, in a move designed to fight inflation and restore confidence in the dollar overseas.

—The Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve scheduled a meeting for Saturday in Washington among the seven nations which feed gold to the London market in an attempt to maintain the price at $35 an ounce.

—The United States reasserted its determination to buy and sell at $35 an ounce.

—The Senate backed up this commitment by completing congressional action, 39 to 37, on a bill to remove the 25 per cent gold backing for paper money, thus freeing the nation's entire gold stock of $11.4 billion to back the dollar overseas.

In London, Queen Elizabeth proclaimed a special bank holiday for today. The London stock market was closed and Canada raised its discount rate from 7 per cent to 7.5 per cent effective today.

Meanwhile, the price of gold reached $44.36 an ounce on the Paris market today, more than $9 above the $35 price guaranteed by the United States. Wild speculation in Hong Kong sent the price to $40.47 while the London gold market suspended operations under government decree.

France refused to go along with other major European gold dealing nations in action to dampen buying. Normally, the Bank of France intervenes to keep the price just above the $35 dollar figure. But today, because the market did not receive fresh supplies from the seven-nation gold pool in London, the Paris price was allowed to find its own level in accordance with local supply and demand.

However, the Bank of France played a major role. It allowed the price for one kilogram—2.2 pounds—to rise to an unprecedented 7,000 francs or $1,400 from the outset of dealing in a bid to hold down demand.

Today's over-all volume was $43.86 million compared with $52.6 million Thursday. Thirty tons of fine gold, excluding coins, changed hands, compared with 45 tons Thursday.

For the United States, the discount rate is now at its highest level since the days which preceded the 1929 stock market crash when the rate hit 6 per cent. It reached its highest level —7 per cent—in 1920-21.

This is the charge commercial banks must pay for money they borrow from the Federal Reserve System. All other interest rates are pegged upward from it.

Will Filter Down

The upward move will mean higher interest rates in the economy generally and ultimately will filter through to loans on mortgages, automobiles and other consumer goods.

In suggesting the closing of the London market, the focal point of the buying stampede, the Treasury Department said it had become disorganized and "didn't permit business to be handled in orderly fashion."

The Senate has sent President Johnson a bill as new ammunition in the international financial crisis. This development and a look at some of the common questions people are asking about the gold situation may be found on Page 24.

The United States contributes 59 per cent of the gold sold on the London market as part of a seven-nation pool.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board said they invited the central bank governors of the gold pool countries to consult Saturday on "coordinated measures to ensure orderly conditions in the exchange markets and to support the present pattern of exchange rates based on the fixed price of $35 per ounce of gold."

In addition to the United States other gold pool members are Belgium, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom. Among them they have more than $24 billion in gold.

How long the London gold market will stay closed presumably will be worked out at the Saturday meeting.

"It's a bona fide crisis," World Bank president George Woods said of the current picture.

Woods replied "Of course it is" when asked at a White House dinner if he thought the dollar was in danger.

The speculative gold buying stemmed from suspicion of paper money in the wake of the British devaluation of the pound last Nov. 18, a feeling the programs proposed by the United States to end its dollar drain may not succeed and a belief the price of gold might rise.

U.S. officials have called this belief absurd.

The United States contributed $771.2 million in gold to the London market during the last quarter of 1967, which represented its share of gold sales in the first two buying sprees which followed devaluation.

Another Switch

Earlier this week, the Treasury switched another $450 million in gold from the money stock to a special fund at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York where actual sales to foreign governments are made.

Much of this is expected to go to the gold pool.

The increase in the Federal Reserve discount rate is the second since the November devaluation of the pound. The rate moved from 4 to 4.5 per cent on Nov. 20 to help prevent an outflow of dollars to higher interest rates in Europe.

When Britain devalued, she raised her discount rate to 8 per cent, where it now stands.

One source said the U.S. increase is only a partial measure. He said the board still feels adoption of the 10 per cent tax surcharge proposed by President Johnson is imperative.

An increase in the discount rate in December 1965 coupled with other tightening techniques raised interest rates to their highest levels in 40 years and dried up the supply of mortgage money.

Kennedy Says He Can't Support Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy says he could not support President Johnson for renomination, the New York Times reported today.

A principal adviser to the New York senator said it was likely Kennedy would enter the Oregon and California primaries, according to the story by Tom Wicker, Times' Washington bureau chief.

"Obviously, I can't support the President," Wicker quoted Kennedy as saying in an interview. The senator said he would decide within a few days whether to become an active presidential candidate himself.

"The conversation with Mr. Kennedy left no doubt he had made a personal decision to enter in some fashion the intraparty struggle over the war in Vietnam and other issues. This was the context in which he said, 'Obviously, I can't support the President.'"

Would Cooperate

Other highlights of the interview:

Kennedy suggested he would like to cooperate with Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, who garnered a stunning 42 per cent of the vote in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary as against Johnson's 48 per cent.

Asked if he had a better chance than McCarthy to win the nomination, Kennedy replied he "wouldn't be considering doing it" if he didn't think he "had something to contribute."

The Times also reported that in a lengthy New York meeting of Kennedy and his close advisers, no conclusion was reached as to his course of action.

Meanwhile, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, convinced Sen. Robert F. Kennedy plans to join the Democratic presidential race soon, is moving to head off the New Yorker in the remaining preference primaries.

"I think he will announce before Monday," McCarthy told reporters Thursday, "unless the reaction is bad" to Kennedy's statement he is reassessing whether to challenge President Johnson.

McCarthy aides said the timing of his Thursday announcement that he will enter primaries in Indiana May 7 and South Dakota June 4 was prompted by Kennedy's statement and a desire to get into these states ahead of any possible Kennedy candidacy.

"It certainly has that effect," McCarthy told a reporter.

Expects Challenge

The Minnesotan said he expected Kennedy to challenge him in Nebraska May 14, Oregon May 28 and California June 4.

Kennedy was faced with having to decide today about the Nebraska contest in order to meet the filing deadline.

McCarthy is due to undergo a test of his strength compared with Kennedy's this weekend at a meeting of the 30,000-member antiwar California Democratic Council.

The council spawned the McCarthy movement in California but there is an undercurrent of Kennedy sentiment within the membership. The group is expected to endorse McCarthy overwhelmingly at the close of the convention Saturday.

RESNICK: Bobby Splits Dem Party

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

NEW YORK — Declaring that he would not support Sen. Robert F. Kennedy for president, Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick said here this morning he planned to mobilize President Johnson's supporters in New York State.

The Ellenville Democrat also charged State Democratic Chairman John J. Burns with "demeaning the office of senator by peddling it all over the state like a suit of second hand clothes" and he promised that he would personally "do everything I can to see that Chairman Burns resigns.

Charging that Kennedy was attempting to "drive a wedge" in the national and state Democratic organizations, Resnick, said he admired Sen. Eugene McCarthy's "guts" to fight in the New Hampshire primary.

Resnick said that the New Hampshire primary results were "blown completely out of proportion," but he added, that he would have to "seriously appraise" supporting Eugene McCarthy if the Minnesota senator captured the presidential nomination.

Under questioning however, Resnick claimed that he could not support McCarthy if the Minnesota senator did not support Johnson on the Vietnam War issue.

"Sen Kennedy has done everything possible to insure a Republican in the White House in November," Resnick concluded.

Referring to the Kennedy-Burns axis, Resnick said they are now reported to be twisting the arm of Manhattan Borough president Percy Sutton. This is the latest chapter of their desperate effort to find a Democratic alternative for the U. S. Senate to oppose me, he said.

"I once said that Burns was a Kennedy messenger boy, but I was wrong, he is a "Trojan Horse," helping to destroy the Democratic party."

"Sen. Kennedy has hardly been a unifying influence in the Democratic party," he said predicting that if Kennedy succeeds in splitting the Democratic party, "This will herald the end of the Democratic party, in the nation.

In a letter to state Democratic committeemen, he said, "A principal test of party responsibility is adherence to party principles and platform. On this I yield to no man."

"My voting record in Congress has been one of consistent support of everything our party has stood for, for every liberal purpose and program, for every measure designed to put the party's programs and principles on the statute book as the law of the land.

"This is the obligation of a Democratic representative and I have never ignored it," Resnick declared.

Resnick said that Kennedy, in order to win delegates in New York State, had to "eliminate those who oppose him, particularly supporters of President Johnson," He further added that Kennedy's charge that he would prefer a candidate that would unify the party was "sheer hypocrisy."

MARIJUANA: Why Are the Teeners Involved?

By LYNN MULVANEY

Fifth of 6 Articles

Not all marijuana is sold to teenagers. Some Kingston High School students have admitted giving it away to friends.

It is known that regular student users are likely to be proselytizers. They are for the most part eager to get other students to sample marijuana or drugs. The reason?—They seem to feel they are performing a beneficial service, according to School Management magazine.

"This proselytizing attitude has led some authorities to believe that when youngsters act as suppliers they do so, not for the sake of personal profit, but simply to do a good deed for friends."

Authorities feel however that although this may be true in some instances, "there is plenty of evidence that not all students are above turning a fast buck."

That goes for sellers of fraudulent marijuana and dope too.

One of the 15- and 16-year-old Saugerties youths, reported by police to have sold plaster of paris-filled medicine capsules as barbituates, told authorities that he was just "trying to be a big shot."

Many Reasons

As with any controversial and widespread problem, the reasons given for its emergence into society are wide, varied, myriad, depending upon who is voicing them.

It has been suggested that the genesis is not environmental, that it is the lack of living . . . the lack of love.

This may apply in a great many cases, especially with the weak for whom marijuana merely becomes a stepping stone to hard narcotics.

But what of the many boys and girls who experiment once, twice or a number of times and who do so because they honestly don't believe it is wrong criminally or morally?—who don't scare when told of medical dangers or reports of arrests. They can be and many are the sons and daughters of interested parents, living in good homes.

"Even Jewish youngsters are mixed up in these problems today—a thing that was unheard of a generation ago," a New Rochelle narcotics squad member points out.

Also in New York City, Chinese parents, too, who are renowned for the upbringing of their offspring, are finding drug use creeping into their teenage population.

A Social Ill

In the past marijuana belonged chiefly to the poorer, uneducated classes and yet today the ex-addicts and the ghettos do not defend it, nor do other countries. They merely feel it is just a social ill.

Why then does it now scan all social classes and religious, racial and ethnic groups?

Why are kids involved?

Dr. Sidney Cohen, speaking at a recent narcotics convention at Saratoga Springs, offers the following possibilities exuded by students:

- "For nothing but a high.
- "For a new experience.
- "Because the old man said don't!
- "Because they listen to peer persuaders.
- "Because boy friends 'turn on' girl friends and vice versa."

One Ulster County 15-year-old pot user who was rebellious at home, at school and about religion, told BCI men at Lake Katrine, that he thought of himself as an atheist, he advocated greater freedom for the individual and said he thought pot should be legalized.

That pot is prevalent among all classes locally can be borne out easily through interviews with police agencies and the youngsters themselves. For instance:

A city boy and a good student said he became involved with marijuana because he felt he was under too much pressure from studying, from choosing and trying to get into the right college. He said he was worried about Vietnam, about the generation gap so, he concluded, "I thought I'd mess around with drugs."

Some of the poolroom crowd is involved too. State Police records show that two arrests for sale of marijuana took place in a New Paltz poolroom. One involved a 19-year-old, the other was 20. One sold the pot to another student, the other unknowingly made his sale to an undercover agent.

Near Police Barracks

In the Town of Ulster recently a 20-year-old from New York City was arrested on Route 9W right in front of the Lake Katrine Police Barracks. He was charged with having given marijuana to some people at a Saugerties restaurant.

Two boys, one 19 years of age, were arrested during the past year on the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge and charged with possession of marijuana. One was a student at Bard, the other at Ulster County Community College.

In recent weeks, the nephew of a New Paltz professor was picked up on the Thruway and found to be in possession of heroin, opium and marijuana.

One 18-year-old New Paltz college student was arrested for selling marijuana by the "pounds" to anyone who had the money to buy it. A kilo of marijuana (2.2 pounds) sells for $180. From it $3,000 worth of hand rolled cigarettes may emerge. A pound of marijuana produces between 1,800 and 2,000 joints.

Arrested at a Plattekill summer resort last August were three men, one still in his teens. Their employer was the one to tip off police after he smelled marijuana.

Senior Investigator Charles Teelon of the BCI says marijuana is where the musicians are and the musicians are where the resorts are, making the county's southwest section near Sullivan County most vulnerable from that standpoint.

Should Ask Question

Several ex-addicts, speaking recently at Dutchess Community College, one involved with narcotics for 14 years, suggested that those who use drugs should ask themselves this question:

"What is wrong with me? (not the school, not the parents, not the world) What am I doing? Why am I involved with my reality? What are my HANGUPS?

TOMORROW, the Kingston Freeman will conclude its series of six articles on teenage use of marijuana in Ulster County with views of school authorities and police agencies on corrective remedies and some new thoughts of educating the young on the subject of emotions.

Hike Interest to Thwart Frenzied Gold Buying

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Battling the frenzied wave of gold buying in Europe, the government triggered higher interest rates for American borrowers today and convoked an emergency meeting of representatives of gold pool nations.

In a related move, the London gold market—accepting a U.S. suggestion—did not open today. There was no immediate word on when trading would resume.

U.S. officials sought to stem the gold buying spree, which threatens the very existence of the international money system, in this series of rapid-fire developments late Thursday:

Raise Discount Rate

—The Federal Reserve Board raised its discount rate from 4.5 per cent to 5 per cent, effective today, in a move designed to fight inflation and restore confidence in the dollar overseas.

—The Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve scheduled a meeting for Saturday in Washington among the seven nations which feed gold to the London market in an attempt to maintain the price at $35 an ounce.

—The United States reasserted its determination to buy and sell at $35 an ounce.

—The Senate backed up this commitment by completing congressional action, 39 to 37, on a bill to remove the 25 per cent gold backing for paper money, thus freeing the nation's entire gold stock of $11.4 billion to back the dollar overseas.

In London, Queen Elizabeth proclaimed a special bank holiday for today. The London stock market was closed and Canada raised its discount rate from 7 per cent to 7.5 per cent effective today.

Meanwhile, the price of gold reached $44.36 an ounce on the Paris market today, more than $9 above the $35 price guaranteed by the United States. Wild speculation in Hong Kong sent the price to $40.47 while the London gold market suspended operations under government decree.

France refused to go along with other major European gold dealing nations in action to dampen buying. Normally, the Bank of France intervenes to keep the price just above the $35 dollar figure. But today, because the market did not receive fresh supplies from the seven-nation gold pool in London, the Paris price was allowed to find its own level in accordance with local supply and demand.

However, the Bank of France played a major role. It allowed the price for one kilogram—2.2 pounds—to rise to an unprecedented 7,000 francs or $1,400 from the outset of dealing in a bid to hold down demand.

Today's over-all volume was $43.86 million compared with $52.6 million Thursday. Thirty tons of fine gold, excluding coins, changed hands, compared with 45 tons Thursday.

For the United States, the discount rate is now at its highest level since the days which preceded the 1929 stock market crash when the rate hit 6 per cent. It reached its highest level —7 per cent—in 1920-21.

This is the charge commercial banks must pay for money they borrow from the Federal Reserve System. All other interest rates are pegged upward from it.

Will Filter Down

The upward move will mean higher interest rates in the economy generally and ultimately will filter through to loans on mortgages, automobiles and other consumer goods.

In suggesting the closing of the London market, the focal point of the buying stampede, the Treasury Department said it had become disorganized and "didn't permit business to be handled in orderly fashion."

The Senate has sent President Johnson a bill as new ammunition in the international financial crisis. This development and a look at some of the common questions people are asking about the gold situation may be found on Page 24.

The United States contributes 59 per cent of the gold sold on the London market as part of a seven-nation pool.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board said they invited the central bank governors of the gold pool countries to consult Saturday on "coordinated measures to ensure orderly conditions in the exchange markets and to support the present pattern of exchange rates based on the fixed price of $35 per ounce of gold."

In addition to the United States other gold pool members are Belgium, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom. Among them they have more than $24 billion in gold.

How long the London gold market will stay closed presumably will be worked out at the Saturday meeting.

"It's a bona fide crisis," World Bank president George Woods said of the current picture.

Woods replied "Of course it is" when asked at a White House dinner if he thought the dollar was in danger.

The speculative gold buying stemmed from suspicion of paper money in the wake of the British devaluation of the pound last Nov. 18, a feeling the programs proposed by the United States to end its dollar drain may not succeed and a belief the price of gold might rise.

U.S. officials have called this belief absurd.

The United States contributed $771.2 million in gold to the London market during the last quarter of 1967, which represented its share of gold sales in the first two buying sprees which followed devaluation.

Another Switch

Earlier this week, the Treasury switched another $450 million in gold from the money stock to a special fund at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York where actual sales to foreign governments are made.

Much of this is expected to go to the gold pool.

The increase in the Federal Reserve discount rate is the second since the November devaluation of the pound. The rate moved from 4 to 4.5 per cent on Nov. 20 to help prevent an outflow of dollars to higher interest rates in Europe.

When Britain devalued, she raised her discount rate to 8 per cent, where it now stands.

One source said the U.S. increase is only a partial measure. He said the board still feels adoption of the 10 per cent tax surcharge proposed by President Johnson is imperative.

An increase in the discount rate in December 1965 coupled with other tightening techniques raised interest rates to their highest levels in 40 years and dried up the supply of mortgage money.

Kennedy Says He Can't Support Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy says he could not support President Johnson for renomination, the New York Times reported today.

A principal adviser to the New York senator said it was likely Kennedy would enter the Oregon and California primaries, according to the story by Tom Wicker, Times' Washington bureau chief.

"Obviously, I can't support the President," Wicker quoted Kennedy as saying in an interview. The senator said he would decide within a few days whether to become an active presidential candidate himself.

The Times account continued: "The conversation with Mr. Kennedy left no doubt he had made a personal decision to enter in some fashion the intraparty struggle over the war in Vietnam and other issues. This was the context in which he said, 'Obviously, I can't support the President.'"

Would Cooperate

Other highlights of the interview:

Kennedy suggested he would like to cooperate with Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, who garnered a stunning 42 per cent of the vote in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary as against Johnson's 48 per cent.

Asked if he had a better chance than McCarthy to win the nomination, Kennedy replied he "wouldn't be considering doing it" if he didn't think he "had something to contribute."

The Times also reported that in a lengthy New York meeting of Kennedy and his close advisers, no conclusion was reached as to his course of action.

Meanwhile, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, convinced Sen. Robert F. Kennedy plans to join the Democratic presidential race soon, is moving to head off the New Yorker in the remaining preference primaries.

"I think he will announce before Monday," McCarthy told reporters Thursday, "unless the reaction is bad" to Kennedy's statement he is reassessing whether to challenge President Johnson.

McCarthy aides said the timing of his Thursday announcement that he will enter primaries in Indiana May 7 and South Dakota June 4 was prompted by Kennedy's statement and a desire to get into these states ahead of any possible Kennedy candidacy.

"It certainly has that effect," McCarthy told a reporter.

Expects Challenge

The Minnesotan said he expected Kennedy to challenge him in Nebraska May 14, Oregon May 28 and California June 4.

Kennedy was faced with having to decide today about the Nebraska contest in order to meet the filing deadline.

McCarthy is due to undergo a test of his strength compared with Kennedy's this weekend at a meeting of the 30,000-member antiwar California Democratic Council.

The council spawned the McCarthy movement in California but there is an undercurrent of Kennedy sentiment within the membership. The group is expected to endorse McCarthy overwhelmingly at the close of the convention Saturday.

RESNICK: Bobby Splits Dem Party

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

NEW YORK — Declaring that he would not support Sen. Robert F. Kennedy for president, Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick said here this morning he planned to mobilize President Johnson's supporters in New York State.

The Ellenville Democrat also charged State Democratic Chairman John J. Burns with "demeaning the office of senator by peddling it all over the state like a suit of second hand clothes" and he promised that he would personally "do everything I can to see that Chairman Burns resigns.

Charging that Kennedy was attempting to "drive a wedge" in the national and state Democratic organizations, Resnick, said he admired Sen. Eugene McCarthy's "guts" to fight in the New Hampshire primary.

Resnick said that the New Hampshire primary results were "blown completely out of proportion," but he added, that he would have to "seriously appraise" supporting Eugene McCarthy if the Minnesota senator captured the presidential nomination.

Under questioning however, Resnick claimed that he could not support McCarthy if the Minnesota senator did not support Johnson on the Vietnam War issue.

"Sen Kennedy has done everything possible to insure a Republican in the White House in November," Resnick concluded.

Referring to the Kennedy-Burns axis, Resnick said they are now reported to be twisting the arm of Manhattan Borough president Percy Sutton. This is the latest chapter of their desperate effort to find a Democratic alternative for the U. S. Senate to oppose me, he said.

"I once said that Burns was a Kennedy messenger boy, but I was wrong, he is a "Trojan Horse," helping to destroy the Democratic party."

"Sen. Kennedy has hardly been a unifying influence in the Democratic party," he said predicting that if Kennedy succeeds in splitting the Democratic party, "This will herald the end of the Democratic party, in the nation.

In a letter to state Democratic committeemen, he said, "A principal test of party responsibility is adherence to party principles and platform. On this I yield to no man."

"My voting record in Congress has been one of consistent support of everything our party has stood for, for every liberal purpose and program, for every measure designed to put the party's programs and principles on the statute book as the law of the land.

"This is the obligation of a Democratic representative and I have never ignored it," Resnick declared.

Resnick said that Kennedy, in order to win delegates in New York State, had to "eliminate those who oppose him, particularly supporters of President Johnson." He further added that Kennedy's charge that he would prefer a candidate that would unify the party was "sheer hypocrisy."

MARIJUANA: Why Are the Teeners Involved?

By LYNN MULVANEY

Fifth of 6 Articles

Not all marijuana is sold to teenagers. Some Kingston High School students have admitted giving it away to friends.

It is known that regular student users are likely to be proselytizers. They are for the most part eager to get other students to sample marijuana or drugs. The reason?—They seem to feel they are performing a beneficial service, according to School Management magazine.

"This proselytizing attitude has led some authorities to believe that when youngsters act as suppliers they do so, not for the sake of personal profit, but simply to do a good deed for friends."

Authorities feel however that although this may be true in some instances, "there is plenty of evidence that not all students are above turning a fast buck."

That goes for sellers of fraudulent marijuana and dope too.

One of the 15- and 16-year-old Saugerties youths, reported by police to have sold plaster of paris-filled medicine capsules as barbituates, told authorities that he was just "trying to be a big shot."

Many Reasons

As with any controversial and widespread problem, the reasons given for its emergence into society are wide, varied, myriad, depending upon who is voicing them.

It has been suggested that the genesis is not environmental, that it is the lack of living . . . the lack of love.

This may apply in a great many cases, especially with the weak for whom marijuana merely becomes a stepping stone to hard narcotics.

But what of the many boys and girls who experiment once, twice or a number of times and who do so because they honestly don't believe it is wrong criminally or morally?—who don't scare when told of medical dangers or reports of arrests. They can be and many are the sons and daughters of interested parents, living in good homes.

"Even Jewish youngsters are mixed up in these problems today—a thing that was unheard of a generation ago," a New Rochelle narcotics squad member points out.

Also in New York City, Chinese parents, too, who are renowned for the upbringing of their offspring, are finding drug use creeping into their teenage population.

A Social Ill

In the past marijuana belonged chiefly to the poorer, uneducated classes and yet today the ex-addicts and the ghettos do not defend it, nor do other countries. They merely feel it is just a social ill.

Why then does it now scan all social classes and religious, racial and ethnic groups?

Why are kids involved?

Dr. Sidney Cohen, speaking at a recent narcotics convention at Saratoga Springs, offers the following possibilities exuded by students:

- "For nothing but a high.
- "For a new experience.
- "Because the old man said don't!
- "Because they listen to peer persuaders.
- "Because boy friends 'turn on' girl friends and vice versa."

One Ulster County 15-year-old pot user who was rebellious at home, at school and about religion, told BCI men at Lake Katrine, that he thought of himself as an atheist, he advocated greater freedom for the individual and said he thought pot should be legalized.

That pot is prevalent among all classes locally can be borne out easily through interviews with police agencies and the youngsters themselves. For instance:

A city boy and a good student said he became involved with marijuana because he felt he was under too much pressure from studying, from choosing and trying to get into the right college. He said he was worried about Vietnam, about the generation gap so, he concluded, "I thought I'd mess around with drugs."

Some of the poolroom crowd is involved too. State Police records show that two arrests for sale of marijuana took place in a New Paltz poolroom. One involved a 19-year-old, the other was 20. One sold the pot to another student, the other unknowingly made his sale to an undercover agent.

Near Police Barracks

In the Town of Ulster recently a 20-year-old from New York City was arrested on Route 9W right in front of the Lake Katrine Police Barracks. He was charged with having given marijuana to some people at a Saugerties restaurant.

Two boys, one 19 years of age, were arrested during the past year on the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge and charged with possession of marijuana. One was a student at Bard, the other at Ulster County Community College.

In recent weeks, the nephew of a New Paltz professor was picked up on the Thruway and found to be in possession of heroin, opium and marijuana.

One 18-year-old New Paltz college student was arrested for selling marijuana by the "pounds" to anyone who had the money to buy it. A kilo of marijuana (2.2 pounds) sells for $180. From it $3,000 worth of hand rolled cigarettes may emerge. A pound of marijuana produces between 1,800 and 2,000 joints.

Arrested at a Plattekill summer resort last August were three men, one still in his teens. Their employer was the one to tip off police after he smelled marijuana.

Senior Investigator Charles Teelon of the BCI says marijuana is where the musicians are and the musicians are where the resorts are, making the county's southwest section near Sullivan County most vulnerable from that standpoint.

Should Ask Question

Several ex-addicts, speaking recently at Dutchess Community College, one involved with narcotics for 14 years, suggested that those who use drugs should ask themselves this question:

"What is wrong with me? (not the school, not the parents, not the world) What am I doing? Why am I involved with my reality? What are my HANGUPS?

TOMORROW, the Kingston Freeman will conclude its series of six articles on teenage use of marijuana in Ulster County with views of school authorities and police agencies on corrective remedies and some new thoughts of educating the young on the subject of emotions.

Denning and Lloyd Join Savago Column

PETER J. SAVAGO

County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago of New Paltz received commitments from two more townships— Denning and Lloyd—in his bid for the GOP nomination for the Assembly seat held by Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock.

Town of Lloyd Repblican Committee announced this week that they will support Savago. However the commitment was not unanimous but Savago has been assured of nine more delegate votes.

The Lloyd Committee's first choice Legislator Joseph Martorana of Plattekill withdrew his name and these votes went to the New Paltz legislator.

Other Endorsements

The committee also endorsed County Investigator Thomas Mayone of Saugerties in his bid for sheriff nomination; Hamilton Fish for Congress, and Henry S. Hartley of Saugerties for reelection as coroner.

Savago said today that he was elated at commitments of the Lloyd delegates. He also noted other good news, a commitment of four votes from the Town of Denning GOP Committee.

Savago also has commitments from New Paltz, Shawangunk and Gardiner.

He and Attorney H. Clark Bell are the only two of the announced candidates who have received town commitments. Bell received the eight delegate votes of Marbletown GOP earlier this week and now has 48 committed delegate votes to bring the county convention on March 25.

Has 41 Votes

Legislator Savago with his new backing now has an unofficial count of 41.

Other announced candidates are Attorney William D. Brinnier of Saugerties and insurance man Lawrence A. Quilty of Kingston. It is assumed that Brinnier will hold a "favorite son" vote of the Saugerties delegation and there is a scramble going on for second ballot delegates votes.

A majority delegate vote of about 120 will be needed for nomination. The exact number is not known pending finalization of Kingston reapportionment.

Coffeehouse Venture Near

By JEAN F. DOLAN

And away we go—A coffeehouse for Kingston teenagers appears to be off and running.

Interested adults and teenagers attended a second formation meeting last night at Holy Cross Episcopal Church parish hall and appointed a steering committee headed by Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn and Peter O. Allen as co-chairman.

Plans were made for a benefit show sometime in mid-May to help raise funds for the venture.

Proposal for the establishment of a coffeehouse in Kingston was put forth last month by Thomas Phillips, a Bard College student. He sought the cooperation of church and community organizations in establishing the teen entertainment center which would feature name entertainers from the big city coffee house circuit.

A tentative budget was presented last night along with reports of a student survey and potential sites.

Estimated financing for opening and three months of operation was set at $7,804. The youth group of Temple Emanuel offered to stage a benefit show with possible name entertainers to help raise funds.

Target date for this first event is May.

The youth group has enthusiastically supported the proposal from the beginning and undertook the survey of high school and college students to ascertain the young desires. Survey results indicated that both school groups were overwhelmingly in favor of a coffeehouse here.

Fifteen interested adults and six teenagers were on hand for last night's meeting representing a cross section of the community.

Steering Committee

Appointed to the steering committee were the Rev. David L. Bronson of Holy Cross Church; Rabbi H. Z. Schectman of Congregation Ahavath Israel, the Rev. William A. Studwell of Clinton Avenue Methodist Church and president of the Kingston Area Council of Churches; Andrew Murphy III of the Kingston Recreation Department; Dr. Allan Segal; Harry M. Thayer, Ed Levine and Mrs. Ohlson.

Others who have expressed interest in the project will be contacted.

Potential sites were suggested but those attending felt further search and study was needed in this area of development.

Plans call for capacity of 150 with refreshments of the traditional coffeehouse variety.

Schunk Uninjured

Assistant District Attorney Philip W. Schunk, Town of Lloyd, escaped injury yesterday when his car hit a deer as he drove along Route 299 in the Town of Gardiner, according to Highland State Police. The deer was injured and Trooper C. J. Bebensee shot it before turning it over to a State Conservation Department agent.

Man Injured Hit by Own Car

A 52-year-old Greene County man was in Greene County Memorial Hospital today, under treatment for multiple injuries he sustained when run over by his own car, accord to Leeds State Police.

Sergeant F. W. Hilfrank said Rudolph Kureka, of Hunter, was driving his car west on Route 23-A in the Town of Hunter at 12:30 a. m. today when the vehicle went off the left side of the highway into a ditch. The car continued on across the road and the driver fell out.

Sergeant Hilfrank reported the car ran over the man, who was taken to the hospital in Catskill suffering rib fractures, multiple lacerations and possible internal injuries, according to a report of the investigating officers, Troopers J. W. Miller and R. J. Stabile.

Action Board Scores Brown Smear Attempt

Attempts by individuals in the community to smear the character of the late Albert Brown were scored at the meeting of the Rondout Community Action Advisory Board last night.

The Rev. James Priest, chairman of the board, expressed the opinion that the derogatory comments in regard to Mr. Brown's personal life were "based on flimsey evidence and said "it is easy to condemn someone who is not here to defend himself.

Plans are being made to have the entire Community Action membership at the next Common Council meeting April 2 when the Al Brown Memorial measure will be brought out on the floor for a vote again.

Members of the board stressed the recent picketing at city hall and at the mayor's home was not sponsored by the Rondout Community Action Committee but was a spontaneous reaction of interested citizens.

A legal services committee was formed with John W. Buck as chairman. Others on the committee are Marina Prie Price, Annie Jackson, Ronald F. Woods, Irving Bell and Otis Thomason.

The committee will represent the people against unfair actions particularly in the area of collection agency practices.

The Rondout group will participate in the city clean-up campaign by selecting areas of Rondout to keep clean.

The group is attempting to secure better housing, employment, education and recreation conditions in the city of Kingston.

Rodents Bite Two in Marlboro

A big rodent and a little one figured in Highland State Police reports on Thursday.

The big rat scratched a Marlboro boy, and the little mouse nipped the finger of a woman resident of that community. Both were treated at St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh as a precaution.

County health authorities also were notified of the two incidents.

Roy Hawley of Reservoir Road, Marlboro, told a reporter that his son, Tim and other children in the community were on their way to religious instructions at a local church yesterday afternoon, when they saw what appeared to be a cat with its head stuck in a can.

Tim went to the rescue and picked up the can in an attempt to free the "cat" which turned out to be a large rat, Hawley said. The rat scratched the boy's hand and the children left with the rodent still trying to free itself.

Karen Greiner, 40, of Plattekill Road, Marlboro, tried to catch a field mouse in her home, and as she picked it up by the tail the little thing turned and nipped the woman's finger, according to a member of the family.

It was not noted whether the mouse is still on the loose.

State Trooper John Crodelle was notified of both incidents.

Legislature Continues Bounties, Hearing Set on Holiday Closing

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Ulster County Legislature Thursday night defeated a proposal to eliminate the bounty system for the control of predators, set a date for a public hearing on a Memorial Day closing law and favored further action on the problems of automated chicken farms and junk cars.

The 32 legislators in attendance covered a lot of ground in the debate on 19 resolutions including one authorizing the expenditure of $32,500 for new equipment for Ulster County Community College and another permitted action to acquire 6.9 acres of surplus federal land in the Town of Shawangunk.

A resolution seeking to kill the bounty paid on foxes and bobcats introduced by Samuel Perry, R-Kingston, was defeated 26 to 5 with one abstention. In addition to Perry three Kingston City legislators, Clarence Raichle, John Sangaline and Wendell Scherer, all Republicans, and Frank Muller, R-10th District voted to abolish the bounty system. Orrie Riehl, D-Kingston abstained.

The county pays a bounty of $2 on red fox, $3 on gray fox, and $5 on bobcats killed and checked in at town clerk offices to control the propagation of these species of predators.

In voting against the resolution for discontinuance, Ernest J. Gardner, R-11th District, chairman of the Propagation of Game Committee cited reasons why a bounty is necessary and corrected figures of last year's kill published by The Freeman in a statement by Marguerite Evans Isaacs, anti-bounty proponent. Reading from a report from the county auditor's office, Gardner said the total kill figures published in a feature story by the Freeman's county editor were correct.

During his talk, Legislator Gardner was interrupted several times by Mrs. Isaacs, who objected to his statement and asked the chair for recognition. This was denied by Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-New Paltz-Gardiner, who employed the utmost of restraint in an attempt to maintain order. The chair ruled that only legislators may speak during a roll call vote.

Irving P. Maurer, R-7th District in casting his vote against the resolution said the Esopus Town Board in his district asked for county legislative support to continue the bounty.

Paul M. Brazier, D-Saugerties said that several game clubs contacted in his area wanted the bounty continued and he voted against abolishing the bounty. Minority Leader Roger W. Mabie, D-7th District, said there was much support for continuance of the bounty in his area. Of the five legislators who voted to kill the bounty, only Perry spoke out in favor of his resolution.

By a vote of 30 to 1, a measure was approved setting a date for a public hearing Thursday, March 28 at 7:30 p. m. in the legislator's rooms on a local law regulating commercial and business activities on Memorial Day in Ulster County. Muller of District 10 cast the only dissenting ballot.

Joseph Martorana, R-9th District, who with Richard Thornton, D-Saugerties, and Riehl filed the resolution, reported on a series of meetings on the proposal and said it was ready for a public hearing. The local law if approved would prohibit the conduct of business with certain exceptions on Memorial Day. Martorana is chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee of the County Legislature.

The legislators indicated agreement that some action should be taken to control automated chicken farms in the county and the problems of disposal of the resulting manure. E. Stirling Potter and Irving P. Maurer, Republicans, and Minority Leader Mabie, all of the 7th District offered a resolution which would seek amendment of a state law which prohibits local controls governing the raising of fowl. The matter was referred to the Public Health Committee for further study.

A proposal to control the abandonment of junk cars and the possible establishment of collection centers for later disposal introduced by Clifford Snyder, R-Saugerties, was also referred to committee for study. Minority Leader Mabie cited the proposal as greatly needed and commended Snyder for his foresight in introducing the measure.

The legislators unanimously approved authorization to take all necessary steps to secure 6.9 acres of land adjacent to the Galeville U. S. Army Reserve Center in the Town of Shawangunk which the Federal Government has declared surplus property. The County Highway Department has inspected the property and finds it highly desirable for roadside rest and picnic areas.

A measure petitioning the county's representatives in Congress to amend the Naturalization Laws requiring naturalized citizens to be instructed in voting requirements and procedures was defeated 20 to 12 in a roll call vote. Seven Republicans voted with the Democratic minority of 5. The measure was introduced by Paul M. Brazier, D-Saugerties.

A similar measure which would require all new voters to receive instruction, including a provision for high school students was approved 22 to 10 with 17 Republicans voting for the measure with the 5 Democrats. The measure would seek legislation in Albany to amend the Election Law and Education Law. Brazier also filed this resolution.

A sum of $32,500 was authorized for capital projects to provide funds for the purchase of new equipment for the community college. A like amount will be provided by state aid for the total expenditure of $65,000. The resolution was filed by Chairman Savago.

It was reported that Legislator Potter was not present due to the death of his father. The session adjourned in memory of Potter's father, and two others, Saugerties Board of Education President Jack O. Pakanen and Pratt Boice, local banker.

State Stresses Need

Halfway House Here

By HUGH REYNOLDS

The State Department of Mental Hygene once again stressed the need for a boy's residence for mentally retarded youths ready to return to the community in Kingston at a meeting last night in the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

The meeting was chaired by Alderman Robert Schantz (R-Second Ward) and included mental health officials from Albany, Kingston and Wassiac. Peter E. Knauss of the State Department of Mental Hygene Bureau of Site Affairs said the state is still looking for a residence for retarded boys in Kingston but doubted if any site could be selecteed for at least a year.

Knauss said he was more concerned with reaching the people of Kingston in an educational program as to what mentally retarded children are and what the state is trying to do to help them.

Public Outcry

The state was well advanced in its plans for a halfway house for some 12 boys in the 18-22 age group a few months ago at the Dr. Charles O'Reilly House on 170 Albany Avenue. After disclosure of the plans public outcry moved the state to abandon its Albany Avenue plans.

The need for a boy's residence in Kingston is certainly justified, according to Knauss. He said boys from Wassiac are now cabbed over 50 miles a day for training at Gateway Industries.

The head of Gateway, John Sullivan was at the meeting and explained the training programs offered at Gateways. Also in attendance were Mrs. Diane Chieffo of the Ulster County Association for Retarded Children, Mrs. Doris Jennings a social worker from Wassiac and Mrs. Gertrude Wenkel, supervisor of Scardefield House on Wall Street a home for mentally retarded girls and Mrs. Theresa Reppolt, her assistant.

Louis J. Smith, vice president of the Kingston Rotary Club and candidate for alderman-at-large, last November, was also in attendance.

Points in Favor

The points brought up in favor of a boy's residence in Kingston were basically the same ones outlined in the original Freeman article on 170 Albany Avenue.

All youths selected for community living are carefully screened at Wassiac. "In fact, said Knauss, "we know more about these youths than the average person knows about a new person moving in next door to them."

The youths would be trained at Gateway, usually for about six months and shortly thereafter become regular members of the community.

The Freeman recently conducted an interview with Murray Weiss, executive director of the Ulster County Association for Retarded Children, which answered most of the basic questions raised at last night's meeting.

Historic Trust: Eye on Ertel's

The State Historic Trust has expressed "interest" in a plan that calls for state purchase of the Ertel Engineering Building on 8 North Front Street to be removed for expansion of the Senate House Grounds.

The Historic Trust recently bought the Shanty Store adjacent to the Ertel Building. A letter from William G. Tyrrell, chief of historic site management, expressed interest in the plans and stated that action by the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce on the matter would prove "very useful" to the trust in the future development of the Senate House area.

George Svirsky is chairman of the chamber of commerce's Tourist and Convention Promotion Committee which has recommended the historic trust purchase the Ertel property so that the building could be removed and the Senate House park expanded.

Svirsky has written a letter to the trust giving the chamber's full support of the plan "because it will enhance the attractiveness and ability to attract tourists to the area, enchance the real estate value of the surrounding properties and provide land for future development and attraction."

Howard C. St. John, head of a corporation which owns Ertel Engineering, told The Freeman that no one has officially notified him of any plans. He says the company is satisfied to be where it is right now but that a park would "certainly enhance the beauty of the area."

St. John said his company could move, but in any case, would remain in the city of Kingston. He said they would either build an extension on the company's Foxhall Avenue plant or build a new plant somewhere in Kingston.

The building is presently in the Uptown Urban Renewal plan but, according to Acting Executive Director Ward B. Tongue, is not on the demolition list. Uptown plans call for a 400-car two-level garage across the street from Ertel's in the old Montgomery Ward building. St. John said there might be a problem of traffic congestion with the garage across from Ertel's.

Uptown Businessmen's Association president Frank Kolts was in favor of the Historic Trust plan when questioned by The Freeman. The businessmen will meet in regular session April and may officially endorse the plan at that time.

Old Post Office Will Be Sold

Kingston's old Post Office building located at Broadway, Grand and Prince streets will be offered for sale March 29, according to an announcement made today by Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick.

The approximately one-half acre property will be offered for sale by the Government Services Administration who will advertise the condition of sale in newspapers.

Bid openings will take place April 30.

Legislature Continues Bounties, Hearing Set on Holiday Closing

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Ulster County Legislature Thursday night defeated a proposal to eliminate the bounty system for the control of predators, set a date for a public hearing on a Memorial Day closing law and favored further action on the problems of automated chicken farms and junk cars.

The 32 legislators in attendance covered a lot of ground in the debate on 19 resolutions including one authorizing the expenditure of $32,500 for new equipment for Ulster County Community College and another permitted action to acquire 6.9 acres of surplus federal land in the Town of Shawangunk.

A resolution seeking to kill the bounty paid on foxes and bobcats introduced by Samuel Perry, R-Kingston, was defeated 26 to 5 with one abstention. In addition to Perry three Kingston City legislators, Clarence Raichle, John Sangaline and Wendell Scherer, all Republicans, and Frank Muller, R-10th District voted to abolish the bounty system. Orrie Riehl, D-Kingston abstained.

The county pays a bounty of $2 on red fox, $3 on gray fox, and $5 on bobcats killed and checked in at town clerk offices to control the propagation of these species of predators.

In voting against the resolution for discontinuance, Ernest J. Gardner, R-11th District, chairman of the Propagation of Game Committee cited reasons why a bounty is necessary and corrected figures of last year's kill published by The Freeman in a statement by Marguerite Evans Isaacs, anti-bounty proponent. Reading from a report from the county auditor's office, Gardner said the total kill figures published in a feature story by the Freeman's county editor were correct.

During his talk, Legislator Gardner was interrupted several times by Mrs. Isaacs, who objected to his statement and asked the chair for recognition. This was denied by Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-New Paltz-Gardiner, who employed the utmost of restraint in an attempt to maintain order. The chair ruled that only legislators may speak during a roll call vote.

Irving P. Maurer, R-7th District in casting his vote against the resolution said the Esopus Town Board in his district asked for county legislative support to continue the bounty.

Paul M. Brazier, D-Saugerties said that several game clubs contacted in his area wanted the bounty continued and he voted against abolishing the bounty. Minority Leader Roger W. Mabie, D-7th District, said there was much support for continuance of the bounty in his area. Of the five legislators who voted to kill the bounty, only Perry spoke out in favor of his resolution.

By a vote of 30 to 1, a measure was approved setting a date for a public hearing Thursday, March 28 at 7:30 p. m. in the legislator's rooms on a local law regulating commercial and business activities on Memorial Day in Ulster County. Muller of District 10 cast the only dissenting ballot.

Joseph Martorana, R-9th District, who with Richard Thornton, D-Saugerties, and Riehl filed the resolution, reported on a series of meetings on the proposal and said it was ready for a public hearing. The local law if approved would prohibit the conduct of business with certain exceptions on Memorial Day. Martorana is chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee of the County Legislature.

The legislators indicated agreement that some action should be taken to control automated chicken farms in the county and the problems of disposal of the resulting manure. E. Stirling Potter and Irving P. Maurer, Republicans, and Minority Leader Mabie, all of the 7th District offered a resolution which would seek amendment of a state law which prohibits local controls governing the raising of fowl. The matter was referred to the Public Health Committee for further study.

A proposal to control the abandonment of junk cars and the possible establishment of collection centers for later disposal introduced by Clifford Snyder, R-Saugerties, was also referred to committee for study. Minority Leader Mabie cited the proposal as greatly needed and commended Snyder for his foresight in introducing the measure.

The legislators unanimously approved authorization to take all necessary steps to secure 6.9 acres of land adjacent to the Galeville U. S. Army Reserve Center in the Town of Shawangunk which the Federal Government has declared surplus property. Seven Republicans voted with the Democratic minority of 5. The measure was introduced by Paul M. Brazier, D-Saugerties.

A similar measure which would require all new voters to receive instruction, including a provision for high school students was approved 22 to 10 with 17 Republicans voting for the measure with the 5 Democrats. The measure would seek legislation in Albany to amend the Election Law and Education Law. Brazier also filed this resolution.

A sum of $32,500 was authorized for capital projects to provide funds for the purchase of new equipment for the community college. A like amount will be provided by state aid for the total expenditure of $65,000. The resolution was filed by Chairman Savago.

It was reported that Legislator Potter was not present due to the death of his father. The session adjourned in memory of Potter's father, and two others, Saugerties Board of Education President Jack O. Pakanen and Pratt Boice, local banker.

State Stresses Need

By HUGH REYNOLDS

The State Department of Mental Hygene once again stressed the need for a boy's residence for mentally retarded youths ready to return to the community in Kingston at a meeting last night in the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

The meeting was chaired by Alderman Robert Schantz (R-Second Ward) and included mental health officials from Albany, Kingston and Wassiac. Peter E. KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MARCH 15, 1968

Oregon Confrontation

Even before the returns from the nation's first primary in New Hampshire showed Senator McCarthy's impressive margin and Richard M. Nixon's overwhelming vote lead against the write-in votes of President Johnson and Governor Rockefeller, the secretary of the state of Oregon had made up his slate for what could and should be a major confrontation before the party national conventions.

Clay Myers, the secretary of state, put Governor Rockefeller on the Republican slate with Nixon and Governor Ronald Reagan of California and Senator Charles H. Percy of Illinois. On the Democratic ticket, Myers put President Johnson, Senator Robert F. Kennedy, Senator Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota and former Governor George Wallace of Alabama.

Though Rockefeller has withdrawn from other state primary contests, it would be difficult for him to deny he is a candidate after he has announced he is available and ready to contest the nomination. His Oregon supporters are urging him to stay despite the huge vote cast for Nixon in the New Hampshire primary. Party leaders including nine governors, three senators and five representatives who took part in a strategy session also urged him to become an active candidate.

As we have stated previously, Rockefeller should state his war position.

Nixon has stated his position on the war and he he has said that new leadership is needed to end the war and bring peace and that if elected he would do both. He refuses to outline his plan for ending the war so as not to weaken his bargaining position if he is elected President.

It begins to look as if there is going to be a race for the Republican nomination and that it may be worth the effort this year.

Kennedy, who also has been in a dilemma, now has declared he will reassess the possibility of whether to run against President Johnson. He said that as a result of the New Hampshire primary he was urgently reconsidering his previous decision not to seek the nomination this year. McCarthy has shown that there is a large segment of Democratic and independent voters disillusioned with Johnson, but who would either abstain or vote reluctantly for the President. But they would flock to Kennedy. He has to decide whether he can risk a nominating contest now that this sentiment has surfaced.

The Oregon primary is May 28, but March 19 is the last day for putting a name on the ballot by petition and March 22 the last day for filing affidavits to remove names on the ground that they are not candidates.

It would provide a meaningful confrontation if all the names chosen by the secretary of state were permitted to remain on the ballot. The Republicans would get some proof as to who is their strongest or winningest prospective candidate. The Democrats would learn how deep is their cleavage and who can best heal it and win for them.

After a critical nine-day challenge in the House of Commons, Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada won a vote of confidence by a vote of 138 to 119. It means that in all probability he will be able to leave public office in about two months as a retiring leader, not a defeated one.

The Treasury's announcement of the exact national debt last week of $352,546,363,116.57 meant that each of the 200 million men, women and children in the country owes $1,762.73, his share of the national debt. Good thing no one is trying to collect it.

New Hampshire Voting Results Not Decisive

WASHINGTON —Misleading inferences are being drawn about the vote in the New Hampshire primary largely because most people are unfamiliar with the way the "write-in" votes should be compared with the votes for a name which is actually printed on the ballot.

Thus, it is significant that President Johnson polled approximately 26,000 votes when his name wasn't even on the ballot, while Senator Eugene McCarthy got around 23,000 votes after an active campaign and, of course, with his name on the ballot.

Lots of people just don't know how to handle a "write-in" when they get into the voting booth. In 1964 on Election Day more than 184,000 voted in New Hampshire for Mr. Johnson. Why didn't 135,000 of these go to the polls on Tuesday of this week? The leaders of the Democratic Party in the state didn't put on a vigorous campaign for Mr. Johnson because of a belief McCarthy wasn't a serious contender.

It may be assumed that President Johnson commands a majority in the Democratic Party in New Hampshire and undoubtedly would have polled even more votes if it hadn't been necessary for those favoring him to do a "write-in."

Nor it is accurate to say as the Soviet Union is joyously proclaiming—that the vote for Senator McCarthy showed that the American people are against the Vietnam war. Indeed, former Vice President Nixon on the Republican side got more than 84,000 votes, and certainly he is not in favor of a retreat or "pull-out" from Vietnam. Incidentally, Mr. Nixon in this week's primary polled less than the 104,000 votes which Barry Goldwater received on Election Day in 1964.

The vote in the New Hampshire primary for Mr. Nixon was not surprising because there was really no organized opposition against him among the Republicans. Governor Nelson Rockefeller, whose name had to be written in on the ballot, obtained more than 11,000 votes, which is about half of what Senator McCarthy received.

Governor Romney's withdrawal and Governor Rockefellers unwillingness to place his name on the ballot really eliminated any contest on the Republican side. The fact that more Republicans went to the polls than Democrats is usual in New Hampshire primaries. With a President's name not on the ballot, many voters take it for granted that no harm is done by staying away from the polls altogether. Leading Democrats did not regard the McCarthy drive as really endangering the President's chances of renomination.

It is surprising to read the comments by those members of Congress who are seeking to interpret the New Hampshire primary results as a warning to President Johnson that the American people are questioning his conduct of the war. There has been, to be sure, much criticism from both the "Hawks" and the "Doves"—those who think the war should be fought more vigorously, and those who advocate a "pull - out." Mr. Nixon's position is more on the side of those who believe the war should be prosecuted effectively than it is in line with what the "Doves" in Congress have been saying.

Some members of Congress have interpreted the vote for McCarthy as an "anti-Johnson" vote. This, of course, is a logical inference, but the real question is how many of those who voted for Senator McCarthy in the Democratic primary will perfer Nixon, for instance, to President Johnson in November.

Based on past experience with rump movements, however, it may well be that by the time the convention is held the amount of opposition to the President's renomination will be irrelevant unless Senator Robert Kennedy of New York does throw his hat into the ring.

The New Hampshire primary does not prove that the voters in the Democratic party are opposed to the renomination of President Johnson. Nor does it establish that the selection of Nixon as the Republican nominee will necessarily assure a victory for him. Much will depend on exactly how the Republican candidate defines his position in connection with the Vietnamese War. President Johnson also can be expected to make clear before election day what he believes can and should be done to bring about peace in Vietnam. The results of the voting in New Hampshire this week can hardly be called decisive as a measurement of public pinion.

Events in Vietnam Prompt Comparison With Chinese

SAIGON—As a correspondent in China 20 years ago, I watched the Communist takeover of the mainland. The conditions which led to the downfall of Chiang Kai-shek are presen' today in Vietnam. Here are some disturbing parallels:

Parallel No. 1—The Chinese Communists gradually wrested control of the countryside, bottling up the Nationalists in the cities. Once in power, the Reds would strip the hated landlords of their holdings and parcel out the land to the peasants. When the Nationalists occasionally reconquered an area, they immediately returned the land to the absentee landlords.

This is precisely what is happening in Vietnam today. U. S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker had pleaded with the South Vietnamese authorities to adopt land reforms. However, the Saigon government has made no move to give the peasants a greater share in the land they till. For many of the leaders in Saigon, as in Nanking 20 years ago, happen to be landlords.

Parallel No. 2—Chiang presided over a coalition of war lords, who grew rich off American aid intended for their people. Corrupt officials down the line siphoned off U. S. goods that passed through their hands. Army commanders pocketed pay and supplies that had been earmarked for their troops. And Nationalist leaders suddenly began opening fabulous bank accounts in Switzerland and the U. S.

All of this has been going on in Vietnam. President Nguyen Van Thieu, however, has fired two war lords and has taken the first hesitant steps to curb corruption.

Parallel No. 3—The tragedy of China is that Chiang recognized and corrected his mistakes after it was too late. In his island retreat, he finally adopted socio-economic reforms that have transformed Formosa into a prosperous, progressive country with the second highest living standards in Asia. His agricultural programs have become a model for the underdeveloped world. If he had pushed these reforms on the mainland he would never have been forced off.

Thieu Moves Too Slowly

President Thieu also appears to be awakening to the need for reforms too slowly to save Vietnam. It will take some dramatic social, economic and political improvements to win the public support that is essential to real victory. But the cautious Thieu is pussyfooting at a time when bold political action is demanded.

In Vietnam, of course, Thieu is backed by American firepower which was not available to Chiang. The Viet Cong can no more drive the Americans out of the country than a pack of rats could defeat an elephant. The rats might torment the elephant by gnawing at his heels, then elude his crushing counterblows by scattering into their holes. The harassment might persuade him to leave, but they could never push him out.

Likewise, the Viet Cong cannot defeat the U. S.; they can only hope to discourage the Americans from remaining in Vietnam. This appears to be the aim of North Vietnam's master strategist, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, who defeated the French 14 years ago more in the back rooms of Paris than on the battlefields of Vietnam. Apparently, he now hopes to repeat this strategy against the U.S.

Already, he has jolted Washington with his bold attacks against 36 South Vietnamese cities. His troops were driven out of them all with heavy losses, which can hardly be called a military victory. Yet the Viet Cong offensive must be described as a psychological success.

Giap, it seems, next hopes to overrun Khe Sanh, which he would like to turn into an American Dien Bien Phu. He is using precisely the same tactics against the beleagured Marines that overwhelmed the French defenders at Dien Bien Phu 14 years ago.

It is a showdown which Gen. William Westmoreland, The American commander, welcomes. He has tried to draw the North Vietnamese into open battle. While they are attacking the encircled Marines, he hopes to encircle the attackers.

Westmoreland Is Adamant

Westmoreland definitely has no intention of losing the battle. He has assured the Joint Chiefs that Khe Sahn will not fall. But if he has underestimated Giap, as the French did, the psychological impact would be devastating.

Not even the fall of Khe Sanh, however, would mean that the U.S. has lost the Vietnam war. On both sides, the conflict has become a war of attrition. Westmoreland is trying to wear down the communists who, in turn, are trying to wear out American patience. It has become a test of staying power.

But is it worth staying in Vietnam? Certainly the U.S. cannot afford to pour $26 billion a year, let alone the blood of our boys, into this remote jungle for too much longer.

The purpose, according to Secretary of State Rusk, is to contain Communist China. Admittedly, Peking is trying to foment insurrections in every country in Southeast Asia. These will be given encouragement, no doubt, if the U.S. pulls out of Vietnam. But tiny South Vietnam can never poke more than a finger into the Chinese dike.

It will take the manpower of India to block the manpower of China from sweeping over Asia. India's population increase each year is equal to the entire population of South Vietnam. In other words, India adds another South Vietnam to her growth every year.

Yet, when the Indians for two years begged the U.S. to arm them against the Chinese, Washington refused. The Indians were forced to turn to the Soviet Union, which sold them arms and now has more influence than the U.S. in New Delhi.

It seems to me that our $26 billion a year could have been spent more effectively building up the great nations of Asia — India, Indonesia, Australia and Japan. Instead, for 20 years, we have been spending our money on the small nations of Asia and restricting aid to the great nations which have the manpower to contain China.

Racially Unbalanced Schools

By JACK MILLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The report by the President's riot commission lends support to those agreeing with U.S. Commissioner of Education Harold Howe's contention that "for an American citizen, segregated education cannot be excellent."

Howe's recent statement refers to the racially unbalanced schools of the North as well as to segregated Southern schools.

The riot commission report contends integrated education "is essential to the future of American society. In this last summer's disorders, we have seen the consequences of racial isolation at all levels, and of attitudes toward race on both sides, produced by three centuries of myth, ignorance and bias."

But the government not only has no authority to move against racial imbalance as such, it is barred fom doing so by an amendment to the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

It can—and does—provide federal funds to help schools, by busing or other means, to overcome racial imbalance for educational reasons.

Federal officials acknowledge the actions of local school districts in attacking racial imbalance have been small in view of the large-scale racial separation in the big cities of the North.

But Dr. Gregory Anrig, director of the Office of Education's equal opportunity operation, says "we're hearing of an awful lot of school districts that are trying to do something to reduce imbalance.

The government soon will begin its first major investigation of discrimination against Negroes in Northern school systems. Discriminating districts will lose federal aid.

But this effort cannot be directed headon at racial imbalance. It will be limited to requiring school boards to assure that Negro pupils are treated equally with whites.

Congress could pass a law authorizing federal action against imbalance. But that seems highly unlikely for now. Even liberal Northern Democrats would shy away from such action because of powerful pressure from white voters against enforced mixnig—and the busing that often goes with it.

The open-housing law under consideration in Congress clearly would lead to more school integration. But federal officials say housing patterns would change only very slowly.

What holds back any big national move against racial imbalance is that the 1954 Supreme Court decision and the 1964 Civil Rights Act struck down school segregation by law but not segregation that comes about because of where people live.

Many federal officials believe racial imbalance in the North will not be changed for many years unless the federal courts, and finally the Supreme Court, rule against it.

Some officials predict that may well happen within the next year or two.

Derrick Bell, a legal expert of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, predicts the Supreme Court will in effect rule against all school segregation.

He predicts the court will conclude that Negro youngsters cannot get an equal educational opportunity in schools that are all or mos ly Negro.

Yet even such a decision would hardly bring instant, nationwide mixing of white and Negro pupils. The government still hasn't brought about complete compliance with the court's decision of 14 years ago.

LBJ Administration Refuses To Speculate on Next Move

By PETER LISAGOR
(Chicago Daily News Service)

WASHINGTON—The Johnson Administration declines to foreclose any prospective turn in Vietnam, including a substantial boost in U. S. manpower, despite the publicly exposed anguish of Senate critics of the war.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the Foreign Relations Committee obviously hopes his public hearings with Secretary of State Dean Rusk will inhibit or restrain President Johnson from moving toward a major decision on more troops requested by Gen. W. C. Westmoreland.

But those hopes rest on a fragile base if the televised exchanges with Rusk said anything about the state of communications between the Fulbright committee and the administration. For that dialog of the deaf reveals how wide and deep—and perhaps irreparable—the gulf between the two actually is.

It also echoes what Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) apologetically called "a feeling of frustration and uneasiness throughout the country.

From the nature of the questions, an observer would have to conclude that Hanoi has a better Rapport with the administration than do Fullbright and his troubled colleagues. The failure of the President and his chief advisers to make their case for Vietnam was affirmed by an unexpected source. Sen. Karl Mundt (R-S.D.), a confirmed anti-Communist and erstwhile supporter of the war.

"Somewhere along the line we have failed collectively," lamented Mundt, speaking of the lack of coherent understanding of the war's purposes.

Fulbright himself testily complained that if the administration "would confide in us," the Senate might get off it's back. He didn't say it exactly that way, but it was the sense of his persistent grievance.

"We were a provacateur" in the Bay of Tonkin, Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) charged, pointing a finger. Being one of two senators who voted against the Tonkin Resolution in August, 1964, Morse feels vindicated by history, and he's not about to let anyone forget it.

Sen. Clifford Case (R-N.J.), a hand-wringer, raised the questions he said many were asking: Isn't the present course one that has the ultimate effect of destroying that which we're trying to save? Rusk rejected the premise.

In fact, Rusk rejected almost every contentious premise, except that he did admit the Viet Cong Tet offensive was a major setback and would require much rebuilding. The impassive Rusk was hunkered down, undeviating from the argument that Hanoi's aggression must be halted to avoid catastrophe for Asia and larger battles later for the United States.

He frustrated his inquisitors with his unyielding, repetitious, forebearing, sometimes eloquent, often resigned, performance. It exhibited how completely at loggerheads he was with the critics.

Of course, the target of Fulbright and the others was not Rusk. It was Mr. Johnson, who watched fitfully on his TV throughout the day. His reactions were not immediately available, but White House sources revealed no tendency to deny or soften the stories over the weekend of an intense internal debate within the government about the future course of the war.

They said simply that the picture of 206,000 more troops was pieced together from many sources, and that it was "not realistic" for the moment. It depends upon the span of time, one said.

Some observers here believe that the large figure of what Westmoreland has "requested" may have been deliberately leaked. Thus, when the President finally decides on a far lesser number of additional troops, he will seem to be a man of restraint, unwilling to yield to the entreaties of his more hawkish advisers.

In any event, despite Rusk's refusal to speculate on next moves, the expectation here is that the President soon will decide on more men, possibly 40,000 to 60,000 more. And that will prove once again that Fulbright's impact on the decision-making process must be put down as negligible.

The hearings have shown the advocacy on both sides to be intense, unshakeable, and almost beyond change. Probably only a jury of the American people can decide, if it in fact gets a choice in the November election for President.

I feel different than most people about freedom to speak out. I think it exists more in theory than in practice. What we actually have in the United States is an advanced case of self-censorship. People are afraid to open their mouths in public on controversial subjects (unless they happen to be agreeing with an establishment point of view).

Right now many whom I know are against this rotten Vietnam war. But will they say so in a letter to the editor, in front of strangers, even just to their neighbors? No they won't, because they are afraid of various things like losing customers, losing "respected "positions in the community, being identified with left wing views or having their children sneered at. Stuff like that.

This is no phenomenon. Frankly, I can't remember when it was ever different. It seems to me we've always had an intimidated populace. Intimidated but happy they weren't living in Russia, where you can't say what you think.

Votes for Brown

Editor, The Freeman:

Let me congratulate you on the "City Beat" editorial by Hugh Reynolds in last Saturday's Freeman, "Al Brown: What Was He Really Like?" I think that this account of a personal experience with the late Al Brown put the controversial issue in a nutshell. I never met the man . . . but the "image" I had of him was that of a Kingston City patrolman . . . worthy of our esteem because of the badge he wore of a volunteer worker with youth in our difficult urban renewal area . . . worthy of esteem because he was doing something when others were just talking about it . . . and of a man whose life was snuffed out long before the three-score-and-ten we are told we may hope for. This image of Al Brown is worthy of perpetuation; and where more appropriately than in a Community Service Center? Speaking for no organization but as a neighbor concerned about better human relations in our city, I cast my vote for a man who helped us all through a "long hot summer."

Sincerely,
Rev. WILLIAM A. STUDWELL

Oregon Confrontation

Even before the returns from the nation's first primary in New Hampshire showed Senator McCarthy's impressive margin and Richard M. Nixon's overwhelming vote lead against the write-in votes of President Johnson and Governor Rockefeller, the secretary of the state of Oregon had made up his slate for what could and should be a major confrontation before the party national conventions.

Clay Myers, the secretary of state, put Governor Rockefeller on the Republican slate with Nixon and Governor Ronald Reagan of California and Senator Charles H. Percy of Illinois. On the Democratic ticket, Myers put President Johnson, Senator Robert F. Kennedy, Senator Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota and former Governor George Wallace of Alabama.

Though Rockefeller has withdrawn from other state primary contests, it would be difficult for him to deny he is a candidate after he has announced he is available and ready to contest the nomination. His Oregon supporters are urging him to stay despite the huge vote cast for Nixon in the New Hampshire primary. Party leaders including nine governors, three senators and five representatives who took part in a strategy session also urged him to become an active candidate.

As we have stated previously, Rockefeller should state his war position.

Nixon has stated his position on the war and he he has said that new leadership is needed to end the war and bring peace and that if elected he would do both. He refuses to outline his plan for ending the war so as not to weaken his bargaining position if he is elected President.

It begins to look as if there is going to be a race for the Republican nomination and that it may be worth the effort this year.

Kennedy, who also has been in a dilemma, now has declared he will reassess the possibility of whether to run against President Johnson. He said that as a result of the New Hampshire primary he was urgently reconsidering his previous decision not to seek the nomination this year. McCarthy has shown that there is a large segment of Democratic and independent voters disillusioned with Johnson, but who would either abstain or vote reluctantly for the President. But they would flock to Kennedy. He has to decide whether he can risk a nominating contest now that this sentiment has surfaced.

The Oregon primary is May 28, but March 19 is the last day for putting a name on the ballot by petition and March 22 the last day for filing affidavits to remove names on the ground that they are not candidates.

It would provide a meaningful confrontation if all the names chosen by the secretary of state were permitted to remain on the ballot. The Republicans would get some proof as to who is their strongest or winningest prospective candidate. The Democrats would learn how deep is their cleavage and who can best heal it and win for them.

After a critical nine-day challenge in the House of Commons, Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada won a vote of confidence by a vote of 138 to 119. It means that in all probability he will be able to leave public office in about two months as a retiring leader, not a defeated one.

The Treasury's announcement of the exact national debt last week of $352,546,363,116.57 meant that each of the 200 million men, women and children in the country owes $1,762.73, his share of the national debt. Good thing no one is trying to collect it.

New Hampshire Voting Results Not Decisive

WASHINGTON —Misleading inferences are being drawn about the vote in the New Hampshire primary largely because most people are unfamiliar with the way the "write-in" votes should be compared with the votes for a name which is actually printed on the ballot.

Thus, it is significant that President Johnson polled approximately 26,000 votes when his name wasn't even on the ballot, while Senator Eugene McCarthy got around 23,000 votes after an active campaign and, of course, with his name on the ballot.

Lots of people just don't know how to handle a "write-in" when they get into the voting booth. In 1964 on Election Day more than 184,000 voted in New Hampshire for Mr. Johnson. Why didn't 135,000 of these go to the polls on Tuesday of this week? The leaders of the Democratic Party in the state didn't put on a vigorous campaign for Mr. Johnson because of a belief McCarthy wasn't a serious contender.

It may be assumed that President Johnson commands a majority in the Democratic Party in New Hampshire and undoubtedly would have polled even more votes if it hadn't been necessary for those favoring him to do a "write-in."

Nor it is accurate to say as the Soviet Union is joyously proclaiming—that the vote for Senator McCarthy showed that the American people are against the Vietnam war. Indeed, former Vice President Nixon on the Republican side got more than 84,000 votes, and certainly he is not in favor of a retreat or "pull-out" from Vietnam. Congress could pass a law authorizing federal action against imbalance. But that seems highly unlikely for now. Even liberal Northern Democrats would shy away from such action because of powerful pressure from white voters against enforced mixnig—and the busing that often goes with it.

The open-housing law under consideration in Congress clearly would lead to more school integration. But federal officials say housing patterns would change only very slowly.

What holds back any big national move against racial imbalance is that the 1954 Supreme Court decision and the 1964 Civil Rights Act struck down school segregation by law but not segregation that comes about because of where people live.

Many federal officials believe racial imbalance in the North will not be changed for many years unless the federal courts, and finally the Supreme Court, rule against it.

Some officials predict that may well happen within the next year or two.

Derrick Bell, a legal expert of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, predicts the Supreme Court will in effect rule against all school segregation.

He predicts the court will conclude that Negro youngsters cannot get an equal educational opportunity in schools that are all or mos ly Negro.

Yet even such a decision would hardly bring instant, nationwide mixing of white and Negro pupils. The government still hasn't brought about complete compliance with the court's decision of 14 years ago.

LBJ Administration Refuses To Speculate on Next Move

By PETER LISAGOR
(Chicago Daily News Service)

WASHINGTON—The Johnson Administration declines to foreclose any prospective turn in Vietnam, including a substantial boost in U. S. manpower, despite the publicly exposed anguish of Senate critics of the war.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the Foreign Relations Committee obviously hopes his public hearings with Secretary of State Dean Rusk will inhibit or restrain President Johnson from moving toward a major decision on more troops requested by Gen. W. C. Westmoreland.

But those hopes rest on a fragile base if the televised exchanges with Rusk said anything about the state of communications between the Fulbright committee and the administration. For that dialog of the deaf reveals how wide and deep—and perhaps irreparable—the gulf between the two actually is.

It also echoes what Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) apologetically called "a feeling of frustration and uneasiness throughout the country.

From the nature of the questions, an observer would have to conclude that Hanoi has a better Rapport with the administration than do Fullbright and his troubled colleagues. The failure of the President and his chief advisers to make their case for Vietnam was affirmed by an unexpected source. Sen. Karl Mundt (R-S.D.), a confirmed anti-Communist and erstwhile supporter of the war.

"Somewhere along the line we have failed collectively," lamented Mundt, speaking of the lack of coherent understanding of the war's purposes.

Fulbright himself testily complained that if the administration "would confide in us," the Senate might get off it's back. He didn't say it exactly that way, but it was the sense of his persistent grievance.

"We were a provacateur" in the Bay of Tonkin, Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) charged, pointing a finger. Being one of two senators who voted against the Tonkin Resolution in August, 1964, Morse feels vindicated by history, and he's not about to let anyone forget it.

Sen. Clifford Case (R-N.J.), a hand-wringer, raised the questions he said many were asking: Isn't the present course one that has the ultimate effect of destroying that which we're trying to save? Rusk rejected the premise.

In fact, Rusk rejected almost every contentious premise, except that he did admit the Viet Cong Tet offensive was a major setback and would require much rebuilding. The impassive Rusk was hunkered down, undeviating from the argument that Hanoi's aggression must be halted to avoid catastrophe for Asia and larger battles later for the United States.

He frustrated his inquisitors with his unyielding, repetitious, forebearing, sometimes eloquent, often resigned, performance. It exhibited how completely at loggerheads he was with the critics.

Of course, the target of Fulbright and the others was not Rusk. It was Mr. Johnson, who watched fitfully on his TV throughout the day. His reactions were not immediately available, but White House sources revealed no tendency to deny or soften the stories over the weekend of an intense internal debate within the government about the future course of the war.

They said simply that the picture of 206,000 more troops was pieced together from many sources, and that it was "not realistic" for the moment. It depends upon the span of time, one said.

Some observers here believe that the large figure of what Westmoreland has "requested" may have been deliberately leaked. Thus, when the President finally decides on a far lesser number of additional troops, he will seem to be a man of restraint, unwilling to yield to the entreaties of his more hawkish advisers.

In any event, despite Rusk's refusal to speculate on next moves, the expectation here is that the President soon will decide on more men, possibly 40,000 to 60,000 more. And that will prove once again that Fulbright's impact on the decision-making process must be put down as negligible.

The hearings have shown the advocacy on both sides to be intense, unshakeable, and almost beyond change. Probably only a jury of the American people can decide, if it in fact gets a choice in the November election for President.

Editor, The Freeman

I feel different than most people about freedom to speak out. I think it exists more in theory than in practice. What we actually have in the United States is an advanced case of self-censorship. People are afraid to open their mouths in public on controversial subjects (unless they happen to be agreeing with an establishment point of view).

Right now many whom I know are against this rotten Vietnam war. But will they say so in a letter to the editor, in front of strangers, even just to their neighbors? No they won't, because they are afraid of various things like losing customers, losing "respected "positions in the community, being identified with left wing views or having their children sneered at. Stuff like that.

This is no phenomenon. Frankly, I can't remember when it was ever different. It seems to me we've always had an intimidated populace. Intimidated but happy they weren't living in Russia, where you can't say what you think.

Votes for Brown

Editor, The Freeman:

Let me congratulate you on the "City Beat" editorial by Hugh Reynolds in last Saturday's Freeman, "Al Brown: What Was He Really Like?" I think that this account of a personal experience with the late Al Brown put the controversial issue in a nutshell. I never met the man . . . but the "image" I had of him was that of a Kingston City patrolman . . . worthy of our esteem because of the badge he wore of a volunteer worker with youth in our difficult urban renewal area . . . worthy of esteem because he was doing something when others were just talking about it . . . and of a man whose life was snuffed out long before the three-score-and-ten we are told we may hope for. This image of Al Brown is worthy of perpetuation; and where more appropriately than in a Community Service Center? Speaking for no organization but as a neighbor concerned about better human relations in our city, I cast my vote for a man who helped us all through a "long hot summer."

Sincerely,
Rev. WILLIAM A. STUDWELL

Moving Some Capital From Fixed Areas Makes Sense

Q — I have retired at 63, with $575 monthly pension. We own our home and have $10,000 Northern States Power 6⅛ bonds; 115 Welch Scientific; 200 One William St. Fund, and $23,000 in savings. Should we invest $10,000 of savings in stocks such as General Motors, Safeway or Stewart-Warner? Would switching Welch, half into Boeing and half into a good drug company, make sense?—R.W.

A — I believe that both your ideas show a great deal of sense, and I commend you for them. With $10,000 in bonds and $23,000 in savings, you appear to have a disproportional amount of your capital placed where it can't grow materially in value to offset a gradual devaluation of the dollar, if that continues.

The stocks you have selected for investment are all good, but Safeway—like most food chains—has been hurt by stiff competition coupled with rising costs, and I would avoid this one at present. I prefer Jewel Co., which also operates food chains, but has been diversifying into other areas of merchandising. Both General Motors and Stewart-Warner are attractive for yield and potential appreciation. Welch is a good company, but the growth and price progress have been somewhat limited and the yield is very low. I advise you to switch half into Boeing, which seems definitely undervalued, and half into Warner-Lambert, which appears oversold to me.

Q — I am interested in low-priced stocks. Several of my friends have invested in these issues but I hesitate. What is your opinion? What does selling over-the-counter mean?—S.A.

A — I rarely recommend low-priced stocks at present, since most such issues of any merit have had sensational run-ups since 1966. Buying this type of stock requires mainly courage and luck, and I'm afraid it is a little late for you to step in now. Over-the-counter issues are traded by private negotiation between dealers, rather than by auction on an exchange.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market resumed its decline in moderately active trading early Friday following overnight news of further steps being taken to meet the gold crisis.

Wall Street seemed cautious and was under no particular selling pressure. Blue chips such as U.S. Steel, American Telephone and Alcoa held about unchanged.

The steam was taken out of the rise by gold, silver and other mining issues. Benguet, the Philippine Gold Miner was off a fraction while Campbell Red Lake gained a fraction.

Hero Marine Tithes Part of Insurance to Church

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A conscientious objector who was mortally wounded while helping to rescue a fellow Marine at Khe Sanh in South Vietnam has tithed part of his life insurance to his Church.

Pvt. Jonathan Nathaniel Spicer, 19, wrote that he was laughed at by fellow Marines at Khe Sanh because of his anti-war views after he was assigned to that beleaguered fortress as a medic.

"They treated me with disdain and contempt," Spicer wrote to his father, William, a former Methodist minister who is a social studies teacher at a junior high school.

At Khe Sanh a month ago Spicer charged from a bunker to help stretcher bearers loading wounded into helicopters under fire. He was wounded by shrapnel.

Open heart surgery and hospitalization in Vietnam were followed by transfer Tuesday to a hospital in Japan where he died Wednesday.

The elder Spicer said he and Mrs. Spicer received their son's last letter two months ago. Spicer also is survived by three brothers, Rocky, 9, Bill, 21, and Timmy, 17, a Marine recruit undergoing training.

"It contained his last will and testament," the father said. "He wanted $1,000 of his $10,000 worth of Army insurance to go to the Church—in keeping with our practice of tithing. Another $200 is to be used to buy his youngest brother a horse and he said the rest is to be used by the family."

Weather Affects Tires

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Winter weather has a decided effect on the inflation pressure of your car's tires.

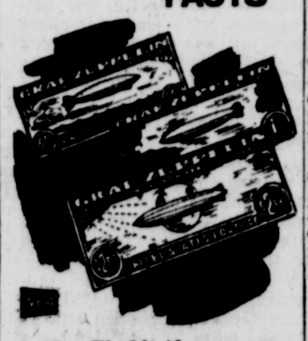

For every nine-degree increase or decrease in temperature, the inflation pressure of the tires will increase or decrease by one pound, says the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company. Thus, the company recommends a weekly check on tire inflation pressures during the winter months.

Hero Marine Tithes Part of Insurance to Church

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A conscientious objector who was mortally wounded while helping to rescue a fellow Marine at Khe Sanh in South Vietnam has tithed part of his life insurance to his Church.

Pvt. Jonathan Nathaniel Spicer, 19, wrote that he was laughed at by fellow Marines at Khe Sanh because of his anti-war views after he was assigned to that beleaguered fortress as a medic.

"They treated me with disdain and contempt," Spicer wrote to his father, William, a former Methodist minister who is a social studies teacher at a junior high school.

At Khe Sanh a month ago Spicer charged from a bunker to help stretcher bearers loading wounded into helicopters under fire. He was wounded by shrapnel.

Open heart surgery and hospitalization in Vietnam were followed by transfer Tuesday to a hospital in Japan where he died Wednesday.

The elder Spicer said he and Mrs. Spicer received their son's last letter two months ago. Spicer also is survived by three brothers, Rocky, 9, Bill, 21, and Timmy, 17, a Marine recruit undergoing training.

"It contained his last will and testament," the father said. "He wanted $1,000 of his $10,000 worth of Army insurance to go to the Church—in keeping with our practice of tithing. Another $200 is to be used to buy his youngest brother a horse and he said the rest is to be used by the family."

Referendum on Viet For Wisconsin Voters

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A referendum demanding that the United States withdraw from Vietnam goes before the voters of Wisconsin's capital April 2, compounding problems of administration supporters seeking a victory for President Johnson in the state presidential primary that day.

So far the only outspoken opponents of the resolution, which got its start in the University of Wisconsin community, are the city councilmen. They voted to put it on the ballot after the city attorney advised they had no choice, then voted 20-1 to urge a "no" vote.

Supporters of the referendum say offers of support have multiplied since Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy won 42 per cent of the vote in the New Hampshire primary Tuesday.

McCarthy also is opposing Johnson in the Wisconsin primary.

More than 8,000 signatures were on petitions forcing the City Council to put this question on the ballot:

"It is the policy of the people of the city of Madison that there be an immediate cease fire and the withdrawal of United States troops from Vietnam, so that the Vietnamese people can determine their own destiny."

Strong sentiment for a yes vote appears centered in the university campus, which has 33,000 students.

There has been a concerted drive to register students to vote. The largest number of new voters, the city clerk's office said, have been registered in heavy student population areas.

The campus has been the scene of frequent antiwar demonstrations, including a violent clash last Oct. 18 when Dow Chemical Co., maker of napalm for the Vietnam war, tried to recruit students for jobs.

Some politicians say privately that the war referendum could cause a split in Democratic party ranks in the city, Madison is traditionally a Democratic stronghold.

The American Legion has indicated it might organize a campaign for no votes, but has not announced a drive. City Atty. Edwin Conrad said he had calls from veterans who favored placing the question on the ballot because they said 'they felt it could be beaten by a 2-1 vote."

Amazon Corps Covers Jungle

By MARIO DE ARATANHA
Associated Press Writer

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazilian university students are being scattered through the jungle in a kind of domestic peace corps program. Most are in the Amazon region.

More than 700 students have already taken part in a joint program sponsored by nine government ministries to help the poor of Brazil's underdeveloped interior.

"Our aim is not only to provide assistance to the local people, but also to put future technicians in touch with their country's reality," says Army Lt. Col. Mauro Costa Rodrigues.

Rodrigues is the executive coordinator of the "Rondon Project," started in December, which is responsible for putting the students in the Amazon jungles and in the drought regions of the Northeast.

The students, with an average age of 23, are all volunteers. They are divided in groups of four to 10, and sent to frontier military posts and religious missions in the jungles or in the "caatingas," the semi-arid regions of the Northeast.

On Frontier

Most of them are nearing graduation as doctors, dentists, veterinarians, agricultural engineers, teachers, economists, geographers and geologists.

So far, the project has reached 97 settlements in the jungles and in the desert.

The Rondon Project, initiated by the Interior Ministry, is carried on in close cooperation with the ministries of Army, Navy, Air Force, Education, Health, Transportation, Agriculture and Planning. It is also aided by the government's Superintendencies for Development of the Amazon and of the Northeast and by almost all Brazilian universities and state governments.

Aid and Study

After arriving at its final base, a group has the task of providing assistance to the population, in addition to undertaking research of the area.

Among the items studied by each group are: topography, rivers and lakes, soil, mineral resources, climate, flora, fauna, colonization, population distribution, agriculture, forests, fishing and hunting possibilities, existing and potential local industries, transportation and commerce.

When the students return to their schools, they prepare reports on their studies and conclusions, which are used by the universities and by the government in future development efforts.

Colonel Rodrigues says that about 200,000 new cruzeiros (about $63,000) were spent to finance the first part of the project, carried on during the first two months of this year.

Most of the money came from the federal government and the University Movement for Economic-Social Development, a private foundation.

A large part of the medical supplies were donated by private laboratories, and equipment and transportation were provided by the military.

Kennedy Says

through his courage and leadership, the right and duty to be supported," said Gerald N. Hill, council president and co-chairman of the McCarthy campaign in California.

At least one of Kennedy's closest political advisers meanwhile is urging him against risking his political future by making a race for the Democratic nomination this year.

"It's entirely possible," said the informant, who asked not to be identified, "that he will announce he has reassessed the situation and decided not to make the race.

"I, for one, don't think he can take the nomination from the President if Johnson decides he wants to stay in office," the adviser said, adding he expects Kennedy to make up his mind in two or three days.

McCarthy, indicating he was distinctly cool to the possibility of a Kennedy candidacy, said it might divide the bloc of opposition to Johnson's war policies and help the President win renomination.

The Minnesotan voiced confidence he could win the California primary even if Kennedy makes it a three-way race. He suggested Kennedy might take more support from Johnson than from his own forces.

He said he wasn't sure what the effect would be in Oregon. But in Portland, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said he has written Kennedy that if he joins McCarthy in the May 28 primary against Johnson, the vote will be split and "the President will undoubtedly get the highest vote"—and with it the state's 35 convention delegates.

By adding Indiana and South Dakota, McCarthy now is running in 9 of the 15 presidential primaries.

Kennedy has indicated he would make a strong effort, if he runs in the nonprimary states. But McCarthy aides said they are at work there, too.

Support and Criticism

Meanwhile, there were indications of support for McCarthy and criticism of Kennedy.

"It's a shame Kennedy chose to take a free ride on McCarthy's back," actor Paul Newman said. "He should have had the courage to take his stand earlier." Newman and his actress wife Joanne Woodward have been working for McCarthy—but said they may switch to Kennedy.

In South Bend, Ind., James A. Bogle, chairman of the Hoosiers for a Democratic Alternative, which McCarthy is scheduled to address Saturday, said he didn't know how many from his organization might support Kennedy.

"Nobody in our organization is encouraging Kennedy to run," he added.

McCarthy's decision to enter the Indiana and South Dakota primaries was welcomed by Democratic Sens. Vance Hartke of Indiana and George S. McGovern of South Dakota, both allied with McCarthy's criticism of the Vietnam war policy. Neither expressed outright support for McCarthy, however.

Before heading for Indiana, McCarthy scheduled speeches in Wisconsin today and Saturday.

In Wisconsin, National Committeeman David Carley urged President Johnson to speak in the state to help his cause in the primary. Rep. Clement Zablocki of Milwaukee, the only Democratic congressman in the state fully supporting Johnson, said he doubted the President would come but voiced hope for help from Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Meanwhile, Richard M. Nixon made three stops during a one-day visit to Wisconsin. He said his analysis of the New Hampshire primary vote is that millions of Democrats will join independents and Republicans in electing a GOP president in November.

Allies Launch

over North Vietnam Thursday.

To the South B52 bombers flew three raids Thursday night against enemy troop concentrations two miles south of the Marine combat base at Khe Sanh. Enemy shelling of Khe Sanh, averaging 300 rounds a day in recent weeks, dropped off to only 85 rounds Thursday.

The Marine base at Dong Ha, below the eastern sector of the DMZ, was among the other targets for enemy artillerymen. The U.S. Command said the base took 15 rounds of 130mm artillery late Thursday, but there was no word of damage or casualties.

The Leathernecks' coastal supply point at Cua Viet, between Dong Ha and the DMZ, was rocked by 40 rounds of 140mm rockets that streaked into the command post of a Marine amphibious tractor battalion. No material damage was reported and casualties were light, the U.S. Command said.

A U.S. assault boat patrolling near the mouth of the Cua Viet River hit an enemy mine and sank Thursday. Two of the crew were killed and a third was wounded.

Guerrillas Blast Span

Other artillery attacks were made against the Quang Tri military airfield three miles south of Dong Ha, hit by 15 rounds, and the Katum Special Forces camp in the highlands 70 miles northwest of Saigon, slammed by 90 rounds. In both attacks casualties and damages were reported as light.

Viet Cong guerrillas blasted a bridge northwest of Bac Lieu, a provincial capital in the Mekong Delta. Traffic was blocked on the main road into Saigon 140 miles to the northeast.

A U.S. Marine reconnaissance patrol was credited Thursday with thwarting a possible rocket attack on the Marine headquarters and air base at Da Nang. The patrol spotted 200 enemy troops hauling mortars and rockets along the An Hoa Valley toward Da Nang. The Leathernecks called in artillery and reported 15 enemy soldiers killed and 22 secondary explosions.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

SKIPPED HEART BEATS NO THREAT TO HEALTH

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

Q—I have had extrasystoles for over nine years. They are worse after I eat. The doctors tell me not to worry about them. Is there any way to stop them?

A—Extrasystoles or skipped beats are often more noticeable after a meal or when one is excited. Since they are no threat to your health, the best treatment is to learn to ignore them just as you have learned to ignore the taking of air into your lungs 18 or 20 times a minute.

Q—I have attacks of PAT which come on with no warning. When I have an attack, it is hard to speak. I get nervous and breathless but have no pain. My doctor can stop an carotid sinus. Would it be safe for me to do this myself?

A—Paroxysmal atrial (auricular) tachycardia (PAT) is characterized by sudden attacks of rapid pulse — about 160 beats a minute. These attacks are frightening rather than dangerous.

In some victims squeezing the carotid sinus in the neck gives prompt relief and since your doctor can't be with you every time you have an attack he should teach you to do this yourself. Deep pressure on the eyeballs may be equally effective. Guanethidine or quinidine (both are prescription drugs) may be used if these methods don't work.

Amazon Corps Covers Jungle

By MARIO DE ARATANHA
Associated Press Writer

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazilian university students are being scattered through the jungle in a kind of domestic peace corps program. Most are in the Amazon region.

More than 700 students have already taken part in a joint program sponsored by nine government ministries to help the poor of Brazil's underdeveloped interior.

"Our aim is not only to provide assistance to the local people, but also to put future technicians in touch with their country's reality," says Army Lt. Col. Mauro Costa Rodrigues.

Rodrigues is the executive coordinator of the "Rondon Project," started in December, which is responsible for putting the students in the Amazon jungles and in the drought regions of the Northeast.

The students, with an average age of 23, are all volunteers. They are divided in groups of four to 10, and sent to frontier military posts and religious missions in the jungles or in the "caatingas," the semi-arid regions of the Northeast.

On Frontier

Most of them are nearing graduation as doctors, dentists, veterinarians, agricultural engineers, teachers, economists, geographers and geologists.

So far, the project has reached 97 settlements in the jungles and in the desert.

The Rondon Project, initiated by the Interior Ministry, is carried on in close cooperation with the ministries of Army, Navy, Air Force, Education, Health, Transportation, Agriculture and Planning. It is also aided by the government's Superintendencies for Development of the Amazon and of the Northeast and by almost all Brazilian universities and state governments.

Aid and Study

After arriving at its final base, a group has the task of providing assistance to the population, in addition to undertaking research of the area.

Among the items studied by each group are: topography, rivers and lakes, soil, mineral resources, climate, flora, fauna, colonization, population distribution, agriculture, forests, fishing and hunting possibilities, existing and potential local industries, transportation and commerce.

When the students return to their schools, they prepare reports on their studies and conclusions, which are used by the universities and by the government in future development efforts.

Colonel Rodrigues says that about 200,000 new cruzeiros (about $63,000) were spent to finance the first part of the project, carried on during the first two months of this year.

Most of the money came from the federal government and the University Movement for Economic-Social Development, a private foundation.

A large part of the medical supplies were donated by private laboratories, and equipment and transportation were provided by the military.

Kennedy Says

through his courage and leadership, the right and duty to be supported," said Gerald N. Hill, council president and co-chairman of the McCarthy campaign in California.

At least one of Kennedy's closest political advisers meanwhile is urging him against risking his political future by making a race for the Democratic nomination this year.

"It's entirely possible," said the informant, who asked not to be identified, "that he will announce he has reassessed the situation and decided not to make the race.

"I, for one, don't think he can take the nomination from the President if Johnson decides he wants to stay in office," the adviser said, adding he expects Kennedy to make up his mind in two or three days.

McCarthy, indicating he was distinctly cool to the possibility of a Kennedy candidacy, said it might divide the bloc of opposition to Johnson's war policies and help the President win renomination.

The Minnesotan voiced confidence he could win the California primary even if Kennedy makes it a three-way race. He suggested Kennedy might take more support from Johnson than from his own forces.

He said he wasn't sure what the effect would be in Oregon. But in Portland, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said he has written Kennedy that if he joins McCarthy in the May 28 primary against Johnson, the vote will be split and "the President will undoubtedly get the highest vote"—and with it the state's 35 convention delegates.

By adding Indiana and South Dakota, McCarthy now is running in 9 of the 15 presidential primaries.

Kennedy has indicated he would make a strong effort, if he runs in the nonprimary states. But McCarthy aides said they are at work there, too.

Support and Criticism

Meanwhile, there were indications of support for McCarthy and criticism of Kennedy.

"It's a shame Kennedy chose to take a free ride on McCarthy's back," actor Paul Newman said. "He should have had the courage to take his stand earlier." Newman and his actress wife Joanne Woodward have been working for McCarthy—but said they may switch to Kennedy.

In South Bend, Ind., James A. Bogle, chairman of the Hoosiers for a Democratic Alternative, which McCarthy is scheduled to address Saturday, said he didn't know how many from his organization might support Kennedy.

"Nobody in our organization is encouraging Kennedy to run," he added.

McCarthy's decision to enter the Indiana and South Dakota primaries was welcomed by Democratic Sens. Vance Hartke of Indiana and George S. McGovern of South Dakota, both allied with McCarthy's criticism of the Vietnam war policy. Neither expressed outright support for McCarthy, however.

Before heading for Indiana, McCarthy scheduled speeches in Wisconsin today and Saturday.

In Wisconsin, National Committeeman David Carley urged President Johnson to speak in the state to help his cause in the primary. Rep. Clement Zablocki of Milwaukee, the only Democratic congressman in the state fully supporting Johnson, said he doubted the President would come but voiced hope for help from Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Meanwhile, Richard M. Nixon made three stops during a one-day visit to Wisconsin. He said his analysis of the New Hampshire primary vote is that millions of Democrats will join independents and Republicans in electing a GOP president in November.

Allies Launch

over North Vietnam Thursday.

To the South B52 bombers flew three raids Thursday night against enemy troop concentrations two miles south of the Marine combat base at Khe Sanh. Enemy shelling of Khe Sanh, averaging 300 rounds a day in recent weeks, dropped off to only 85 rounds Thursday.

The Marine base at Dong Ha, below the eastern sector of the DMZ, was among the other targets for enemy artillerymen. The U.S. Command said the base took 15 rounds of 130mm artillery late Thursday, but there was no word of damage or casualties.

The Leathernecks' coastal supply point at Cua Viet, between Dong Ha and the DMZ, was rocked by 40 rounds of 140mm rockets that streaked into the command post of a Marine amphibious tractor battalion. No material damage was reported and casualties were light, the U.S. Command said.

A U.S. assault boat patrolling near the mouth of the Cua Viet River hit an enemy mine and sank Thursday. Two of the crew were killed and a third was wounded.

Guerrillas Blast Span

Other artillery attacks were made against the Quang Tri military airfield three miles south of Dong Ha, hit by 15 rounds, and the Katum Special Forces camp in the highlands 70 miles northwest of Saigon, slammed by 90 rounds. In both attacks casualties and damages were reported as light.

Viet Cong guerrillas blasted a bridge northwest of Bac Lieu, a provincial capital in the Mekong Delta. Traffic was blocked on the main road into Saigon 140 miles to the northeast.

A U.S. Marine reconnaissance patrol was credited Thursday with thwarting a possible rocket attack on the Marine headquarters and air base at Da Nang. The patrol spotted 200 enemy troops hauling mortars and rockets along the An Hoa Valley toward Da Nang. The Leathernecks called in artillery and reported 15 enemy soldiers killed and 22 secondary explosions.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

Q—I have had extrasystoles for over nine years. They are worse after I eat. The doctors tell me not to worry about them. Is there any way to stop them?

A—Extrasystoles or skipped beats are often more noticeable after a meal or when one is excited. Since they are no threat to your health, the best treatment is to learn to ignore them just as you have learned to ignore the taking of air into your lungs 18 or 20 times a minute.

Q—I have attacks of PAT which come on with no warning. When I have an attack, it is hard to speak. I get nervous and breathless but have no pain. My doctor can stop an carotid sinus. Would it be safe for me to do this myself?

A—Paroxysmal atrial (auricular) tachycardia (PAT) is characterized by sudden attacks of rapid pulse — about 160 beats a minute. These attacks are frightening rather than dangerous.

In some victims squeezing the carotid sinus in the neck gives prompt relief and since your doctor can't be with you every time you have an attack he should teach you to do this yourself. Deep pressure on the eyeballs may be equally effective. Guanethidine or quinidine (both are prescription drugs) may be used if these methods don't work.

Health for All

Time for a Breather

For tips on efficient housekeeping, your nearest Eskimo is the man to see. From a practical standpoint he's "got it made." Scorning roundabout methods, he solves all heating and cooking problems by building a fire in the center of his igloo. The smoke rises and exits through a hole in the top; Mr. Eskimo has clean, warm air to breathe, and heat on which to prepare his dinner.

It works very nicely most of the year. But sometimes in the spring, just before breakup, wet snow may fall into the fire or wrong-way winds disrupt the ventilation system. Then the igloo walls get black with soot; eyes, nose and lungs fill up with smoke; and Mr. and Mrs. Eskimo and all the little Eskimos have to go chocking and stumbling into the fresh air outside.

Down here on the mainland we, in our supposedly advanced civilization, do a more efficient job. We smoke up not single dwellings but whole cities. Not all of our smoke fumes are bad for health; just a major part—sufficiently major to sicken or possibly kill whole segments of the population if given sufficient time. If air pollution control continues at its present funereal rate of speed we may all have to go choking and stumbling into outer space. The trouble is there's no air there, either.

Fumes from residential and industrial chimneys, car, truck and bus exhausts, bonfires of burning trash, and tobacco in various forms continue to fill the air with waste gases and particles. Some goood control laws have been passed, but they require follow-up. Needed most of all is vigorous enforcement. Air pollution control is now high up on the list of your Christmas Seal association's goals. You can help. Write, call, or drop around and ask what you can do.

Health for All

Time for a Breather

For tips on efficient housekeeping, your nearest Eskimo is the man to see. From a practical standpoint he's "got it made." Scorning roundabout methods, he solves all heating and cooking problems by building a fire in the center of his igloo. The smoke rises and exits through a hole in the top; Mr. Eskimo has clean, warm air to breathe, and heat on which to prepare his dinner.

It works very nicely most of the year. But sometimes in the spring, just before breakup, wet snow may fall into the fire or wrong-way winds disrupt the ventilation system. Then the igloo walls get black with soot; eyes, nose and lungs fill up with smoke; and Mr. and Mrs. Eskimo and all the little Eskimos have to go chocking and stumbling into the fresh air outside.

Down here on the mainland we, in our supposedly advanced civilization, do a more efficient job. We smoke up not single dwellings but whole cities. Not all of our smoke fumes are bad for health; just a major part—sufficiently major to sicken or possibly kill whole segments of the population if given sufficient time. If air pollution control continues at its present funereal rate of speed we may all have to go choking and stumbling into outer space. The trouble is there's no air there, either.

Fumes from residential and industrial chimneys, car, truck and bus exhausts, bonfires of burning trash, and tobacco in various forms continue to fill the air with waste gases and particles. Some goood control laws have been passed, but they require follow-up. Needed most of all is vigorous enforcement. Air pollution control is now high up on the list of your Christmas Seal association's goals. You can help. Write, call, or drop around and ask what you can do.

Red Czech Boss Worried, Key Supporter Takes Life

Vladimir Janko, deputy defense minister, took his life Thursday just 24 hours after an urgent Cabinet discussion of the flight of Maj. Gen. Jan Sejna to the United States. Reliable sources said Janko, who won the Order of Hero as a World War II troop commander, shot himself through the head in his apartment.

Both Janko and his boss, Defense Minister Bohumir Lomsky, had been indirectly implicated in Sejna's flight after the general was accused of an illegal deal in sales of grass seed to peasants. The Cabinet hearing had been called for Lomsky to defend himself, and the Cabinet expressed dissatisfaction with his defense.

Earlier Thursday another Novotny supporter, Michal Chudik, a leading conservative member of the party hierarchy, resigned as head of the Slovak National Council. Chudik, 53, had apparently abandoned hope that Novotny would be able to ward off liberal pressures and keep the figurehead presidency.

The Slovaks, who make up about one third of Czechoslovakia's 15 million population, have been pressing hard for liberalization and for greater ethnic autonomy.

The new liberal leaders under Alexander Dubcek, who supplanted Novotny as party chief in January, say Sejna was involved in an abortive attempt to mobilize armored troops to keep Novotny in the party leadership.

Sejna is now somewhere in the United States under U.S. government protection. Czechoslovakia's ambassador in Washington asked the State Department Wednesday for his extradition, and the department asked for documentary evidence against him.

Ambassador Karel Duda said Sejna is accused of embezzlement, obtaining money by false pretenses and fraud.

NEW GROUP — A musical group, 'All That the Name Implies' will perform in a concert Saturday, March 16 at the Woodstock Artists Association Gallery. The group features five vocalists with bass and guitar accompaniment. Four are local residents: the leader, Kip Feva; tenor, Roy Jimenes; alto, Marlene Ryan; lyric soprano, Melinda Parks. Rhythm guitarist, Alan Bree commutes from New York City to Woodstock to rehearse with the group.

Refusal Predicted For Warplane Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon sources predict the Senate Armed Services Committee will refuse to authorize money to produce trouble-plagued F111B warplanes for the Navy.

Instead, the sources said, they anticipate the powerful committee will substitute funds to develop an alternative to the Navy's F111B, currently overweight and expensive.

Such a move would not grieve senior Navy admirals whose feelings on the F111B range from misgivings to opposition.

The sources, familiar with the course of closed hearings, said Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., and other committee members appear to be trying to force the issue.

The committee may act, it was said, even before Navy engineers report early next month on four contractor proposals for new planes to replace the F111B —Navy version of the long controversial TFX.

An Open Question

There are indications these engineering studies will be vitally important in any Navy recommendation to top defense officials. What will happen when the Navy recommendations reach top civilian levels in the Defense Department is an open question.

Robert S. McNamara, who as defense secretary forced the F111s on both the Navy and Air Force, no longer is running the Defense Department. His successor, Clark M. Clifford, has not yet indicated publicly how he stands on the question of pushing ahead with the Navy model.

But Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul H. Nitze, a former Navy secretary and strong supporter of the F111B, still is in office—and Navy admirals fear he may put up a fight to preserve the plane.

It is reported that Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, Chief of Naval Operations; and Vice Adm. Thomas F. Connolly, Navy air chief, told the committee March 4 they would rather not express an opinion until they see the engineering studies.

But, it was said, when Stennis told the admirals the committee wanted their opinions on the TFX now, they expressed a preference for another plane.

The Air Force's F111A, although escalating in cost, has gained general acceptance. Six F111As are due in Thailand within several days before being sent on their first combat missions.

Weight Problem

The F111B's biggest problem is weight—reportedly about 80,000 pounds. The Navy wanted something in the 55,000—60,000 pound range.

The revolutionary feature of the F111 in all its variations is a wing that can be retracted close to the fuselage for speeds up to 1,650 miles per hour or extended full length for takeoffs and landings on short fields and carriers.

The Navy studies aim at possible development of lighter fuselages into which would be installed the F111B's engines, its special electronic gear and the Phoenix air-to-air missile, especially designed for the Navy TFX.

The sources said they believed the Armed Services Committee will deny authorization for $350 million being sought by the Johnson administration to build 30 F111Bs toward an eventual Navy fleet of 270.

They said they believe the committee will substitute about $200 or $250 million for research and development on the alternative plane concepts.

On Easter Sunday a service of Holy Communion will be held at 9:30 a.m. and the festival service with special seasonal music and sermon will be held at 11 a.m.

The three-hour Good Friday service from 12 noon to 3 p.m. will be held in Saugerties Reformed Church.

Bit O'Green

Shamrocks added a St. Patrick's Day flavor to the West Saugerties Community Club ham and cabbage supper held recently.

Harold Wilfert, vice-president, presided at a business meeting following the supper.

The next meeting was scheduled for April 8.

'Shoplifting' Chamber's Topic for Next Tuesday

"The Detection and Prevention of Shoplifting," will be the theme of the next regular monthly meeting of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, to be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday, March 19, at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The meeting will feature a sound, color film on the detection of various shoplifting techniques. The half-hour film will be followed by a panel discussion featuring city police Detective William Slover, City Judge Hubert A. Richter and several retailers including George Manson, manager of the Wall Street F. W. Woolworth & Company store. The panel discussion will be followed by a question-and-answer period where the audience may ask questions concerning their rights and responsibilities in regard to shoplifters. Several publications concerning the reduction of shoplifting losses by the Small Business Administration and the New York State Council of Retail Merchants, will be distributed at the meeting.

In announcing the program, Chamber Executive Vice President Peter O. Allen noted that shoplifting has become an increasingly large expense to retailers across the country in recent years. Allen said that the loss of merchandise is usually noted on the inventory as shrinkage. On the balance sheet, this "shrinkage" has to be recognized as dollars, taken right off the top of the profit column. Allen said that in the case of most retail stores, shoplifting losses of as little as 3 per cent can actually mean a reduction of profits by 20 per cent or more. Allen said that the Chamber is interested in assisting the retailers of the Kingston area in reducing these losses.

Tickets have been issued to all interested members of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce. Allen indicated that interested retailers who are not members of the Chamber of Commerce may apply to him at the Chamber office for free tickets. No one will be admitted to the meeting without ticket. Anyone wishing further information is invited to call the Chamber office.

Engineer Panel Slated at UCCC

Engineering Today is the topic of a panel discussion that will be conducted March 21 at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College.

The panel discussion, sponsored by the Mid-Hudson Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, is open to both high school and college students. It has the goal of explaining to the students the duties of engineers and outlining opportunities open to them in this profession.

The program will start at 7:30 o'clock in the Teaching Auditorium of the John Burroughs Science Building.

The three engineers who will take part in the panel discussion are Robert Hershey, manager of underwater acoustics and transducers of Weston Components Division, Poughkeepsie; Walter Budny, an industrial engineer of International Business Machines Corporation, Kingston, and Dick Landis, a sales engineer of The DeLaval Separator Co., Poughkeepsie. Professor Walter Hopkins will be the master of ceremonies. Professor Hopkins is chairman of the engineering technologies division at the college.

The division offers five technical programs. They include engineering science, a transfer program; electronic technology, mechanical technology, and industrial administration, two-year career programs, and drafting, a one-year diploma program.

Pleads Guilty

Charged with harrassment on complaint of a Kingston woman, Thomas Parisella, 24, of 38 Friendly Lane, Poughkeepsie, was arrested Thursday by Kingston state police on a warrant issued by Marbletown Town Justice Harry Scarpati. Parisella pleaded guilty and was placed on probation for six months. The complainant was identified by troopers as Gayle Booth, no address listed.

Vladimir Janko, deputy defense minister, took his life Thursday just 24 hours after an urgent Cabinet discussion of the flight of Maj. Gen. Jan Sejna to the United States. Reliable sources said Janko, who won the Order of Hero as a World War II troop commander, shot himself through the head in his apartment.

Both Janko and his boss, Defense Minister Bohumir Lomsky, had been indirectly implicated in Sejna's flight after the general was accused of an illegal deal in sales of grass seed to peasants. The Cabinet hearing had been called for Lomsky to defend himself, and the Cabinet expressed dissatisfaction with his defense.

Earlier Thursday another Novotny supporter, Michal Chudik, a leading conservative member of the party hierarchy, resigned as head of the Slovak National Council. Chudik, 53, had apparently abandoned hope that Novotny would be able to ward off liberal pressures and keep the figurehead presidency.

The Slovaks, who make up about one third of Czechoslovakia's 15 million population, have been pressing hard for liberalization and for greater ethnic autonomy.

The new liberal leaders under Alexander Dubcek, who supplanted Novotny as party chief in January, say Sejna was involved in an abortive attempt to mobilize armored troops to keep Novotny in the party leadership.

Sejna is now somewhere in the United States under U.S. government protection. Czechoslovakia's ambassador in Washington asked the State Department Wednesday for his extradition, and the department asked for documentary evidence against him.

Ambassador Karel Duda said Sejna is accused of embezzlement, obtaining money by false pretenses and fraud.

NEW GROUP — A musical group, 'All That the Name Implies' will perform in a concert Saturday, March 16 at the Woodstock Artists Association Gallery. The group features five vocalists with bass and guitar accompaniment. Four are local residents: the leader, Kip Feva; tenor, Roy Jimenes; alto, Marlene Ryan; lyric soprano, Melinda Parks. Rhythm guitarist, Alan Bree commutes from New York City to Woodstock to rehearse with the group.

Refusal Predicted For Warplane Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon sources predict the Senate Armed Services Committee will refuse to authorize money to produce trouble-plagued F111B warplanes for the Navy.

Instead, the sources said, they anticipate the powerful committee will substitute funds to develop an alternative to the Navy's F111B, currently overweight and expensive.

Such a move would not grieve senior Navy admirals whose feelings on the F111B range from misgivings to opposition.

The sources, familiar with the course of closed hearings, said Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., and other committee members appear to be trying to force the issue.

The committee may act, it was said, even before Navy engineers report early next month on four contractor proposals for new planes to replace the F111B —Navy version of the long controversial TFX.

An Open Question

There are indications these engineering studies will be vitally important in any Navy recommendation to top defense officials. What will happen when the Navy recommendations reach top civilian levels in the Defense Department is an open question.

Robert S. McNamara, who as defense secretary forced the F111s on both the Navy and Air Force, no longer is running the Defense Department. His successor, Clark M. Clifford, has not yet indicated publicly how he stands on the question of pushing ahead with the Navy model.

But Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul H. Nitze, a former Navy secretary and strong supporter of the F111B, still is in office—and Navy admirals fear he may put up a fight to preserve the plane.

It is reported that Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, Chief of Naval Operations; and Vice Adm. Thomas F. Connolly, Navy air chief, told the committee March 4 they would rather not express an opinion until they see the engineering studies.

But, it was said, when Stennis told the admirals the committee wanted their opinions on the TFX now, they expressed a preference for another plane.

The Air Force's F111A, although escalating in cost, has gained general acceptance. Six F111As are due in Thailand within several days before being sent on their first combat missions.

Weight Problem

The F111B's biggest problem is weight—reportedly about 80,000 pounds. The Navy wanted something in the 55,000—60,000 pound range.

The revolutionary feature of the F111 in all its variations is a wing that can be retracted close to the fuselage for speeds up to 1,650 miles per hour or extended full length for takeoffs and landings on short fields and carriers.

The Navy studies aim at possible development of lighter fuselages into which would be installed the F111B's engines, its special electronic gear and the Phoenix air-to-air missile, especially designed for the Navy TFX.

The sources said they believed the Armed Services Committee will deny authorization for $350 million being sought by the Johnson administration to build 30 F111Bs toward an eventual Navy fleet of 270.

They said they believe the committee will substitute about $200 or $250 million for research and development on the alternative plane concepts.

Target Date Unpredictable

Zena School: Confusion, Delay

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Confusion and delay relating to the proposed new Zena Elementary School in the Town of Woodstock nas intensified to the point that a target date for the start of construction is unpredictable.

Bids for the school construction were opened Dec. 15, 1967. Stanley R. Benjamin, Inc., of Long Beach, was low bidder with a figure of $819,940. William E. Forrest, Inc., of Poughkeepsie was second low bidder with an estimate of $823,000.

On Jan. 2, State Education Commissioner Dr. James E. Allen Jr., issued a stay order pending an appeal by Forrest, and on Feb. 26 the commissioner sustained the appeal, set aside the original specifications and ordered the Kingston Board of Education to reject all bids, advertise for new bids for all phases of the work and to prepare new specifications.

Show Cause Order

Harry Halverson Associates, architects, board members and the school district attorney, prepared new specifications, which was approved this week by the State Education Department.

Subsequently, Supreme Court Justice John H. Pennock in Albany County, signed an order on Tuesday, directing Dr. Allen, the State Education Department and the local school board to show cause why a judgment should not be made annulling and vacating the commissioner's decision on the ground it is "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable."

Petition for the show cause order was made by the Long Beach contracteor, who seeks to have Dr. Allen's decision set aside pursuant to Article 78 of the Civil Practice Law and Rules Vacating and Setting aside a decision of the commissioner.

Justice Pennock's order further calls upon Dr. Allen to show cause why Benjamin should not have further relief as might be just and proper and equitable.

'Stays' Action

Justice Pennock has "stayed" the commissioner, State Education Department and the Kingston Board of Education from formally rejecting the original bids and specifications and from ordering the preparation of new specifications as ordered by Dr. Allen in his Feb. 26 decision.

Forrest had petitioned the commission on Dec. 21, 1967 for a stay of any action by the Board of Education relating to the awarding of bids on the ground that the plans and specifications for the general construction contract were not in compliance with law and regulations of Commissioner Allen.

The stay order was signed by the commissioner on Jan. 2 and on Feb. 26 he sustained Forrest's appeal and ordered school district officials to reject all bids.

Benjamin contended that from the outset of the appeal by the Poughkeepsie contractor until the decision of the commissioner, the Long Beach firm never received a copy of the papers, the stay order of Allen or his decision. Benjamin further pointed out that although his firm had a substantial pecuniary interest and would suffer great financial harm the firm was not allowed to submit any papers to the commissioner for him to consider in rendering his final determination.

Forrest's petition noted that vaious alleged "violations of law and mistakes" were in the plans and specifications prepared for the school district and contended that Section 101 of the General Municipal Law requires the inclusion of the sanitary sewage and storm water systems in the plumbing contract, not the general construction contract.

The Board of Education countered in an answer contending that the two items questioned were properly included in the general contract, and that that procedure had been utilized before in plans approved by Commissioner Allen.

Benjamin points out that despite the fact that no plumber challenged the original plans and specifications, and that Forrest submitted a bid according to the specifications, Dr. Allen accepted an appeal from Forrest and subsequently determined the plans and specifications were improperly drawn.

The Long Beach contractor contended that the State Education Department on numerous occasions had approved specifications for school construction which included the identical sanitary sewage and/or storm drainage work in the general construction bid.

Cites 16 Projects

Benjamin cited 16 projects previously approved by Dr. Allen with identical specifications as the original Zena school specifications.

Name Is Spike Jones, But Different Music

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The name is the same but the music has been changed to give it a rocking beat.

The musical madness of the late Spike Jones has been passed on to his namesake son, a self-assured 19-year-old who hopes to cater to today's diverse musical tastes.

"Naturally I get compared to my dad," says Spike Jr., "but I'm obviously not like him. I expect to play about two-thirds in his comedy style and one-third of my own. It's not a hard-rock. Not that I don't like hard-rock; it's groovy, but it's just not my bag, to coin a phrase."

Young Spike is hunting for his own bag, and he leaves soon for some engagements in Canada to try out his new organization. He may well be the only bandleader who does his schoolwork on the road. "I'm going nights to Santa Monica City College," he explained, "and I work it out with the teachers when I have to go out of town. They give me the advance assignments and I keep up with the course while I'm traveling."

The elder Spike made a good thing of his School of Musical Depreciation for 20 years. He gave differing versions of how he got the idea for his slam-bang style. One story was that he hit the wrong note on the chimes while playing drums on the Bing Crosby radio show; the clinker caused guffaws.

In our last interview, Spike gave another account: He saw the comic possibilities with music when Igor Stravinsky walked across a concert stage with squeaky shoes. Whatever the inspiration, he went on to earn a fortune with music punctuated by pistol shots and irreverent versions of "Cocktails for Two," "Chloe," "Holiday for Strings," etc.

"Dad was set against my following his footsteps," says young Spike. "He wanted me to be a lawyer. But when he got sick at Harrah's Lake Tahoe in 1965, I went up to take over the band; I knew all the routines by heart, so that was no problem. Later dad saw me do a couple of engagements, and he was pleased and happy with how I handled myself."

He has been organizing a new band, and he explained his reasoning: "If I tried to lead my dad's old band, it would look strange—I look even younger than 19. So I've put together a group of musicians who range from 19 to 23. There are seven of them; I found out it was too expensive to travel with 12. I won't use any brass unless we play someplace where they have a house band."

Spike has made one attempt at the recording field, but it was abortive: "I did a number for Viva Records about the so-called fad of scraping banana peels, baking the stuff in an oven and smoking the result to get high. It was a lot of nonsense, of course, and the song was aimed at putting it down. But the radio stations thought we were serious and they banned the record.

It's not easy to be funny nowadays. But I'm still going to try."

Target Date Unpredictable

Zena School: Confusion, Delay

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Confusion and delay relating to the proposed new Zena Elementary School in the Town of Woodstock has intensified to the point that a target date for the start of construction is unpredictable.

Bids for the school construction were opened Dec. 15, 1967. Stanley R. Benjamin, Inc., of Long Beach, was low bidder with a figure of $819,940. William E. Forrest, Inc., of Poughkeepsie was second low bidder with an estimate of $823,000.

On Jan. 2, State Education Commissioner Dr. James E. Allen Jr., issued a stay order pending an appeal by Forrest, and on Feb. 26 the commissioner sustained the appeal, set aside the original specifications and ordered the Kingston Board of Education to reject all bids, advertise for new bids for all phases of the work and to prepare new specifications.

Show Cause Order

Harry Halverson Associates, architects, board members and the school district attorney, prepared new specifications, which was approved this week by the State Education Department.

Subsequently, Supreme Court Justice John H. Pennock in Albany County, signed an order on Tuesday, directing Dr. Allen, the State Education Department and the local school board to show cause why a judgment should not be made annulling and vacating the commissioner's decision on the ground it is "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable."

Petition for the show cause order was made by the Long Beach contracteor, who seeks to have Dr. Allen's decision set aside pursuant to Article 78 of the Civil Practice Law and Rules Vacating and Setting aside a decision of the commissioner.

Justice Pennock's order further calls upon Dr. Allen to show cause why Benjamin should not have further relief as might be just and proper and equitable.

'Stays' Action

Justice Pennock has "stayed" the commissioner, State Education Department and the Kingston Board of Education from formally rejecting the original bids and specifications and from ordering the preparation of new specifications as ordered by Dr. Allen in his Feb. 26 decision.

Forrest had petitioned the commission on Dec. 21, 1967 for a stay of any action by the Board of Education relating to the awarding of bids on the ground that the plans and specifications for the general construction contract were not in compliance with law and regulations of Commissioner Allen.

The stay order was signed by the commissioner on Jan. 2 and on Feb. 26 he sustained Forrest's appeal and ordered school district officials to reject all bids.

Benjamin contended that from the outset of the appeal by the Poughkeepsie contractor until the decision of the commissioner, the Long Beach firm never received a copy of the papers, the stay order of Allen or his decision. Benjamin further pointed out that although his firm had a substantial pecuniary interest and would suffer great financial harm the firm was not allowed to submit any papers to the commissioner for him to consider in rendering his final determination.

Forrest's petition noted that vaious alleged "violations of law and mistakes" were in the plans and specifications prepared for the school district and contended that Section 101 of the General Municipal Law requires the inclusion of the sanitary sewage and storm water systems in the plumbing contract, not the general construction contract.

The Board of Education countered in an answer contending that the two items questioned were properly included in the general contract, and that that procedure had been utilized before in plans approved by Commissioner Allen.

Benjamin points out that despite the fact that no plumber challenged the original plans and specifications, and that Forrest submitted a bid according to the specifications, Dr. Allen accepted an appeal from Forrest and subsequently determined the plans and specifications were improperly drawn.

The Long Beach contractor contended that the State Education Department on numerous occasions had approved specifications for school construction which included the identical sanitary sewage and/or storm drainage work in the general construction bid.

Cites 16 Projects

Benjamin cited 16 projects previously approved by Dr. Allen with identical specifications as the original Zena school specifications.

The school projects included the M. Clifford Miller Jr. High School in Lake Katrine and the Kingston Elementary Schools (5 and 6). The other projects included:

Open Houses Scheduled

Benedictine's Spellman Pavilion Dedication in May

Dedication of the Cardinal Spellman Pavilion—the new addition to Benedictine Hospital, will be held on Sunday, May 19 at 3 p.m. with an elaborate program to be presented before an anticipated large audience of church dignitaries of all faiths, public officials and the public.

Archbishop-Designate Coming

Archbishop Terrence James Cooke, who was named by Pope Paul VI on March 8 to succeed the late Francis Cardinal Spellman as Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, will be the honored guest at the ceremonies.

Co-chairmen of the committee in charge of arrangements for the dedication are Lawrence A. Quilty and Clifford A. Henze.

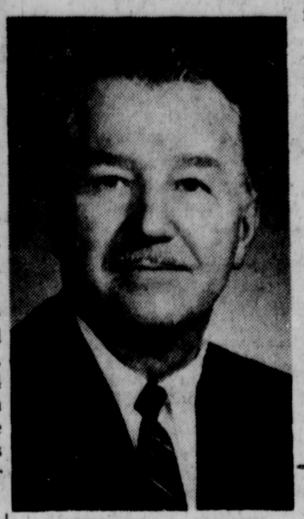

Meanwhile, open house programs have been scheduled and preparations have been made for the transfer of patients to the new facility.

Sister Mary Charles said the first open house program will be held Monday, March 18 from 7 to 9 p.m. for the governing board, advisory board, physicians and dentists and their wives, clergy, hospital department heads and public officials.

Public Inspection March 24

Open house for hospital employes will be on March 21 and 22 from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. each day. Sunday, March 24 has been designated for open house for the public, who are invited by Sister Mary Charles to visit the hospital and tour the new facility.

The first transfer of patients to the new facility is planned for the Feast of St. Benedict, Thursday, March 21. On that day mothers and new-born babies will be moved into the new maternity area on the top floor of the new pavilion.

According to plans other patients will be transferred and admitted to the medical-surgical area on Tuesday, March 26, and on that day all other departments assigned to the new facility will be open.

136 Added Beds

The Pavilion will provide for 136 additional new beds, all electrically operated and arranged so that they can be controlled by the patient. The building is fully air conditioned with windows throughout made with tinted glass.

The color decor throughout the interior of the Pavilion is beautiful and an eye-catcher for those who tour through the building to examine the various areas and equipment.

Most of the rooms are semi-private but at the request of the patient may be converted into a private facility. Four deluxe rooms, with private desks, may be converted into an adjoining suite if requested.

The fourth floor is designated as the maternity area with a large recovery room which adjoins the labor and delivery rooms. On that floor there are nurseries, a new formula room, a conference area for the nursing staff, utility room, the nurses' station consisting of an office for the head nurse and an adjoining area for physicians with facilities for chart recording.

'Dad-to-Be' Waiting Room

A new feature is a large waiting room for fathers of newborn babies and a solarium for mothers. A permanent television is available in each room of the new facility and a telephone is handily placed at each bedside for the convenience of the patient.

The hospital is the first in the area to have Executone installed to permit the patient to communicate to the nurse at her desk and on which the nurse can respond to the patient.

The floor below the maternity area is designated as the surgical floor for surgical patients, and it is connected with a ramp leading to the recovery room area.

The rehabilitation area on the first floor—or ground floor—is supplied with grab bars and hand rails for use by patients needing them to assist them in moving about in wheel chairs, and the width of the doors is sufficient to provide easy movement of the chairs from one area to another.

A large sitting room is provided on that floor and hospital officials are hopeful that programs of various makeup may be presented from time to time as features for the patients in the rehabilitative area. The area is closely related with the physical therapy department.

Coffee, Gift Shop

The business and administrative offices, the admission department, information and the telephone facility is on the same floor. A spacious coffee shop and gift shop and an exceptionally large laboratory are other features that are available to assure thorough convenience.

An area for the director, and one for volunteers, a large locker room for volunteers and a "quiet room" are also available.

The administrator's office is combined with a large area that is attractively and comfortably furnished for board meetings. Adjoining that is a conference room, the assistant administrator's office, an office for secretaries and a large business area with its components.

The lower level floor is equipped with modern facilities for physical therapy, a large laboratory and office for pathologists. An up-to-date morgue is located on the same floor. An auxiliary power area and a beauty parlor for patients, employes and the public also is a novel feature on the lower level section of the new pavilion.

Local Libraries Eligible for Grants

Supplemental grants in the amount of $200 to each of 57 affiliated area libraries were voted by the Board of Trustees of the Mid-Hudson Libraries system service center at their March meeting.

Francis E. Doughty, first vice president, who presided, said that the purpose of the board in taking the action was to "Provide an incentive for further investment in growth and development and expansion of services on the part of member libraries, particularly smaller ones."

The money will be made available as part of a $18,000 special fund established by the board earlier this year for such purposes. Doughty said that the money was meant to be "auxiliary" in nature and should not be confused with cash, book, or other grants authorized this year as in the past by the Mid-Hudson Libraries Board of Trustees.

In accordance with the recommendations made by the Special Grants Committee, the balance of the budgeted fund, or $6,600 is to be made available upon special request by local member libraries for projects undertaken to promote library services.

For consideration to receive such grants, individual libraries must make written application. No one library may receive more than $1,000 for any given project. Applications will be reviewed and priorities established by a committee to be appointed and consisting of a representative from each of five counties: Columbia, Dutchess, Greene, Putnam and Ulster.

Exit Drills in the Home

Captain Hugh Greer of the Fire Prevention Bureau of the Kingston Fire Department, today announced the beginning of Operation Edith; Exit Drills in the Home.

Operation Edith outlines a pre-plan of action for families to take when fire strikes.

Available in booklet form, it urges families to study the normal and emergency escape routes that can be taken; how to get yourself and others out of windows; how to avoid smoke inhalation; to make plans for a central meeting place so that all may be accounted for and above all, Edith suggests periodic fire drills by the family and assigned duties to reduce panic when faced with a fire emergency.

Copies of Operation Edith may be obtained from the Kingston Fire Department by stopping at any one of the three stations located at 19 East O'Reilly Street, 88 Abeel Street or 267 Fair Street.

The supply is limited and therefore restricted to Kingston residents only. Distribution will be, first come, first served, Captain Greer said.

See Local Law Needed on Holiday Business

A local law will be necessary in order to regulate the nature of commercial and business activities on Memorial Day.

Members of the Veterans Committee of the County Legislature who met Wednesday night with representatives of county businesses were in general agreement that this would be fair to all. However, if there is no law then the stores would be guided by the action of competitors.

The large store managers indicated they would accept minor exceptions to the law which would permit some small stores selling items of necessity to remain open, Legislator Joseph Martorana, committee chairman said.

Martorana, R-9th District said a local law would regulate the nature of commercial and business activities on Memorial Day including the hours in which activities may be conducted.

Martorana said the committee has met with both veteran and business groups and will now meet to draft a local law for presentation to the County Legislature in April. A public hearing will be held prior to consideration for adoption.

Representing business were managers of most of the large stores in the county and representatives of business groups.

RVC Board Meets

Rondout Valley Central School District Board of Education will meet Tuesday, Mar. 19, at 7::30 p.m. in the high school library.

A report on elementary guidance wil be given by Robert A. Robertaccio, assistant superintendent of schools and elementary guidance counselor, Michael Polcari.

Accord Reached On State Wages

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller's administration and the Civil Service Employes Association have reached agreement on an across-the-board pay raise and other benefits for state employes valued at a total of $100 million.

The agreement announced Thursday provides a wage boost ranging from $600 to $2,500 for all state workers. Rockefeller had offered eight per cent and the employe organization sought 20 per cent.

Theodore Wenzl, CSEA president, recommended approval of the package as "a major forward step."

But spokesmen for New York State Employes Council 50, AFL-CIO, a rival employe organization, said the salary increase was "totally inadequate."

Under the agreement, the state's 140,000 employes also would receive $7 million in improved retirement benefits and $10 million through upgrading of job titles, geographic wage differentials and overtime pay

If the package is approved by the legislature, as required by the state's new Taylor Law, it would take effect April 1.

Negotiations had been halted last December, when Gov. Rockefeller's designation of the CSEA as exclusive bargaining agent for 124,000 state workers was challenged by other groups representing government employes.

They were resumed Monday as a result of court rulings upholding Rockefeller's designation.

The governor revised his original, eight - per - cent offer Wednesday.

It was not immediately clear, however, how the accord would affect Rockefeller's proposed, $5.5-billion budget. The governor had earmarked $60 million for increased wages and benefits for the state workers.

Administration sources voiced confidence Thursday that the fiscal program would be kept in balance but offered no details of how another $40 million could be provided.

Joe on Vietnam: Reds Insincere

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick (D-Ellenville) in a speech delivered in Brooklyn, declared yesterday that the "peace conditions offered thus far by the North Vietnamese leaders amount to a demand to evacuate first and negotiate later."

Resnick, seeking the Democratic nomination to run against incumbent Jacob K. Javits for the United States Senate, spoke at St. Joseph's College for Women.

He pointed out that while the North Vietnamese have most frequently accented the ceasing of bombing raids on the North as a preliminary to negotiations, they have also demanded that we cease "all other war-like acts." By their own definition, Resnick declared, they include the presence of a single American soldier in South Vietnam as a "war-like act."

The congressman pointed this out as a difficulty facing America in reaching "a peace with honor for both sides" in the Vietnamese situation, which he said he favors and he believes President Johnson favors.

Declaring that he was neither a hawk nor a dove on the Vietnam question, Resnick pointed out that he is on record as seeking a negotiated settlement, does not favor invasion of North Vietnam, and would oppose even the idea of using nuclear weapons.

Mishap Injures Pair

Two persons complained of whiplashes of the neck Thursday afternoon following a two-car collision on Route 32 at the intersection of Grist Mill Road, Tillson.

Kingston state police said the cars were operated by Joseph Mackay, 54, of Box 87, Route 2, New Paltz, and Donald Wright, 28, of Middletown. Both vehicles were traveling south on Route 32 when Mackay stopped at the intersection. Troopers said Wright tried to stop but a brake line failed and his car hit the rear of the other vehicle.

According to a report of Trooper Patrick Sheehan, Mackay and Joan Mackay, also 54, complained of whiplashes of the neck.

Local Libraries Eligible for Grants

Supplemental grants in the amount of $200 to each of 57 affiliated area libraries were voted by the Board of Trustees of the Mid-Hudson Libraries system service center at their March meeting.

Francis E. Doughty, first vice president, who presided, said that the purpose of the board in taking the action was to "Provide an incentive for further investment in growth and development and expansion of services on the part of member libraries, particularly smaller ones."

The money will be made available as part of a $18,000 special fund established by the board earlier this year for such purposes. Doughty said that the money was meant to be "auxiliary" in nature and should not be confused with cash, book, or other grants authorized this year as in the past by the Mid-Hudson Libraries Board of Trustees.

In accordance with the recommendations made by the Special Grants Committee, the balance of the budgeted fund, or $6,600 is to be made available upon special request by local member libraries for projects undertaken to promote library services.

For consideration to receive such grants, individual libraries must make written application. No one library may receive more than $1,000 for any given project. Applications will be reviewed and priorities established by a committee to be appointed and consisting of a representative from each of five counties: Columbia, Dutchess, Greene, Putnam and Ulster.

Exit Drills in the Home

Captain Hugh Greer of the Fire Prevention Bureau of the Kingston Fire Department, today announced the beginning of Operation Edith; Exit Drills in the Home.

Operation Edith outlines a pre-plan of action for families to take when fire strikes.

Available in booklet form, it urges families to study the normal and emergency escape routes that can be taken; how to get yourself and others out of windows; how to avoid smoke inhalation; to make plans for a central meeting place so that all may be accounted for and above all, Edith suggests periodic fire drills by the family and assigned duties to reduce panic when faced with a fire emergency.

Copies of Operation Edith may be obtained from the Kingston Fire Department by stopping at any one of the three stations located at 19 East O'Reilly Street, 88 Abeel Street or 267 Fair Street.

The supply is limited and therefore restricted to Kingston residents only. Distribution will be, first come, first served, Captain Greer said.

See Local Law Needed on Holiday Business

A local law will be necessary in order to regulate the nature of commercial and business activities on Memorial Day.

Members of the Veterans Committee of the County Legislature who met Wednesday night with representatives of county businesses were in general agreement that this would be fair to all. However, if there is no law then the stores would be guided by the action of competitors.

The large store managers indicated they would accept minor exceptions to the law which would permit some small stores selling items of necessity to remain open, Legislator Joseph Martorana, committee chairman said.

Martorana, R-9th District said a local law would regulate the nature of commercial and business activities on Memorial Day including the hours in which activities may be conducted.

Martorana said the committee has met with both veteran and business groups and will now meet to draft a local law for presentation to the County Legislature in April. A public hearing will be held prior to consideration for adoption.

Other committee members attending were William West, R-Woodstock, Orrie Riehl, D-Kingston, and Richard Thornton, D-Saugerties.

Representing business were managers of most of the large stores in the county and representatives of business groups.

Accord Reached On State Wages

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller's administration and the Civil Service Employes Association have reached agreement on an across-the-board pay raise and other benefits for state employes valued at a total of $100 million.

The agreement announced Thursday provides a wage boost ranging from $600 to $2,500 for all state workers. Rockefeller had offered eight per cent and the employe organization sought 20 per cent.

Theodore Wenzl, CSEA president, recommended approval of the package as "a major forward step."

But spokesmen for New York State Employes Council 50, AFL-CIO, a rival employe organization, said the salary increase was "totally inadequate."

Under the agreement, the state's 140,000 employes also would receive $7 million in improved retirement benefits and $10 million through upgrading of job titles, geographic wage differentials and overtime pay

If the package is approved by the legislature, as required by the state's new Taylor Law, it would take effect April 1.

Negotiations had been halted last December, when Gov. Rockefeller's designation of the CSEA as exclusive bargaining agent for 124,000 state workers was challenged by other groups representing government employes.

They were resumed Monday as a result of court rulings upholding Rockefeller's designation.

The governor revised his original, eight - per - cent offer Wednesday.

It was not immediately clear, however, how the accord would affect Rockefeller's proposed, $5.5-billion budget. The governor had earmarked $60 million for increased wages and benefits for the state workers.

Administration sources voiced confidence Thursday that the fiscal program would be kept in balance but offered no details of how another $40 million could be provided.

Joe on Vietnam: Reds Insincere

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick (D-Ellenville) in a speech delivered in Brooklyn, declared yesterday that the "peace conditions offered thus far by the North Vietnamese leaders amount to a demand to evacuate first and negotiate later."

Resnick, seeking the Democratic nomination to run against incumbent Jacob K. Javits for the United States Senate, spoke at St. Joseph's College for Women.

He pointed out that while the North Vietnamese have most frequently accented the ceasing of bombing raids on the North as a preliminary to negotiations, they have also demanded that we cease "all other war-like acts." By their own definition, Resnick declared, they include the presence of a single American soldier in South Vietnam as a "war-like act."

The congressman pointed this out as a difficulty facing America in reaching "a peace with honor for both sides" in the Vietnamese situation, which he said he favors and he believes President Johnson favors.

Declaring that he was neither a hawk nor a dove on the Vietnam question, Resnick pointed out that he is on record as seeking a negotiated settlement, does not favor invasion of North Vietnam, and would oppose even the idea of using nuclear weapons.

Mishap Injures Pair

Two persons complained of whiplashes of the neck Thursday afternoon following a two-car collision on Route 32 at the intersection of Grist Mill Road, Tillson.

Kingston state police said the cars were operated by Joseph Mackay, 54, of Box 87, Route 2, New Paltz, and Donald Wright, 28, of Middletown. Both vehicles were traveling south on Route 32 when Mackay stopped at the intersection. Troopers said Wright tried to stop but a brake line failed and his car hit the rear of the other vehicle.

According to a report of Trooper Patrick Sheehan, Mackay and Joan Mackay, also 54, complained of whiplashes of the neck.

Eligible Bachelors Explain 'Why'

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Right this minute there is about .828 of a whole unmarried man for every entire single woman in this country.

That may look like a shortage of eligible males, but it's not the case. Actually, says the Population Council, the age brackets that encompass nubile ladies and the more eligible men include something like 17 million lads to 14 million lasses. It's the widows, about eight million of them, compared to widowers, only about two million, that load the statistics the other way.

But no matter how the girls read the percentages, there are three stalwart, sought-after, never-married young men who are not going to be bagged during this quadrennial open season called Leap Year, 1968.

Actor Robert Vaughn

One is an actor, Robert Vaughn, who, when he says devastating things about marriage and women, adds: "Cynical? Me? I'm just objective." Another is the youngest bachelor in Congress, Donald Lukens (R-Ohio), who says, "I admit I'm selfish." The third is Bob Crewe, a former male model who has become a music industry magnate and contemplates marriage in a decade.

Vaughn, 35, winding up a lengthy tenure as television's "Man from U.N.C.L.E.", keeps busy making anti-Vietnam war speeches as a dissenting Democrat and working on his dissertation for his Ph.D. at the University of Southern California. He says he plans to get married sometime, "but I don't let it dwell upon me, one way or the other."

Marriage, the handsome actor thinks, "is terribly old-fashioned and on the decline, although it will always be around in some form. Girls have need of that, of the legalization, of the plaque on the wall."

What's he looking for in a wife? He would like her attractive, of course, but the main thing is intelligence. "In my work I run into it hardly at all," he says with resigned disapproval.

Congressman Lukens

Congressman Lukens is a tall, dark-haired, crewcut former Air Force officer who calls himself a farmer and exercises 45 minutes a day to keep in trim. At 36 he is unmarried because he lost a fiancee seven years ago in a plane crash and, more recently, he has had second thoughts about the compatibility of matrimony with his seven-day-a-week Congressional duties.

He is going with a couple of girls he likes, he says, "and if I could slow down to a normal pace next year . . ."

Lukens' ideal wife would be "self-sufficient and fairly independent because of my frequent absences. I go home to my Ohio district every weekend and I couldn't afford to take her."

She must also be good-looking and have a tremendous sense of humor, but more important:

"She must pay attention to me, satisfy me and my carer —I'm totally devoted to government. I admit I'm selfish and think the home should be built around the husband and father. A girl today seems more interested in how she's being treated than in how she's treating a man."

Producer Bob Crewe

Bob Crewe, a brainy and brawny reddish-blond Irishman of 36, looks at least 10 years younger. He's a producer in the recording industry, movies and television; creator of the New Mitch Ryder sound and designer of such groups as the Four Seasons.

Crewe's bachelor digs—which so far no female has been able to give the feminine touch—is a triplex Fifth Avenue penthouse that he designed and decorated himself at a cost of nearly half a million dollars.

Although he's been close to marrying three or four times, Crewe says that "now it's the farthest thing from my mind. You might say I'm married to my work now."

He has been known to disappear into a studio and emerge a day and a half later—unwashed, unfed, date stood up, but a great deal of creative work achieved.

"I have nice female companionship and as long as it can be friendly, why bring in something legal and unfriendly?"

Besides, says the recording industry's boy genius, his astrologer tells him his best opportunity for marriage is 10 years hence. "Practically speaking, I'm so tied up with my work for the next eight or nine years, maybe that's the way it will be," muses Crewe.

About his ideal girl, he says: "You can sit around and dream of a certain kind of girl—we've been sort of brainwashed by Hollywood—yet you never really end up with that kind. Instead, it's with a girl who has something within."

Robtoy-Nagel Wedding Told

MRS. JOHN W. NAGEL
(Atwood Studio)

Miss Nancy Ann Robtoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oland P. Robtoy, Jeffersonville, Vt., became the bride of John W. Nagel of Burlington, Vt., son of Mr. and Mrs. August Nagel, Stone Ridge, on Saturday, Mar. 9, at Second Congregational Church, Jeffersonville, Vt.

The Rev. Robert Boutwell officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of organza, styled with an empire bodice of re-embroidered Venice lace, featuring a scalloped neckline and short sleeves. The A-line skirt was accented with a detachable chapel train of organza which was outlined with Venice lace. Her nylon bouffant illusion veil was attached to a cluster of Venice lace petals, centered with pearls and aurora beads, and accented with three organza flowers edged with pearls. She carried a Colonial bouquet of white pompons and baby's breath.

Mrs. Carol Lee Rich was matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown fashioned with an empire bodice of royal blue velvet over a controlled sheath skirt of cornflower blue saki. Her detachable saki coat was accented with royal blue velvet sleeves and trimmed with a bow at the shoulders. Matching velvet petals with a back cluster of loops attached to a bouffant nylon illusion veil of cornflower blue. She carried a Colonial bouquet of dark and light blue miniature carnations and baby's breath.

Attendants were Linda Hanley, cousin of the bride; Rita Cady and Velma Lyman. Their gowns, headpieces and flowers were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant.

George Nagel was best man for his brother. Ushers were Peter Oberlander, cousin of the bridegroom; Robert Miller and Arthur Tominaro.

The bride, a graduate of Cambridge High School and Champlain College, Vermont, is employed by IBM, Essex Junction, Vt.

Her husband, an alumnus of Lynbrook High School and State University of New York, served two years in the armed forces, and is also an employe of IBM, Essex Junction, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. Nagel will reside in Burlington, Vt., when they return from their wedding trip to Miami, Fla.

Congressman Lukens

Congressman Lukens is a tall, dark-haired, crewcut former Air Force officer who calls himself a farmer and exercises 45 minutes a day to keep in trim. At 36 he is unmarried because he lost a fiancee seven years ago in a plane crash and, more recently, he has had second thoughts about the compatibility of matrimony with his seven-day-a-week Congressional duties.

He is going with a couple of girls he likes, he says, "and if I could slow down to a normal pace next year . . ."

Lukens' ideal wife would be "self-sufficient and fairly independent because of my frequent absences. I go home to my Ohio district every weekend and I couldn't afford to take her."

She must also be good-looking and have a tremendous sense of humor, but more important:

"She must pay attention to me, satisfy me and my carer —I'm totally devoted to government. I admit I'm selfish and think the home should be built around the husband and father. A girl today seems more interested in how she's being treated than in how she's treating a man."

Producer Bob Crewe

Bob Crewe, a brainy and brawny reddish-blond Irishman of 36, looks at least 10 years younger. He's a producer in the recording industry, movies and television; creator of the New Mitch Ryder sound and designer of such groups as the Four Seasons.

Crewe's bachelor digs—which so far no female has been able to give the feminine touch—is a triplex Fifth Avenue penthouse that he designed and decorated himself at a cost of nearly half a million dollars.

Although he's been close to marrying three or four times, Crewe says that "now it's the farthest thing from my mind. You might say I'm married to my work now."

He has been known to disappear into a studio and emerge a day and a half later—unwashed, unfed, date stood up, but a great deal of creative work achieved.

"I have nice female companionship and as long as it can be friendly, why bring in something legal and unfriendly?"

Besides, says the recording industry's boy genius, his astrologer tells him his best opportunity for marriage is 10 years hence. "Practically speaking, I'm so tied up with my work for the next eight or nine years, maybe that's the way it will be," muses Crewe.

About his ideal girl, he says: "You can sit around and dream of a certain kind of girl—we've been sort of brainwashed by Hollywood—yet you never really end up with that kind. Instead, it's with a girl who has something within."

Robtoy - Nagel Wedding Told

MRS. JOHN W. NAGEL
(Atwood Studio)

Miss Nancy Ann Robtoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oland P. Robtoy, Jeffersonville, Vt., became the bride of John W. Nagel of Burlington, Vt., son of Mr. and Mrs. August Nagel, Stone Ridge, on Saturday, Mar. 9, at Second Congregational Church, Jeffersonville, Vt.

The Rev. Robert Boutwell officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of organza, styled with an empire bodice of re-embroidered Venice lace, featuring a scalloped neckline and short sleeves. The A-line skirt was accented with a detachable chapel train of organza which was outlined with Venice lace. Her nylon bouffant illusion veil was attached to a cluster of Venice lace petals, centered with pearls and aurora beads, and accented with three organza flowers edged with pearls. She carried a Colonial bouquet of white pompons and baby's breath.

Mrs. Carol Lee Rich was matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown fashioned with an empire bodice of royal blue velvet over a controlled sheath skirt of cornflower blue saki. Her detachable saki coat was accented with royal blue velvet sleeves and trimmed with a bow at the shoulders. Matching velvet petals with a back cluster of loops attached to a bouffant nylon illusion veil of cornflower blue. She carried a Colonial bouquet of dark and light blue miniature carnations and baby's breath.

Attendants were Linda Hanley, cousin of the bride; Rita Cady and Velma Lyman. Their gowns, headpieces and flowers were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant.

George Nagel was best man for his brother. Ushers were Peter Oberlander, cousin of the bridegroom; Robert Miller and Arthur Tominaro.

The bride, a graduate of Cambridge High School and Champlain College, Vermont, is employed by IBM, Essex Junction, Vt.

Her husband, an alumnus of Lynbrook High School and State University of New York, served two years in the armed forces, and is also an employe of IBM, Essex Junction, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. Nagel will reside in Burlington, Vt., when they return from their wedding trip to Miami, Fla.

Pie Fillings Made With Frozen Orange Juice

These recipes for Orange Meringue Pie and Orange Chiffon Pie are proof that there's no reason for oranges to take second place to lemons for pies with refreshing, tangy flavor. In both recipes, the product responsible for the sunshiny tang and rich, full flavor is frozen orange juice concentrate.

Unlike home-squeezed orange juice, frozen orange juice is a blend of juices from several varieties of oranges, selected at the degree of ripeness when flavor, color, body and Vitamin C content are at the peak of perfection. In its concentrated form, the frozen juice contributes a richer, fuller flavor that's impossible to obtain with freshly-squeezed juice.

ORANGE CHIFFON PIE — A chocolate wafer crust and melted chocolate morsels set off the tangy chiffon filling of this pie prepared with frozen orange juice concentrate. Some of the melted chocolate is swirled through the filling as well as drizzled over the top.

Orange Chiffon Pie

- 2 cups chocolate wafer crumbs
- ¼ cup melted butter or margarine
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
- 1 cup water
- 3 egg yolks
- 2 tablespoons frozen lemon juice
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 can (6 ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- 1 cup water
- 3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
- 1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream, whipped
- ½ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces, melted

Makes one 9-inch pie.

Mix crumbs with butter. Press mixture evenly over bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie pan. Chill.

Sprinkle gelatine on ½ cup of water; let stand five minutes to soften. Combine egg yolks, sugar, orange juice concentrate, lemon juice and remaining ½ cup water. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture coats a spoon. Do not boil. Add softened gelatine and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Chill until slightly thickened.

Fold in beaten egg whites and whipped cream. Add half the melted chocolate and stir only until chocolate is swirled evenly through mixture. Pour into crumb-lined pie pan. Using a tablespoon, drizzle remaining melted chocolate in fine lines across top of pie. Chill until firm.

Meringue Pie

- ½ cup cornstarch
- 1½ cups sugar
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 can (6 ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- 1½ cups water
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 baked 9-inch pie shell
- 3 egg whites
- ½ cup sugar

Combine cornstarch and one cup of the sugar in saucepan. Stir in egg yolks, thawed orange juice concentrate and water. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until smooth and thick. Add butter and stir until melted. Cool slightly. Pour into baked pie shell.

Beat egg whites until stiff. Gradually beat in the remaining ½ cup sugar, a tablespoon at a time. Beat until stiff and glossy. Spread meringue over filling, sealing meringue to pie shell. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) for five minutes, or until lightly browned. Cool before cutting into wedges and serving.

Makes one 9-inch pie.

ORANGE MERINGUE PIE — Beneath the cloud-light meringue of this pie, there's a tangy orange filling, an unexpected and pleasant change from the usual lemon meringue pie. Frozen orange juice concentrate is responsible for the rich, full flavor.

Christmas Is First A Family Affair

Dear Mrs. Post: We planned on spending this past Christmas alone with our children, since our relatives were going away on vacation. One of our friends called and invited us for dinner, saying that they, too, would be alone and it would be nice to be together for the holiday. We accepted. A week before Christmas this friend called and said that they were going to her children's home after all for that day. I quickly reassured her that it was quite all right. But I feel that family invitations should be arranged before inviting friends, and I feel badly and have avoided this friend as I do not consider that she is really a friend. I would like your opinion. Am I justified in feeling like this?—Agnes Guda

Dear Mrs. Guda: Christmas is, above all, a family occasion. Your friend must feel she is quite close to you or she wouldn't have suggested having Christmas with you. Therefore, she undoubtedly felt that as such a good friend you would understand that, first and foremost, she should be with her children on that day. Undoubtedly it was due to a sudden change of plans, so try not to hold it against her, but consider what you would have wanted to do yourself if your relatives had unexpectedly been able to be with you.

Transportation Expenses To College Weekend

Dear Mrs. Post: A friend of mine has invited me to a "Winter Weekend" at his college, which is several hundred miles from here. He also has offered to pay for my transportation. I always thought that the cost of transportation is the responsibility of the girl. Considering the rather substantial cost involved—and the fact that I probably cannot afford it, do you think this situation constitutes a valid exception?—Sue

Dear Sue: I hate to say this, because it's not what you want to hear, but you are right. It is up to the girl to pay for her transportation, and the boy pays all expenses once she arrives. I'm afraid your situation isn't really a valid exception. I'm sure if you want to go badly enough you'll find the means!

Cream for After-Dinner Coffee

Dear Mrs. Post: The use of cream in coffee is limited to a relatively few these days. Many times I open a can of evaporated milk, put it in a pitcher and then discover that no one uses cream. Is there a gracious way a hostess may ask in advance?—Betty Jean

Dear Betty Jean: At a small, informal party, there is no reason you should not say, before taking the coffee into the living room (or wherever you plan to serve it), "Does anyone take cream in his coffee?" At a large, more informal dinner it is more correct to serve the cream or milk, and there are usually one or two "takers." I find that although most people say "cream" they are equally happy, or happier, with a bit of milk.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Just what can a woman do outside of painting her kitchen window sill every three months where she sets those little odds and ends used daily around the hounse?

The funny thing about this is that our kitchen is painted only once every three years and all but the window sill still looks beautiful.

Mother

Dear Mother:

Many people have recommended using wax.

However, painters write in that wax cannot be painted over because the paint won't stick until the wax has been removed with a solvent.

The easiest answer I have is to take some plastic wrap, cut it to fit the window sill and spread it on with your hands. Then wring out a warm sponge that has been dipped in hot water and smooth away.

The plastic will keep water and rusty cans from ruining the paint on your sill and will NOT show.

I also find this wonderful under potted plants, especially if the pots are the metal type that often rust.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When I was making a double-knit sweater, the two threads kept twisting around each other. I would hold up the knitted garment to let the thread unwind.

My husband suggested that I place the balls of yarn on a Lazy Susan and turn the yarn instead. This is so much more satisfactory and much easier to do.

Mrs. Glenn Grimm

Now who's dizy? Let's let it be "Lazy Susan" and not us. It works, gals. And do we love Mrs. Grimm? I'll say we do . . .

Dear Heloise:

When making egg salad, I use my pastry blender for chopping those hard-boiled eggs.

The same blender also slices eggs nicely for salad toppings in case one doesn't have an egg slicer.

Mrs. A. Avramaut

Dear Heloise:

I use pipe cleaners to make "hangers" for my little girl's tiny doll clothes.

They are so easy to shape and the doll clothes do not slip off at all.

Margie Ann

Dear Heloise:

When your sponge mop wax applicator gets old and tough, try tying a soft cloth around the sponge, secure it to the handle with rubber bands and wax away!

I think mine works even better than the sponge did when it was new.

Maeve

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I save aluminum pans that sweet rolls come in and find them great when broiling our steaks and chops.

They can be cleaned easily, and if you don't happen to feel like cleaning them, just throw them out.

Polly Kennedy

Dear Heloise:

When I have to go downtown on rainy days to pick up a few odds and ends, I take a plastic bag with me in my coat pocket. I put it over the package and the items inside stay nice and dry on the way nome.

Joanne Mondano

HINTS FOR TEENAGERS

...From your Sewing Editor

Tent dresses have folded, space suits have been grounded and geometric blocks put back in their box. It's fashion and it's fun, but a girl is a girl is a girl. The 'nowest' clothes are out to show it. Perch an over-sized pair of rose-tinted spectacles on the tip of your nose and open your eyes very wide. The fashion view from here to spring and beyond is a garden blooming with separates for you to pick and put together.

Hopskotch is happiness and jump rope is dandy, but the greatest game this spring is making, mixing, matching a wardrobe of separates. "Separatism" is a matter of proportion—all yours. The game aims at individualism; bringing out every girl's special beauty. Make your own rules and break them. The choice is multiple.

Here's a winning combination made from McCall's patterns. A lean, little shirt is tucked into a softly gathered dirndl and the two parts are pulled together with the right belt. When you make your first match, try a soft jersey fabric on top with a synthetic-blend fabric on the bottom. After this first hop toward spring, you will be ready for a skip and a jump into a flexible wardrobe of separates to take apart and put back together again in a variety of ways. Mixed matches are the sporting, smashing, dashing way to get about from now on.

"Separatism" is a thinking girl's game. Having quickly caught on to the fun of mixed-up matches, it is easy to understand that it takes more than one kind of thread to hold a pair together.

The jersey shirt needs "give" and "Dual Duty," a cotton covered dacron thread, has it. When it comes to the medium-weight fabric which you have chosen for the skirt, sew it up with Mercerized Cotton Sewing thread. Put your waist in shape by making the gathering stitches with "Heavy Duty" thread which has the extra muscle required for drawing up your gathers. The best way to put on buttons and keep them there is with "Silk Twist." If you are going to work your buttonholes by hand, use the same "Silk Twist." Bound or machine-made buttonholes should be done with the same thread as used in your garment construction. Take a color tip and select your thread one shade darker than your fabric. If you want to learn all the inside tips about matching the right thread to the fabric and the job at hand, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Woman's Page Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet S-807, "How to Choose THE RIGHT THREAD."

Dear Betty Jean: At a small, informal party, there is no reason you should not say, before taking the coffee into the living room (or wherever you plan to serve it), "Does anyone take cream in his coffee?" At a large, more informal dinner it is more correct to serve the cream or milk, and there are usually one or two "takers." I find that although most people say "cream" they are equally happy, or happier, with a bit of milk.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Just what can a woman do outside of painting her kitchen window sill every three months where she sets those little odds and ends used daily around the hounse?

The funny thing about this is that our kitchen is painted only once every three years and all but the window sill still looks beautiful.

Mother

Dear Mother:

Many people have recommended using wax.

However, painters write in that wax cannot be painted over because the paint won't stick until the wax has been removed with a solvent.

The easiest answer I have is to take some plastic wrap, cut it to fit the window sill and spread it on with your hands. Then wring out a warm sponge that has been dipped in hot water and smooth away.

The plastic will keep water and rusty cans from ruining the paint on your sill and will NOT show.

I also find this wonderful under potted plants, especially if the pots are the metal type that often rust.

Dear Heloise:

When I was making a double-knit sweater, the two threads kept twisting around each other. I would hold up the knitted garment to let the thread unwind.

My husband suggested that I place the balls of yarn on a Lazy Susan and turn the yarn instead. This is so much more satisfactory and much easier to do.

Mrs. Glenn Grimm

Now who's dizy? Let's let it be "Lazy Susan" and not us.

It works, gals. And do we love Mrs. Grimm? I'll say we do . . .

Dear Heloise:

When making egg salad, I use my pastry blender for chopping those hard-boiled eggs.

The same blender also slices eggs nicely for salad toppings in case one doesn't have an egg slicer.

Dear Heloise:

I use pipe cleaners to make "hangers" for my little girl's tiny doll clothes.

They are so easy to shape and the doll clothes do not slip off at all.

Dear Heloise:

When your sponge mop wax applicator gets old and tough, try tying a soft cloth around the sponge, secure it to the handle with rubber bands and wax away!

I think mine works even better than the sponge did when it was new.

Maeve

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I save aluminum pans that sweet rolls come in and find them great when broiling our steaks and chops.

They can be cleaned easily, and if you don't happen to feel like cleaning them, just throw them out.

Dear Heloise:

When I have to go downtown on rainy days to pick up a few odds and ends, I take a plastic bag with me in my coat pocket.

I put it over the package and the items inside stay nice and dry on the way nome.

You're right. What makes me mad is that I didn't think of it m'self.

...From your Sewing Editor

Tent dresses have folded, space suits have been grounded and geometric blocks put back in their box. It's fashion and it's fun, but a girl is a girl is a girl. The 'nowest' clothes are out to show it. Perch an over-sized pair of rose-tinted spectacles on the tip of your nose and open your eyes very wide. The fashion view from here to spring and beyond is a garden blooming with separates for you to pick and put together.

Hopskotch is happiness and jump rope is dandy, but the greatest game this spring is making, mixing, matching a wardrobe of separates. "Separatism" is a matter of proportion—all yours. The game aims at individualism; bringing out every girl's special beauty. Make your own rules and break them. The choice is multiple.

Here's a winning combination made from McCall's patterns. A lean, little shirt is tucked into a softly gathered dirndl and the two parts are pulled together with the right belt. When you make your first match, try a soft jersey fabric on top with a synthetic-blend fabric on the bottom. After this first hop toward spring, you will be ready for a skip and a jump into a flexible wardrobe of separates to take apart and put back together again in a variety of ways. Mixed matches are the sporting, smashing, dashing way to get about from now on.

"Separatism" is a thinking girl's game. Having quickly caught on to the fun of mixed-up matches, it is easy to understand that it takes more than one kind of thread to hold a pair together.

The jersey shirt needs "give" and "Dual Duty," a cotton covered dacron thread, has it. When it comes to the medium-weight fabric which you have chosen for the skirt, sew it up with Mercerized Cotton Sewing thread. Put your waist in shape by making the gathering stitches with "Heavy Duty" thread which has the extra muscle required for drawing up your gathers. The best way to put on buttons and keep them there is with "Silk Twist." If you are going to work your buttonholes by hand, use the same "Silk Twist." Bound or machine-made buttonholes should be done with the same thread as used in your garment construction. Take a color tip and select your thread one shade darker than your fabric. If you want to learn all the inside tips about matching the right thread to the fabric and the job at hand, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Woman's Page Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet S-807, "How to Choose THE RIGHT THREAD."

It's Kingston High-Newburgh for Section 9 Tonight

By MIKE HELFNER
(Freeman Sports Staff)

The high school basketball season has been on since November 1st, and after 20 long, gruelling weeks, it all comes to a halt tonight and/or tomorrow night—with the finals and playoffs in the Section Nine Tournament.

The end arrives tonight for a quartet of teams, and for the other four, it goes one day further to Saturday.

For the losers, it will be all over tonight. The winners advance to tomorrow night's special "Open Tournament" playoffs, with the C-D winners battling, followed by a clash between the A-B winners.

The Kingston-NFA game tonight is set for approximately 8:30 p. m. It will follow the Monticello-Suffern meeting. That game has a 7 o'clock tipoff time at New Paltz State University's gym. KHS-NFA follow immediately.

At the same time, Tuxedo and Chester meet at 7 and Liberty and Highland Falls go at it at 8:30. Both games are at Valley Central High in Montgomery.

There are a number of similarities among the eight teams playing. Kingston and Tuxedo both hold double victories over their opponents in regular season play and rate the favorite's role.

On the other side of the coin, Liberty, which split with Middletown while Highland Falls lost to the Middies, is regarded an underdog.

In tournament play, regular season records and victories go out the window. For Kingston, it will be a do-or-die battle to continue as the reigning Class A titlist. KHS won it the previous two years, and is out to make it an unprecedented third year in a row.

NFA has a good chance to redeem itself from the two regular season defeats (they lost a third to Monticello) with a win tonight.

Featuring the DUSO's top scorer in 5-foot-9 Gay Powell, the Goldbacks have been the toughest team the Maroon faced all year.

By agreement, the entire KHS squad felt NFA gave it the most competition in all 19 (semi-final game included) games this year. The Maroon finished 17-1 on the regular season and 10-0 in the league. They own wins by two and eight points over the Goldbacks.

Along with Powell (216 league points in 10 games), the Maroon will have to deal with 6-3 Martin Kemp, (13.7) average, 6-1 Bill Briggs, 6-7 Jim Rogers and 5-10 Nick Bucci.

The matchups are still undecided. Completion depends on who Kingston coach Jack Gilligan names as the fifth starter.

Definite pairings put the Maroon's Ray Lindhorst on Rogers, a three-inch difference in NFA's favor, Bruce Gilligan against Briggs, where KHS adds two inches and Ken Gilligan against Bucci, a standoff height-wise.

Depending on the fifth starter, A. J. Murphy gets one of NFA's two big guns, either Powell or Kemp. Should the fifth starter be Ed Byman, Murphy draws Kemp and Byman gets Powell, on this alignment, Kingston breaks out even because Byman picks up the inch that the 6-2 Murphy gives away.

Should the fifth player be Werner Kolln, then Kingston adds six inches. Kolln, 6-4 picks up one over Kemp and Murphy's 6-2 gives him five over the shorter Powell.

Last time, Murphy drew Powell and he held the guard to 15, a feat since Powell came off games in which he tallied 36 and 33. Most fans expect Murphy will draw the difficult assignment again.

In the two teams last outing, Kingston put on a record-breaking performance in routing North Rockland, 118-84, while NFA had to struggle to pull out a 73-70 win over Clarkstown.

Those games were last Friday at Marlboro in the Semi-finals. The two have now had a full week's rest and preparation for this game. Both are expected to be mentally up as well as physically.

Coach Gilligan feels this game will probably be the "toughest of the year for his Maroons, a game to which NFA has been pointing since they were chosen to the Section Nine field."

Kingston, in Gilligan's words, "needs a real fine game to take Newburgh," "We need to be up mentally for the game." he said.

St. Peter's, Duke NIT Winners

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The St. Peter's Peacocks, a movie-making flop in last year's National Invitation Basketball Tournament, have come up with a 1968 hit made certain by a new star, Elnardo Webster.

Call it an Oscar, or an Emmy or a most valuable player performance, they all fit the slender 6-foot-5 forward whose 51 points almost single-handedly eliminated Marshall 102-93 in double overtime Thursday night.

In contrast, 10th-ranked Duke's 97-81 breeze over Oklahoma City in the nightcap of the opening first-round doubleheader at the new Madison Square Garden bordered on boredom for a drained crowd of 17,602.

The racehorse, rough and tumble opener between two of the nation's high-scoring, but overlooked teams stole the show, living up to advance notices.

Wipes Out Memory

More important to the Peacocks, who advanced to Monday's quarter-finals against Duke, it served to wipe out the stigma of last year's humiliating 103-58 loss to Southern Illinois in the first round.

For a while, it looked like another 1967 role for St. Peter's, which has never passed the first round in three other NIT appearances. The Jersey City, N.J., team went from a 27-22 lead to a 47-31 deficit as the taller Thundering Herd took control of the boards and the scoring.

It was 51-38 at the half and 57-42 before Pete O'Dea and Webster, a Jersey City native, led the Peacocks on a string of 16 straight points. Four baskets by the 6-5 Webster and one by O'Dea, who finished with 25 points, in the last 3½ minutes forced Marshall to come from behind to tie 83-all on George Stone's layup with 43 seconds left in regulation play.

Still, Marshall had another chance to win, but missed another last second jump. It was the Herd's last chance as Webster pumped in three baskets at the start of the second extra period for a 95-91 lead.

The Herd missed two jumpers in the final seconds that would have won and then Webster, a one-man show with two regulars fouled out, scored all six St. Peter's points in the first overtime.

Duke, 22-5, one of the tourney favorites, led by third-team All-American Mike Lewis, squashed Oklahoma City in the opening minutes. The 6-7, 225-pound center and Joe Kennedy split 12 points as the Blue Devils raced to a 17-4 lead and were never threatened.

The first round continues tonight with another doubleheader, Kansas meeting Temple in the opener and Villanova tackling Wyoming in the nightcap.

The Challenge to Yastrzemski

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — As a Triple Crown winner, Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox can expect a pretty good going over by American League rivals this year.

Yaz got a hint of things to come early this week when the Chicago White Sox visited Chain O'Lakes Park for an exhibition game.

Chicago Manager Eddie Stanky, whose strategy in needling Yaz as 'an All-Star from the neck down" backfired last summer, came up with a defense familiar to older fans—a shift designed by Lou Boudreau to stop Hall of Famer Ted Williams 20 years ago.

The White Sox stationed their second baseman deep and toward the right field line, the shortstop moved 20 feet to the right of second and the third baseman shaded the vacated hole at short.

Accepts Challenge

Like Williams, Yaz accepted the challenge. Rather than try to hit to left, Yaz swung away. He grounded directly to short the first time up, then went out twice more on easy hoppers.

"The Whie Sox shifted on me in a series in Chicago last year, but nothing like this," Yaz recalled. "It doesn't bother me, though. I'm not going to change my style."

Yaz, the league's Most Valuable Player after batting .326 with 44 homers and 121 RBI in 1967, is off to a slow start in Grapefruit League competition. But nobody is concerned.

Rounding Into Form

The powerful left-handed slugger is gradually getting sharp after a tiring tour of Winter banquets from coast to coast.

On Thursday the Red Sox broke their three-game losing streak with a 7-1 triumph over the White Sox. Yastrzemski had one hit, but the big blow was Rico Petrocelli's two-run single. Dick Ellsworth pitched effectively for five innings.

Glenn Beckert, Billy Williams and Lou Johnson each drove in a run in a Chicago Cub sixth-inning rally and the Cubs beat California 6-4.

Chico Salmon's single in the last of the ninth capped a struggle by Cleveland, driving in the winning run in a 9-8 triumph over San Francisco.

Jack Aker's low throw in the eighth inning let Aaron Pointer in with a run and Houston beat Oakland 1-0. Willie Davis drove in runs with a double and a single and Los Angeles beat Detroit 5-0.

Hank Aaron's two-run double was one of 22 hits by Atlanta and the New York Yankees as the Braves won 7-3. St. Louis beat Minnesota 7-4, Lou Brock tripling in two runs.

Baltimore got five home runs and crushed Washington 11-2. Pitcher Jim Palmer had two shots and Brooks Robinson, Frank Robinson and Elrod Hendricks each had one.

Bureaucratic, Oppressive--That Gun Legislation--Sperl

Proposed gun control legislation now pending at Albany came under sharp attack on several fronts today from Art Sperl of Saugerties, member of Federated Sportsmen and Saugerties Fish and Game Club committees opposing mandatory registration of firearms.

Sperl said the bureaucracy and expense involved in gun registration would be monumental. And he had some harsh words about the dangers of rigid gun registration policies.

The most objectionable features of the proposed bills is the provision requiring registration of firearms, including rifles and shotguns, Sperl says.

"As specified in Assembly bill No. 3635, owners of rifles and shotguns would have to obtain a permit from a certifying official, but that's only the beginning," says the Saugerties sportsman.

"The application would then have to be investigated by the department of mental hygiene, the New York State identification and intelligence system and the FBI," he adds. "Then photographs would have to be supplied and finger prints would have to be taken."

"Consider the personnel and governmental services that would have to function in the processing of one permit," Sperl warns. "And this does not include personnel required to register each and every firearm with the New York State police in Albany—which this bill would require."

Bill Sets Fee

Sperl noted that the bill sets a fee of $3.00 for each permit issued and requires re-application every three years. For anyone denied a permit for medical reasons, free medical inspection would be available.

"Consider carefully, in case you are still in doubt, what the ultimate cost of such a program would amount to," Sperl advises. Who will bear the cost?

"How many countries where dictatorships have taken over, first had gun registration instituted?" Sperl asks. "Once the central government had a complete list of all the firearms in the hands of the people it was a simple matter to confiscate them."

"Think about this and then think about Para 10, Section I of this Assembly bill No. 3635, which calls for the seizure (and this is the word they use) of all rifles and shotguns possessed by a person who dies."

Sperl charges the bill eliminates any chance for hunting by non-residents in New York State, except for the planned-in-advance trip.

The non-resident has to apply for a temporary permit which, if he fulfills all requirements, can be issued within seven days. If it looks on Friday like the weekend will be good for hunting in Asbury, Town of Saugerties, our friend in New Jersey can forget it," Sperl charges.

"Finally, and what appears to be the crux of the issue," says Sperl," exhaustive checks prove conclusively that registration of firearms does not reduce crime!"

"Criminals will not register their guns. And, according to a decision handed down by the U. S. Supreme Court, they don't have to, because in doing so, it might incriminate them."

"I urge all sportsmen and other persons who oppose Assembly bill No. 3635 and Senate bills No. 2920 and 2921, which are equally bad bills and similar legislation to register shotguns and rifles, including the governor's new bill to write to their representatives and Gov. Rockefeller and tell them so," Sperl concludes.

Highmount, Scotch Valley Slate Major Ski Events

Two major ski events climaxing the 1967-68 season are scheduled this weekend at Highmount and Scotch Valley in Delaware County.

Highmount Ski Center hosts the annual Highmount Cup Race starting Saturday at 11 a. m. There will be competition in all classes, including veterans, juniors, seniors and a special category for kiddies under seven.

Gordon Davenport is in charge of the day's program.

Meanwhile, Rosendale Nordic Ski Club Juniors engage in their final competition of the season Sunday at Scotch Valley. This is a meet that was originally scheduled at Rosendale but canceled because of lack of snow in January.

Coach Rune Karlson will take a squad of 15 juniors for the combined cross-country and jumping events. The cross-country event is scheduled Sunday at 9 a. m., followed by the jumping at 1 p. m.

CYO Winners Are Finalists

Three Kingston CYO winners will battle Dutchess and Orange County opponents in the CYO upstate finals Saturday at Our Lady of Lourdes High school in Poughkeepsie.

St. Mary's parish has fielded two of the winners. The Tyros will go against either Fishkill or St. Mary's of Wappingers. Jayvees are slated against St. Joseph of Middletown.

The other Kingston team making the trip is St. Joseph of Kingston, which is scheduled to play St. Mary's of Wappingers.

The upstate finals start at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Intramurals Start at St. Joe

In order to extend the basketball season to the Easter holidays, the St. Joseph's parish coaching staff has formed an intramural league for CYO jayvee and varsity players. The league will last for four weeks. Trophies will be awarded to the championship team.

In the first round of play, The Knicks beat the Royals 44-34 and Houston beat the Saints 48-43. St. Joseph's No. One CYO Peewee Squad defeated St. Joseph's No. 2 36-7 in a makeup contest.

It's Kingston High-Newburgh for Section 9 Tonight

By MIKE HELFNER
(Freeman Sports Staff)

The high school basketball season has been on since November 1st, and after 20 long, gruelling weeks, it all comes to a halt tonight and/or tomorrow night—with the finals and playoffs in the Section Nine Tournament.

The end arrives tonight for a quartet of teams, and for the other four, it goes one day further to Saturday.

For the losers, it will be all over tonight. The winners advance to tomorrow night's special "Open Tournament" playoffs, with the C-D winners battling, followed by a clash between the A-B winners.

The Kingston-NFA game tonight is set for approximately 8:30 p. m. It will follow the Monticello-Suffern meeting. That game has a 7 o'clock tipoff time at New Paltz State University's gym. KHS-NFA follow immediately.

At the same time, Tuxedo and Chester meet at 7 and Liberty and Highland Falls go at it at 8:30. Both games are at Valley Central High in Montgomery.

There are a number of similarities among the eight teams playing. Kingston and Tuxedo both hold double victories over their opponents in regular season play and rate the favorite's role.

On the other side of the coin, Liberty, which split with Middletown while Highland Falls lost to the Middies, is regarded an underdog.

In tournament play, regular season records and victories go out the window. For Kingston, it will be a do-or-die battle to continue as the reigning Class A titlist. KHS won it the previous two years, and is out to make it an unprecedented third year in a row.

NFA has a good chance to redeem itself from the two regular season defeats (they lost a third to Monticello) with a win tonight.

By agreement, the entire KHS squad felt NFA gave it the most competition in all 19 (semi-final game included) games this year. The Maroon finished 17-1 on the regular season and 10-0 in the league. They own wins by two and eight points over the Goldbacks.

Along with Powell (216 league points in 10 games), the Maroon will have to deal with 6-3 Martin Kemp, (13.7) average, 6-1 Bill Briggs, 6-7 Jim Rogers and 5-10 Nick Bucci.

The matchups are still undecided. Completion depends on who Kingston coach Jack Gilligan names as the fifth starter.

Definite pairings put the Maroon's Ray Lindhorst on Rogers, a three-inch difference in NFA's favor, Bruce Gilligan against Briggs, where KHS adds two inches and Ken Gilligan against Bucci, a standoff height-wise.

Depending on the fifth starter, A. J. Murphy gets one of NFA's two big guns, either Powell or Kemp. Should the fifth starter be Ed Byman, Murphy draws Kemp and Byman gets Powell, on this alignment, Kingston breaks out even because Byman picks up the inch that the 6-2 Murphy gives away.

Should the fifth player be Werner Kolln, then Kingston adds six inches. Kolln, 6-4 picks up one over Kemp and Murphy's 6-2 gives him five over the shorter Powell.

Last time, Murphy drew Powell and he held the guard to 15, a feat since Powell came off games in which he tallied 36 and 33. Most fans expect Murphy will draw the difficult assignment again.

In the two teams last outing, Kingston put on a record-breaking performance in routing North Rockland, 118-84, while NFA had to struggle to pull out a 73-70 win over Clarkstown.

Those games were last Friday at Marlboro in the Semi-finals. The two have now had a full week's rest and preparation for this game. Both are expected to be mentally up as well as physically.

Coach Gilligan feels this game will probably be the "toughest of the year for his Maroons, a game to which NFA has been pointing since they were chosen to the Section Nine field."

Kingston, in Gilligan's words, "needs a real fine game to take Newburgh," "We need to be up mentally for the game." he said.

St. Peter's, Duke NIT Winners

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The St. Peter's Peacocks, a movie-making flop in last year's National Invitation Basketball Tournament, have come up with a 1968 hit made certain by a new star, Elnardo Webster.

Call it an Oscar, or an Emmy or a most valuable player performance, they all fit the slender 6-foot-5 forward whose 51 points almost single-handedly eliminated Marshall 102-93 in double overtime Thursday night.

In contrast, 10th-ranked Duke's 97-81 breeze over Oklahoma City in the nightcap of the opening first-round doubleheader at the new Madison Square Garden bordered on boredom for a drained crowd of 17,602.

The racehorse, rough and tumble opener between two of the nation's high-scoring, but overlooked teams stole the show, living up to advance notices.

Wipes Out Memory

More important to the Peacocks, who advanced to Monday's quarter-finals against Duke, it served to wipe out the stigma of last year's humiliating 103-58 loss to Southern Illinois in the first round.

For a while, it looked like another 1967 role for St. Peter's, which has never passed the first round in three other NIT appearances. The Jersey City, N.J., team went from a 27-22 lead to a 47-31 deficit as the taller Thundering Herd took control of the boards and the scoring.

It was 51-38 at the half and 57-42 before Pete O'Dea and Webster, a Jersey City native, led the Peacocks on a string of 16 straight points. Four baskets by the 6-5 Webster and one by O'Dea, who finished with 25 points, in the last 3½ minutes forced Marshall to come from behind to tie 83-all on George Stone's layup with 43 seconds left in regulation play.

The Herd missed two jumpers in the final seconds that would have won and then Webster, a one-man show with two regulars fouled out, scored all six St. Peter's points in the first overtime.

Still, Marshall had another chance to win, but missed another last second jump. It was the Herd's last chance as Webster pumped in three baskets at the start of the second extra period for a 95-91 lead.

Duke, 22-5, one of the tourney favorites, led by third-team All-American Mike Lewis, squashed Oklahoma City in the opening minutes. The 6-7, 225-pound center and Joe Kennedy split 12 points as the Blue Devils raced to a 17-4 lead and were never threatened.

The first round continues tonight with another doubleheader, Kansas meeting Temple in the opener and Villanova tackling Wyoming in the nightcap.

The Challenge to Yastrzemski

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

Yaz got a hint of things to come early this week when the Chicago White Sox visited Chain O'Lakes Park for an exhibition game.

Chicago Manager Eddie Stanky, whose strategy in needling Yaz as 'an All-Star from the neck down" backfired last summer, came up with a defense familiar to older fans—a shift designed by Lou Boudreau to stop Hall of Famer Ted Williams 20 years ago.

The White Sox stationed their second baseman deep and toward the right field line, the shortstop moved 20 feet to the right of second and the third baseman shaded the vacated hole at short.

Accepts Challenge

Like Williams, Yaz accepted the challenge. Rather than try to hit to left, Yaz swung away. He grounded directly to short the first time up, then went out twice more on easy hoppers.

"The Whie Sox shifted on me in a series in Chicago last year, but nothing like this," Yaz recalled. "It doesn't bother me, though. I'm not going to change my style."

Yaz, the league's Most Valuable Player after batting .326 with 44 homers and 121 RBI in 1967, is off to a slow start in Grapefruit League competition. But nobody is concerned.

Rounding Into Form

The powerful left-handed slugger is gradually getting sharp after a tiring tour of Winter banquets from coast to coast.

On Thursday the Red Sox broke their three-game losing streak with a 7-1 triumph over the White Sox. Yastrzemski had one hit, but the big blow was Rico Petrocelli's two-run single. Dick Ellsworth pitched effectively for five innings.

Glenn Beckert, Billy Williams and Lou Johnson each drove in a run in a Chicago Cub sixth-inning rally and the Cubs beat California 6-4.

Chico Salmon's single in the last of the ninth capped a struggle by Cleveland, driving in the winning run in a 9-8 triumph over San Francisco.

Jack Aker's low throw in the eighth inning let Aaron Pointer in with a run and Houston beat Oakland 1-0. Willie Davis drove in runs with a double and a single and Los Angeles beat Detroit 5-0.

Hank Aaron's two-run double was one of 22 hits by Atlanta and the New York Yankees as the Braves won 7-3. St. Louis beat Minnesota 7-4, Lou Brock tripling in two runs.

Baltimore got five home runs and crushed Washington 11-2. Pitcher Jim Palmer had two shots and Brooks Robinson, Frank Robinson and Elrod Hendricks each had one.

Bureaucratic, Oppressive--That Gun Legislation--Sperl

Proposed gun control legislation now pending at Albany came under sharp attack on several fronts today from Art Sperl of Saugerties, member of Federated Sportsmen and Saugerties Fish and Game Club committees opposing mandatory registration of firearms.

Sperl said the bureaucracy and expense involved in gun registration would be monumental. And he had some harsh words about the dangers of rigid gun registration policies.

The most objectionable features of the proposed bills is the provision requiring registration of firearms, including rifles and shotguns, Sperl says.

"As specified in Assembly bill No. 3635, owners of rifles and shotguns would have to obtain a permit from a certifying official, but that's only the beginning," says the Saugerties sportsman.

"The application would then have to be investigated by the department of mental hygiene, the New York State identification and intelligence system and the FBI," he adds. "Then photographs would have to be supplied and finger prints would have to be taken."

"Consider the personnel and governmental services that would have to function in the processing of one permit," Sperl warns. "And this does not include personnel required to register each and every firearm with the New York State police in Albany—which this bill would require."

Bill Sets Fee

Sperl noted that the bill sets a fee of $3.00 for each permit issued and requires re-application every three years. For anyone denied a permit for medical reasons, free medical inspection would be available.

"Consider carefully, in case you are still in doubt, what the ultimate cost of such a program would amount to," Sperl advises. Who will bear the cost?

"How many countries where dictatorships have taken over, first had gun registration instituted?" Sperl asks. "Once the central government had a complete list of all the firearms in the hands of the people it was a simple matter to confiscate them."

"Think about this and then think about Para 10, Section I of this Assembly bill No. 3635, which calls for the seizure (and this is the word they use) of all rifles and shotguns possessed by a person who dies."

Sperl charges the bill eliminates any chance for hunting by non-residents in New York State, except for the planned-in-advance trip.

The non-resident has to apply for a temporary permit which, if he fulfills all requirements, can be issued within seven days. If it looks on Friday like the weekend will be good for hunting in Asbury, Town of Saugerties, our friend in New Jersey can forget it," Sperl charges.

"Finally, and what appears to be the crux of the issue," says Sperl," exhaustive checks prove conclusively that registration of firearms does not reduce crime!"

"Criminals will not register their guns. And, according to a decision handed down by the U. S. Supreme Court, they don't have to, because in doing so, it might incriminate them."

"I urge all sportsmen and other persons who oppose Assembly bill No. 3635 and Senate bills No. 2920 and 2921, which are equally bad bills and similar legislation to register shotguns and rifles, including the governor's new bill to write to their representatives and Gov. Rockefeller and tell them so," Sperl concludes.

Highmount, Scotch Valley Slate Major Ski Events

Two major ski events climaxing the 1967-68 season are scheduled this weekend at Highmount and Scotch Valley in Delaware County.

Highmount Ski Center hosts the annual Highmount Cup Race starting Saturday at 11 a. m. There will be competition in all classes, including veterans, juniors, seniors and a special category for kiddies under seven.

Gordon Davenport is in charge of the day's program.

Meanwhile, Rosendale Nordic Ski Club Juniors engage in their final competition of the season Sunday at Scotch Valley. This is a meet that was originally scheduled at Rosendale but canceled because of lack of snow in January.

Coach Rune Karlson will take a squad of 15 juniors for the combined cross-country and jumping events. The cross-country event is scheduled Sunday at 9 a. m., followed by the jumping at 1 p. m.

S-I-T-Z-M-A-R-K-S

By CHARLES J. TIANO

(Freeman Sports Editor)

Dan Potter and a group of Kingston ski friends aren't particularly concerned about getting to Sorrento, but they will return to magnificent Aspen—someday.

Just back from Colorado, Potter, who operates the Potter Brothers sporting goods store on Route 28, was ecstatic about the sojourn to the capital of American skiing.

Accompanying Potter were Guy Seligman, Arthur Moak, Arthur London, Dr. Sidney Pauker and Dr. Harold Newman minus their golf equipment, of course.

They asked all of Aspen's renowned complexes—Ajax, Aspen Highlands, Buttermilk and the newest and brightest star in the Aspen diadem—Snowmass.

"I think Snowmass will soon be the biggest ski complex in the world," says Potter. "Within the next two years they will build eight or nine new chairlifts.

"Snowmass is drawing the biggest crowds, probably because Stein Ericsson is there," he adds. "And, mind you, it's only the second year of operation for Snowmass."

GETTING TO ASPEN from Kingston was a bit complicated for Potter and his companions. They flew from JFK International to Denver, then by bus to Aspen. They could have flown from Denver to Aspen but plane service is not too reliable and a bit scary on that run over the hump.

The bus ride from Denver to Aspen resembled old film clips from the early European-based TV thriller International Intrigue. The route was over snow covered mountain passes with no guard rails against sheer drops of thousands of feet.

"It was," Potter recalls," really a harrowing ride. "I wouldn't rent or drive my own car out there . . . people drive like maniacs . . . and the roads are dangerous.'

You travel strictly first class at Aspen, says Potter. Free buses pick you up outside your motel and take you right to the slopes, about a 25-minute ride.

"There are so many trails, you couldn't possibly ski them all if you really tried," says Potter. "The slopes are open from December to April and some two hours away are open until June.'

SKIING OUT THERE is much more relaxed—more room, more lifts, more of everything. Aspen furnishes free bus service from the doors of all motels to the other slopes like Snowmass, Ajax and Buttermilk. The whole towns are oriented around skiing.

The average mountain has six or seven chairlifts and it would take about 25 minutes to ski non-stop down from the elevations and going all out. The average round trip takes about an hour and a half.

What about snow conditions?, Potter was asked.

"It never rains, hardly ever, anyway, so there are never any icy conditions, just packed powder," he explains. "When the powder gets too deep, however, there's a danger we don't have in the East—avalanche."

"We met a lot of people from the East, many from the Chicago area," said Potter. "The weather was consistently beautiful, around 50 degrees, no snow and you couldn't miss getting a sun tan. Only one day while we were there did it snow.'

POTTER AND HIS companions described accommodations at Aspen as "simply great. "There are excellent restaurants, fine motels, ski shops, the works . . . . everything you could possibly ask for."

Aspen Highlands is the biggest mountain in the area, rising majestically 12 to 13,000 feet in a breathtaking setting. Snowmass is in the 10-11,000 foot range. The altitudes, didn't bother any of the Kingstonians, Potter recalled.

There are many expert slopes, but, of course, far more intermediate slopes for obvious reasons. The Buttermilk slope is primarily for beginners and intermediates.

The magnificance of Aspen left a lasting impression on Potter and his companions.

He says he is definitely going back to Aspen some day. Meanwhile, he is thinking about a trip to Europe's great ski centers. After that, Aspen for sure.

Whatever you read and hear about mighty Aspen, you better believe it, says Dan Potter . . . because its true.

Nicklaus Gains Tie

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Challengers in the Citrus Open Golf Tournament may scoff, but Jack Nicklaus—the king of the fairway belters—is having trouble with his driver.

"I'm not hooking or slicing, I'm just striking the ball off the wrong way," said Nicklaus. "I got a new driver before last week's Doral Open, and I haven't found out how to direct it yet."

Nicklaus still managed to take a share of the lead into today's second round after shooting a 67 to tie Miller Barber in Thursday's opener.

Nicklaus said he wasn't complaining, however, "because it is silly to say how bad I drove it and how many putts I missed and still come in with a 67."

Barber tied Nicklaus' score and 41 other players broke par as the flashy field started scrambling for the $23,000 first prize payoff.

The fast finish by Nicklaus and Barber just before dusk broke open one of the biggest logjams of the year. Five players were deadlocked for the lead at 68 before they were bumped out.

Felicello's Pipers notched a 121-107 victory over Jeb's Sports Goods Thursday night to become champions of the Marlboro Progress Club's basketball tournament.

Felicello's Bees captured consolation honors by handing DeMicco Motors of Kingston their second defeat, 109-97. Joe Uhl did not play with DeMicco's, who played with a makeshift lineup.

Richie Dyer's 31 points for the Pipers helped them out to an early 31-19 first quarter lead and then Sportsmen never got close. Tony Citerella, former NYU cager added 25 for the Pipers, as did Jim Fairly. Fairly was named the Tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Tom Mounkat poured in 16 field goals and 14 foul shots for 48 points in Jeb's losing effort and George Coates tallied 21.

Overcoming a six point first period deficit to tie the score at 45 all at half time, DeMicco Mtotors saw their valiant effort slip down the drain in the second half as the Bees slowly moved out in front. Larry McClinton tallied 27 and Hank Bown 22 for the winners.

Ulster County Community College Bill Zulliox carved out 27 points for DeMicco and Ron Thomas led the losers with 32 markers. Joe Schabot contributed 21 points.

(Freeman Sports Editor)

Dan Potter and a group of Kingston ski friends aren't particularly concerned about getting to Sorrento, but they will return to magnificent Aspen—someday.

Just back from Colorado, Potter, who operates the Potter Brothers sporting goods store on Route 28, was ecstatic about the sojourn to the capital of American skiing.

Accompanying Potter were Guy Seligman, Arthur Moak, Arthur London, Dr. Sidney Pauker and Dr. Harold Newman minus their golf equipment, of course.

They asked all of Aspen's renowned complexes—Ajax, Aspen Highlands, Buttermilk and the newest and brightest star in the Aspen diadem—Snowmass.

"I think Snowmass will soon be the biggest ski complex in the world," says Potter. "Within the next two years they will build eight or nine new chairlifts.

"Snowmass is drawing the biggest crowds, probably because Stein Ericsson is there," he adds. "And, mind you, it's only the second year of operation for Snowmass."

GETTING TO ASPEN from Kingston was a bit complicated for Potter and his companions. They flew from JFK International to Denver, then by bus to Aspen. They could have flown from Denver to Aspen but plane service is not too reliable and a bit scary on that run over the hump.

The bus ride from Denver to Aspen resembled old film clips from the early European-based TV thriller International Intrigue. The route was over snow covered mountain passes with no guard rails against sheer drops of thousands of feet.

"It was," Potter recalls," really a harrowing ride. "I wouldn't rent or drive my own car out there . . . people drive like maniacs . . . and the roads are dangerous.'

You travel strictly first class at Aspen, says Potter. Free buses pick you up outside your motel and take you right to the slopes, about a 25-minute ride.

"There are so many trails, you couldn't possibly ski them all if you really tried," says Potter. "The slopes are open from December to April and some two hours away are open until June.'

SKIING OUT THERE is much more relaxed—more room, more lifts, more of everything. Aspen furnishes free bus service from the doors of all motels to the other slopes like Snowmass, Ajax and Buttermilk. The whole towns are oriented around skiing.

The average mountain has six or seven chairlifts and it would take about 25 minutes to ski non-stop down from the elevations and going all out. The average round trip takes about an hour and a half.

What about snow conditions?, Potter was asked.

"It never rains, hardly ever, anyway, so there are never any icy conditions, just packed powder," he explains. "When the powder gets too deep, however, there's a danger we don't have in the East—avalanche."

"We met a lot of people from the East, many from the Chicago area," said Potter. "The weather was consistently beautiful, around 50 degrees, no snow and you couldn't miss getting a sun tan. Only one day while we were there did it snow.'

POTTER AND HIS companions described accommodations at Aspen as "simply great. "There are excellent restaurants, fine motels, ski shops, the works . . . . everything you could possibly ask for."

Aspen Highlands is the biggest mountain in the area, rising majestically 12 to 13,000 feet in a breathtaking setting. Snowmass is in the 10-11,000 foot range. The altitudes, didn't bother any of the Kingstonians, Potter recalled.

There are many expert slopes, but, of course, far more intermediate slopes for obvious reasons. The Buttermilk slope is primarily for beginners and intermediates.

The magnificance of Aspen left a lasting impression on Potter and his companions.

He says he is definitely going back to Aspen some day. Meanwhile, he is thinking about a trip to Europe's great ski centers. After that, Aspen for sure.

Whatever you read and hear about mighty Aspen, you better believe it, says Dan Potter . . . because its true.

Nicklaus Gains Tie

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Challengers in the Citrus Open Golf Tournament may scoff, but Jack Nicklaus—the king of the fairway belters—is having trouble with his driver.

"I'm not hooking or slicing, I'm just striking the ball off the wrong way," said Nicklaus. "I got a new driver before last week's Doral Open, and I haven't found out how to direct it yet."

Nicklaus still managed to take a share of the lead into today's second round after shooting a 67 to tie Miller Barber in Thursday's opener.

Nicklaus said he wasn't complaining, however, "because it is silly to say how bad I drove it and how many putts I missed and still come in with a 67."

The Ohio strongman salvaged a five-under-par round with some lucky bounces and great iron play, and hit 17 greens in regulation strokes.

Barber tied Nicklaus' score and 41 other players broke par as the flashy field started scrambling for the $23,000 first prize payoff.

The fast finish by Nicklaus and Barber just before dusk broke open one of the biggest logjams of the year. Five players were deadlocked for the lead at 68 before they were bumped out.

Pipers Win Marlboro Tourney

Felicello's Pipers notched a 121-107 victory over Jeb's Sports Goods Thursday night to become champions of the Marlboro Progress Club's basketball tournament.

Felicello's Bees captured consolation honors by handing DeMicco Motors of Kingston their second defeat, 109-97. Joe Uhl did not play with DeMicco's, who played with a makeshift lineup.

Richie Dyer's 31 points for the Pipers helped them out to an early 31-19 first quarter lead and then Sportsmen never got close. Tony Citerella, former NYU cager added 25 for the Pipers, as did Jim Fairly. Fairly was named the Tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Tom Mounkal poured in 16 field goals and 14 foul shots for 48 points in Jeb's losing effort and George Coates tallied 21.

Overcoming a six point first period deficit to tie the score at 45 all at half time, DeMicco Mtotors saw their valiant effort slip down the drain in the second half as the Bees slowly moved out in front. Larry McClinton tallied 27 and Hank Bown 22 for the winners.

Ulster County Community College Bill Zilliox carved out 27 points for DeMicco and Ron Thomas led the losers with 32 markers. Joe Schabot contributed 21 points.

Royals Retain Playoff Hopes

The Royals kept alive their playoff hopes by beating the St. Louis Hawks at Cleveland Thursday night, 102-96, for the first time this season.

In the only other pro game scheduled, an American Basketball Association contest, the Dallas Chaparrals tightened the ABA's Western Division race with a 90-87 home court triumph over the first-place New Orleans Bucaneers.

START YOUR OWN MELON PLANTS: If you had trouble with your melons last year perhaps it was because of two bad diseases found in most garden soils — fusarium and verticillium wilt. There is no chemical control for these diseases, but you can lick the problem before it starts by using disease-resistant varieties. Try Delicious 51 as it is resistant to fusarium. Iroquois is another one that is wilt resistant. If you want to beat the short growing season, try two tricks: Start your own melon plants indoors, and use a black plastic mulch after the plants are set out. The plastic heats the soil and hastens fruiting. If plants are started indoors, you can gain a few weeks by starting seeds in peat pots in your window or greenhouse, or coldframe.

One thing is important for melon seed: they need lots of heat for good germination. Below 70 degs. the seed is apt to rot before it gets a chance to sprout. Use a loose mixture of sand and peat, with some rotted compost. Melon seed needs a loose mix for proper germination. After the plants are safe enough to set outdoors, plant peat pot and all.

Free: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy of my bulletin, How to Grow Melons, Watermelons and Cucumbers. My guide has a lot of good tips in it for you.

A GOOD ANNUAL: If you're looking for something a bit different in your flower bed this summer, why not grow some cockscomb (Celosia). This is an old-fashioned flower which has made a great comeback, greatly improved. All cockscomb likes a light soil and full sun. The flowers last a long time if dried as you do the "everlastings" by hanging them upside down in the garage. There are all kinds of cockscomb to choose from — tall, dwarf, plumed or crested. Start your seed indoors in April and keep the young plants growing without check. If allowed to get dry for any length of time, the plants will remain stunted all through the growing season and nothing can be done to pep them up.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "We have a fine old fashioned apple tree (Fameuse or Snow-apple) in the back yard, but it is full of old wood. Please tell me how to prune it."

Answer: In a nutshell, you can prune a neglected apple tree by cutting the top back about ¼, also thin out some of the inside branches so light can enter. Cut out any dead wood, branches which rub or criss-cross and remove watersprouts or suckers which come up from the base. Spray your tree with Sevin, methoxychlor or malathion for pest control.

Sticky Treasure

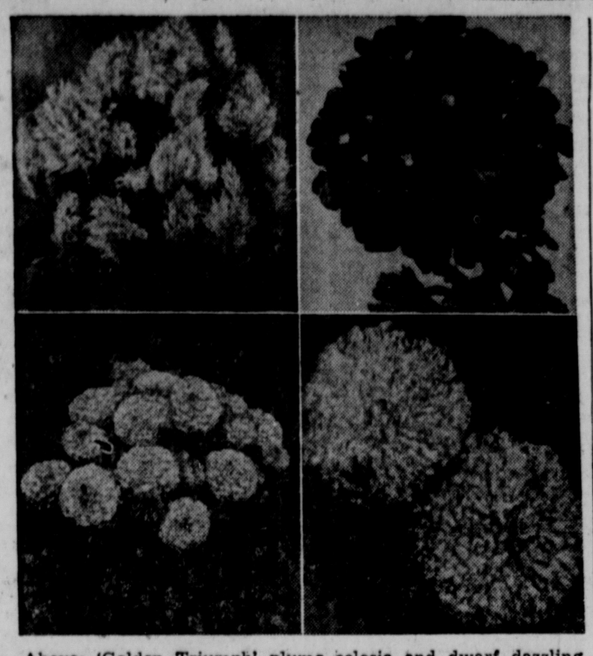

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Ever hear of a 3-foot long stick becoming a museum treasure?

The museum, trying to gather items representing all phases of Navajo life, recently purchased a chollawood digging stick like those used by early Navajo farmers, and the Pueblo Indians before them, in preparing ground.

The digging stick was made by David Corman, a Navajo elder who lives in the Canyon de Chelly, Ariz., area of the Navajo reservation.

One end of the implement is whittled to a blunt point; the opposite end is wedge-shaped with two flatly carved surfaces. The outer bark has been removed.

Trees Get Lease on Life From Washington

Shade trees have taken on new importance in the living needs of suburbs.

With a push from Washington, builders and local governments are being urged to plan orderly new suburbs and expanding existing developments, even to avoiding bulldozing away trees in residential areas.

Robert A. Bartlett, president of the Bartlett Tree Expert Co., said that farsighted development of suburbs to meet the nation's growth needs should, as government planners recommend, include miles of new streets and utility lines, water and sewage facilities, but sufficient trees as well.

"Shade trees," said Mr. Bartlett, "are a community's investment in the future. Trees make a community livable. They give beauty, mute traffic noises, break up harsh wintry blasts, lure birds, help clean polluted air and green the world.

"The best trees must be preserved from bulldozer blight, whether it's during street widening or carving new developments out of wooded stands.

"New trees must be planted, and the right species chosen."

Mr. Bartlett noted that urban populations pushing into suburbs for more living space frequently resulted in expansion of suburbs in an unplanned and uneconomical way, and often the needless loss of trees.

Shade trees, according to Mr. Bartlett, can be adapted for suburban plots no matter how small, for streets and parks, for schools and playgrounds and shopping centers.

"But," he emphasized, "they must be given care. Tree environment is being changed with building changes, and we must assist trees to adjust to these changes.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON

The 51st International Flower Show and Garden Fair in New York City's Coliseum, March 2-10, featured a large variety of new items.

One was a "sniff garden" of fragrant herbs by the Tool Shed Herb Farm of Purdy's Station, N.Y. The exhibit included herbs and allied plants used in the manufacture of perfumes, soaps and cosmetics. In a covered shed were old tools illustrating the making of perfumes and soaps.

Two Omurosakii Azalea (Lavender) more than six feet in diameter were shown by Dauernheim of Wantagh, Long Island. The huge specimens featured a southern azalea garden. A redwood path led from a garden gate to masses of indica azaleas in organe tones. White flowering crab apple trees bordered a small pool.

The new "Patricia Andrea" geranium with double carmine rose flowers and waxy leaves was shown by Dalsimer of Cedarhurst, N.Y.

For the first time, there was an unusual garden of lilacs, displayed by Lilac Time of Rochester, N.Y. Highland Park experts, through special methods, forced the lilacs to bloom in time for the show.

The New York Botanical Garden had a fasinating wild flower exhibit. Included were insectivorous plants, known as pitcher plants, that dine on winged insects they trap. Don't feed the plants, the Garden warns. It's dangerous to the plants.

Burpee Seeds had a "movable garden" designed by horticulturist-author Jerome Eaton which demonstrated the flexibility possible through the use of popular annuals planted in pots. Eaton said this permits having a temporary garden in the city or the country, by a pool, terrace, doorway or even on a hard surface. The key to the Burpee exhibit was flaming color of massed annuals, with hybrid marigolds and asters as the basic plans.

The International Show is a non-profit operation. Proceeds beyond the cost are used for scholarships for deserving students in the horticulture arts and for research projects benefiting gardeners.

If allowed to get dry for any length of time, the plants will remain stunted all through the growing season and nothing can be done to pep them up.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "We have a fine old fashioned apple tree (Fameuse or Snow apple) in the back yard, but it is full of old wood. Please tell me how to prune it."

Answer: In a nutshell, you can prune a neglected apple tree by cutting the top back about ¼, also thin out some of the inside branches so light can enter. Cut out any dead wood, branches which rub or crisscross and remove watersprouts or suckers which come up from the base. Spray your tree with Sevin, methoxychlor or malathion for pest control.

Sticky Treasure

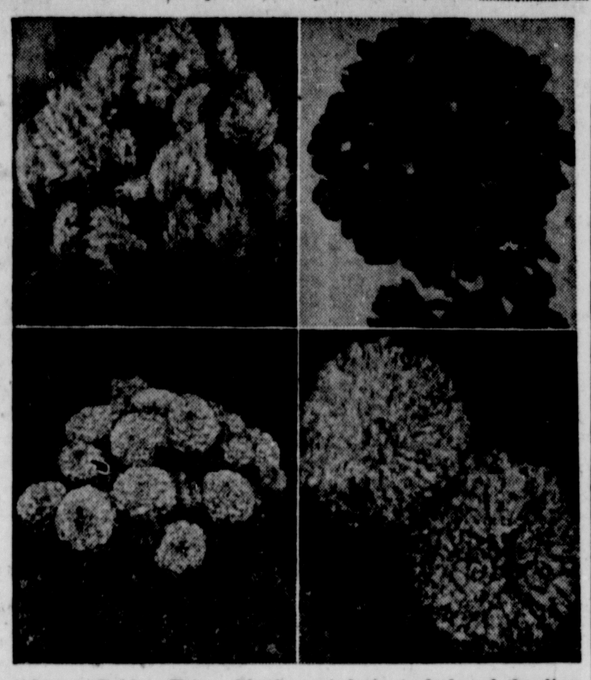

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Ever hear of a 3-foot long stick becoming a museum treasure?

The museum, trying to gather items representing all phases of Navajo life, recently purchased a chollawood digging stick like those used by early Navajo farmers, and the Pueblo Indians before them, in preparing ground.

The digging stick was made by David Corman, a Navajo elder who lives in the Canyon de Chelly, Ariz., area of the Navajo reservation.

One end of the implement is whittled to a blunt point; the opposite end is wedge-shaped with two flatly carved surfaces. The outer bark has been removed.

Trees Get Lease on Life From Washington

Shade trees have taken on new importance in the living needs of suburbs.

With a push from Washington, builders and local governments are being urged to plan orderly new suburbs and expanding existing developments, even to avoiding bulldozing away trees in residential areas.

Robert A. Bartlett, president of the Bartlett Tree Expert Co., said that farsighted development of suburbs to meet the nation's growth needs should, as government planners recommend, include miles of new streets and utility lines, water and sewage facilities, but sufficient trees as well.

"Shade trees," said Mr. Bartlett, "are a community's investment in the future. Trees make a community livable. They give beauty, mute traffic noises, break up harsh wintry blasts, lure birds, help clean polluted air and green the world.

"The best trees must be preserved from bulldozer blight, whether it's during street widening or carving new developments out of wooded stands.

Mr. Bartlett noted that urban populations pushing into suburbs for more living space frequently resulted in expansion of suburbs in an unplanned and uneconomical way, and often the needless loss of trees.

Shade trees, according to Mr. Bartlett, can be adapted for suburban plots no matter how small, for streets and parks, for schools and playgrounds and shopping centers.

"But," he emphasized, "they must be given care. Tree environment is being changed with building changes, and we must assist trees to adjust to these changes.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON

One was a "sniff garden" of fragrant herbs by the Tool Shed Herb Farm of Purdy's Station, N.Y. The exhibit included herbs and allied plants used in the manufacture of perfumes, soaps and cosmetics. In a covered shed were old tools illustrating the making of perfumes and soaps.

Two Omurosakii Azalea (Lavender) more than six feet in diameter were shown by Dauernheim of Wantagh, Long Island. The huge specimens featured a southern azalea garden. A redwood path led from a garden gate to masses of indica azaleas in organe tones. White flowering crab apple trees bordered a small pool.

For the first time, there was an unusual garden of lilacs, displayed by Lilac Time of Rochester, N.Y. Highland Park experts, through special methods, forced the lilacs to bloom in time for the show.

Twenty different trees of the pine family, native, Oriental and European, in different sizes and textures, came from Adolf Heimlich's Woburn, Mass., garden.

The New York Botanical Garden had a fasinating wild flower exhibit. Included were insectivorous plants, known as pitcher plants, that dine on winged insects they trap. Don't feed the plants, the Garden warns. It's dangerous to the plants.

Burpee Seeds had a "movable garden" designed by horticulturist-author Jerome Eaton which demonstrated the flexibility possible through the use of popular annuals planted in pots. Eaton said this permits having a temporary garden in the city or the country, by a pool, terrace, doorway or even on a hard surface. The key to the Burpee exhibit was flaming color of massed annuals, with hybrid marigolds and asters as the basic plans.

The International Show is a non-profit operation. Proceeds beyond the cost are used for scholarships for deserving students in the horticulture arts and for research projects benefiting gardeners.

Kennedy's Entry Into Race Splits College Students

NEW YORK (AP) — The entry of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy into the presidential race apparently would produce a deep split among college students across the United States, an Associated Press survey showed today.

"I think Bobby Kennedy is playing it very safe and is stabbing Gene McCarthy right in the back," said Pamela Dwyer of Edison, N.J., a 21-year-old senior at Smith College and editor of the student newspaper.

"I think the students will follow a dove and a dynamic one like Kennedy, rather than the college professor type like McCarthy," said Jim Huegli, vice president of the student body at Oregon State University.

Of the students questioned, those who clearly favored Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy outnumbered the Kennedy backers about 2-to-1.

Feel Chances Better

But underlying the division, there were many others who said they favored McCarthy—but would switch to Kennedy because they feel he would have a better chance of defeating President Johnson.

"Ive been for McCarthy but I will switch to Kennedy because the primary thing in this election is to defeat Lyndon Johnson," said David Shulte of Livingston, N.J., 21-year-old president of the senior honor society at Williams College.

'If it takes Kennedy and his political pull to do it," he said, "then that's what it takes."

"Idealistically, I favor McCarthy over Kennedy," said Walt Murray, former editor of the student newspaper at California State College at Long Beach, "but it is quite obvious that Kennedy can defeat Johnson (in the California primary), whereas McCarthy cannot."

A strain of anger also runs through the answers. The word "opportunist" was applied to Kennedy repeatedly.

"There is no magic any more to the Kennedy name," said Michael Sweeney, editor of the Stanford Daily.

William Green, 21, editor of the student newspaper at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire—where McCarthy won 42 per cent of the primary vote with help from hundreds of volunteer college students—had this reaction, echoing many other replies:

"Kennedy missed his chance to really do something significant in regard to the war. Now if he decides to run, I think it will alienate a lot of college students who will stick by Sen. McCarthy.

"McCarthy had enough courage to stick by his convictions and run. After McCarthy spoke here, he transformed the campus—he became a hero. Even students who normally had been disinterested in politics were charmed by him. There was no baloney, not a lot of empty words. He has given us a chance to protest within the framework of the political system.

"Kennedy comes off now as an opportunist, now that he sees he has a chance. McCarthy is less concerned with party loyalty and more concerned with loyalty to his own principals. Kennedy didn't have enough guts to get in there when the going was tough. McCarthy is not a manipulator—Kennedy now begins to look like one."

Will Back Eugene

Twenty-five students at the Yale Law School said in an open letter that McCarthy's "courage and humanity have captured our loyalty and we shall stand behind him as long as he is a candidate for the nomination."

The U.S. Census Bureau said it does not have up to date figures on voters for the November election, but an earlier projection set the number of persons who will be old enough to vote, but who were too young in 1964, at 12.6 million.

Appoint DeWitt To Committee

Deweese W. DeWitt, president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 235 Fair Street, has been appointed to the national committee on Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation Laws and Regulations for the United States Savings and Loan League.

In appointing DeWitt and urging his acceptance, Hans Gehrke Jr., Chicago, president of the USLL, stressed the valuable contributions which could be made by the local appointee by virtue of his long affiliation with the national picture as well as his acquaintance with the problems pertaining to the insurance of accounts.

This national committee is charged with the responsibility of studying the current legislative proposals and regulations affecting the insurance of accounts and those associations which have their savings accounts insured by the FSLIC.

DeWitt will be the local delegate at an executive committee meeting of the group scheduled for the national convention to be held at Miami Beach, Fla., from Nov. 10 through Nov. 15.

Rocky to Meet With Oregon Draft Leaders

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller will meet with 12 members of the Oregon Draft-Rockefeller Committee Sunday —five days before the date by which Rockefeller has said he will announce his plans for that state's Republican presidential primary.

Rockefeller has until March 22 to decide whether he wants to leave his name on the Oregon primary ballot or file an affidavit that he is not a presidential candidate.

The governor's office said Thursday Rockefeller would meet with the group at his New York City apartment Sunday morning. A news conference was scheduled for noon.

The Oregon delegation urged Rockefeller earlier this week to put off a decision on whether he should participate in the May 28 contest until the group could report on its activities in his behalf.

Regulations Passed to Aid Migrant Help

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Owners of migrant labor camps will have to maintain suitable housing conditions for migratory farm workers under new regulations included in the State Sanitary Code.

State Health Commissioner Hollis H. Ingraham said Thursday that the regulations were designed to safeguard the health and safety of migrant workers, including protection against rates.

— Make sure that all rooms are heated to at least 68 degrees between Oct. 1 and May 1, with fuel provided free to tenants, and provide at least one facility for hand washing—with hot and cold running water—for each 15 persons by Jan. 1, 1969.

—Make sure that any milk or milk products sold are pasteurized.

The department said camp owners who violate the regulations would be denied state permits to conduct work with migrant workers.

Brothers Drown

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Two young brothers, who were playing on a frozen creek, have drowned.

Alfred Cummings, 6 and his brother Jesse, 5, had been playing with a sled on Meads Creek in the Town of Campbell, about seven miles northeast of here, police said, when they went through the ice.

Their stepfather, Alfred Ames, told State Police he had called the boys several times and went to the creek when he did not receive an answer.

He said he saw a hole in the ice and one of the boy's jackets floating on the surface. Ames and neighbors recovered the bodies.

Kennedy's Entry Into Race Splits College Students

NEW YORK (AP) — The entry of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy into the presidential race apparently would produce a deep split among college students across the United States, an Associated Press survey showed today.

"I think Bobby Kennedy is playing it very safe and is stabbing Gene McCarthy right in the back," said Pamela Dwyer of Edison, N.J., a 21-year-old senior at Smith College and editor of the student newspaper.

"I think the students will follow a dove and a dynamic one like Kennedy, rather than the college professor type like McCarthy," said Jim Huegli, vice president of the student body at Oregon State University.

Of the students questioned, those who clearly favored Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy outnumbered the Kennedy backers about 2-to-1.

Feel Chances Better

But underlying the division, there were many others who said they favored McCarthy—but would switch to Kennedy because they feel he would have a better chance of defeating President Johnson.

"Ive been for McCarthy but I will switch to Kennedy because the primary thing in this election is to defeat Lyndon Johnson," said David Shulte of Livingston, N.J., 21-year-old president of the senior honor society at Williams College.

'If it takes Kennedy and his political pull to do it," he said, "then that's what it takes."

"Idealistically, I favor McCarthy over Kennedy," said Walt Murray, former editor of the student newspaper at California State College at Long Beach, "but it is quite obvious that Kennedy can defeat Johnson (in the California primary), whereas McCarthy cannot."

A strain of anger also runs through the answers. The word "opportunist" was applied to Kennedy repeatedly.

"There is no magic any more to the Kennedy name," said Michael Sweeney, editor of the Stanford Daily.

William Green, 21, editor of the student newspaper at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire—where McCarthy won 42 per cent of the primary vote with help from hundreds of volunteer college students—had this reaction, echoing many other replies:

"Kennedy missed his chance to really do something significant in regard to the war. Now if he decides to run, I think it will alienate a lot of college students who will stick by Sen. McCarthy.

"McCarthy had enough courage to stick by his convictions and run. After McCarthy spoke here, he transformed the campus—he became a hero. Even students who normally had been disinterested in politics were charmed by him. There was no baloney, not a lot of empty words. He has given us a chance to protest within the framework of the political system.

"Kennedy comes off now as an opportunist, now that he sees he has a chance. McCarthy is less concerned with party loyalty and more concerned with loyalty to his own principals. Kennedy didn't have enough guts to get in there when the going was tough. McCarthy is not a manipulator—Kennedy now begins to look like one."

Will Back Eugene

Twenty-five students at the Yale Law School said in an open letter that McCarthy's "courage and humanity have captured our loyalty and we shall stand behind him as long as he is a candidate for the nomination."

The U.S. Census Bureau said it does not have up to date figures on voters for the November election, but an earlier projection set the number of persons who will be old enough to vote, but who were too young in 1964, at 12.6 million.

Appoint DeWitt To Committee

Deweese W. DeWitt, president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 235 Fair Street, has been appointed to the national committee on Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation Laws and Regulations for the United States Savings and Loan League.

In appointing DeWitt and urging his acceptance, Hans Gehrke Jr., Chicago, president of the USLL, stressed the valuable contributions which could be made by the local appointee by virtue of his long affiliation with the national picture as well as his acquaintance with the problems pertaining to the insurance of accounts.

This national committee is charged with the responsibility of studying the current legislative proposals and regulations affecting the insurance of accounts and those associations which have their savings accounts insured by the FSLIC.

DeWitt will be the local delegate at an executive committee meeting of the group scheduled for the national convention to be held at Miami Beach, Fla., from Nov. 10 through Nov. 15.

Rocky to Meet With Oregon Draft Leaders

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller will meet with 12 members of the Oregon Draft-Rockefeller Committee Sunday —five days before the date by which Rockefeller has said he will announce his plans for that state's Republican presidential primary.

Rockefeller has until March 22 to decide whether he wants to leave his name on the Oregon primary ballot or file an affidavit that he is not a presidential candidate.

The governor's office said Thursday Rockefeller would meet with the group at his New York City apartment Sunday morning. A news conference was scheduled for noon.

The Oregon delegation urged Rockefeller earlier this week to put off a decision on whether he should participate in the May 28 contest until the group could report on its activities in his behalf.

The New York governor won the 1964 presidential primary in Oregon.

Regulations Passed to Aid Migrant Help

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Owners of migrant labor camps will have to maintain suitable housing conditions for migratory farm workers under new regulations included in the State Sanitary Code.

State Health Commissioner Hollis H. Ingraham said Thursday that the regulations were designed to safeguard the health and safety of migrant workers, including protection against rates.

— Provide natural ventilation in all rooms, including mess halls, bathrooms and washrooms.

— Make sure that all rooms are heated to at least 68 degrees between Oct. 1 and May 1, with fuel provided free to tenants, and provide at least one facility for hand washing—with hot and cold running water—for each 15 persons by Jan. 1, 1969.

—Make sure that any milk or milk products sold are pasteurized.

The department said camp owners who violate the regulations would be denied state permits to conduct work with migrant workers.

Brothers Drown

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Two young brothers, who were playing on a frozen creek, have drowned.

Alfred Cummings, 6 and his brother Jesse, 5, had been playing with a sled on Meads Creek in the Town of Campbell, about seven miles northeast of here, police said, when they went through the ice.

Their stepfather, Alfred Ames, told State Police he had called the boys several times and went to the creek when he did not receive an answer.

He said he saw a hole in the ice and one of the boy's jackets floating on the surface. Ames and neighbors recovered the bodies.

Meditation Guest

The Rev. George Lockwood, pastor of the Free Methodist Church, Kingston, will be the speaker for Morning Meditations on WGHQ, Tuesday and Saturday morning at 6:15 this coming week.

The program is sponsored by the Hudson Valley Evangelical Ministerial Association.

Onteora Lions' Teen Dance Set March 23

The Onteora Lions Club will sponsor a teenage dance Saturday, March 23, from 11:30 p. m. at the West Hurley Firehall.

Music will be provided by the "Intruders," a six-man rock and roll group from Onteora High School. The Intruders have performed at numerous events in the area, and have a large local teenage following.

The dance will be the first of its kind in the West Hurley area this year, and is being offered especially for the teenage students of Onteora School. If this dance proves successful, others will be sponsored by the Onteora Lions Club in the near future, they report.

Refreshments will be available and adult chaperones will be present. All proceeds will be used toward the promotion of needed community activities and projects in the Onteora area. Further information may be obtained by contacting Floyd A. Robbins, publicity director.

Killed in Mishap

HOMER, N.Y. (AP) — Carl J. Story, 44, of Homer, was killed Thursday night when the automobile in which he was riding struck a culvert beside Route 13 near this central New York village.

Dear Abby

Leave Well Enough Alone

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I are both widows (in our sixties) and live in separate houses in a small town. We are very congenial, go everywhere together, enjoy each other's company, and you might say we are inseparable.

My married daughter lives in another town close by. She says I am in a rut (she is right)—that my sister and I see too much of each other and need to go our separate ways for a while. So my daughter has invited me to take a vacation with her just to get away from the same old routine—and she surely doesn't want to include my sister.

I told my daughter that I couldn't just up and go on a trip without inviting my sister because she would be so hurt and I couldn't blame her. I know how I would feel if she did that to me.

So I am on the spot. What should I do? Should I go with my daughter and hurt my sister, or stay home and hurt my daughter?

ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Your daughter may be well-intentioned, but she is putting you on the spot. Perhaps a vacation away from your sister would get you out of a "rut" — but at what a price! As long as you and your sister enjoy each other's company and are congenial, perhaps that "rut" is not such a bad one. Pass up the trip with your daughter. If you were to go, your conscience would prevent you from enjoying it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I recently telephoned a friend of mine and asked her if she was going to be home that evening because I wanted to visit her, and she said, "Yes, I'll be home, watching my favorite television program, so if you want to come over and watch it with me, you are welcome. Otherwise, let's make it some other time."

What do you think of such a friend?

INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: I'd prefer her forthright brand of frankness to the person who tells me I'm "welcome," forgoes her favorite TV program, and resents me for it. Or, the friend who tries to entertain me with one eye on the TV.

DEAR ABBY: Can you help us get the message across to our 16-year-old daughter that it is in extremely poor taste for young people to put on a show of affection in public? I refer to the disgusting manner in which a girl will hang on a boy, and let him put his hands all over her. Our daughter walks down the street with her arm around her boyfriend's waist and vice versa. And when they drive together in an automobile, she practically sits on his lap.

Our daughter says she sees nothing wrong with it. Maybe you can tell her. We can't

OLD FASHIONED

DEAR OLD FASHIONED: Hello, "young lovers" (wherever you are) and for the "older" ones, too: All the world may love a lover, but he doesn't have to act out his role in public. A boy who respects a girl will keep his hands off her in public, and a girl who respects herself, will make sure he does.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Horoscope — By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars —

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 16, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accept restrictions. Don't battle against your own interests. Perceive fact that some documents, agreements may be out of order. Time for waiting, reviewing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Avoid extremes. Study ARIES message. Day features concentration on health, work. Some who have served you may appear in rebellious mood. Be quiet within — answers are forthcoming.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): you insist on arguing with member of opposite sex. Something could go out of your life today to be replaced by different opportunity or challenge.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stress independence of thought, action. Invest in your own abilities. Shake-ups at home tend to prove stimulating. Don't feel you must do everything as it was done in past. Move forward.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Check directions, instructions. Be sure maps are up-to-date. Take special care in traffic. Not good for unnecessary travel, driving. Be sure machinery is safe. Guard against accidents.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Money affairs subject to pressure, change. Expect the unexpected. Means people tend to do an about-face. Your position strengthened through display of versatility. Say yes to expansion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Pressure on marriage, partnership angle. Study strength of opposition. Make moves based on observable factors. Don't speculate. Adhere to your own style. No day to imitate or copy others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get to root of matters. Individuals behind the scenes should be questioned. Aid you may require is available. But you may have to consult special group, organization. Do so—soon.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid being extravagant in entertaining friends, associates. Quality should be combined with simplicity. Entertain at home if possible. Strive for harmony, understanding within family.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Conflict between tradition and what you must do to advance is evident. Handle situation with tact. Don't force issues. Be conservative without being backward. Go forward at even pace.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Recent thoughts concerning vacation, travel may have to be revised. Facts do not bear out pleasant stories. Means get to heart of matter. Study costs, time element in realistic manner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Day to finish rather than begin projects. Some look to you as example. Be aware of this. Act accordingly Money affairs of mate, partner grab spotlight. Observe, calculate but don't interfere.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you tend to be introspective. You are intuitive, possess degree of extrasensory perception. Nurture marriage and partnership ties. Relationship is under strain. Mature attitude on your part saves the day.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Lunar position good for fishing. Cycle continues high for LIBRA. Partnerships break-up—and famous persons may announce breaks in relationships.

Bridge

Unusual N. T. Works Well

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Alvin Roth of New York is one of the world's greatest players. He is also one of the inventors of the Roth-Stone system. Bridge players can get along without some of the Roth system, but they can't get innovations. Two of these—the unusual no-trump and the negative double—are found in almost every expert kit today.

One of his newest ideas is the unusual cue bid. Today's hand shows the Roth unusual cue bid in action. North wants to be in game and offhand it appears that a no-trump game will be the best spot. In fact North has a typical two no-trump call over West's spade overcall. If he makes that bid, South will raise to three no-trump. East will open a spade, South's queen will bite the dust, North will take a diamond finesse and West will collect six tricks. North and South will complain about bad luck and someone will deal the next hand.

The bidding in the box shows how Alvin would get the no-trump contract into the South hand. North's two spade call is a Roth cue bid and asks partner to bid no-trump with a partial spade stopper. South complies, North raises to three no-trump and nothing can bother South. A spade lead will hold declarer to 10 tricks. Against the club lead he can and probably will make 11, but the important thing is that three no-trump is safe as Fort Knox.

We don't recommend this Roth cue bid for any but welldeveloped partnerships. It doesn't come up often, and if it is going to confuse you when it does, you had better leave it alone. How do you handle a regular slam try cue bid when you are playing this convention? This is easy indeed. The cue bidder repeats the cue bid to show that it is a real one.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Spontaneous generation, the theory that known forms of life emerge from inanimate matter, was proved incorrect by Francesco Redi in 1668 and Louis Pasteur in 1862, says The World Almanac. Redi showed that insect larvae appearing in rotting meat are not produced spontaneously but come from eggs laid in the meat by other insects. Pasteur proved that bacteria causing fermentation are not spontaneously generated, but are carried in the atmosphere.

effervescent (e-fer-ve-sent) gay; happy; bubbling

The handsome scientist, a man who is both charming and effervescent, is always seen in the company of attractive, young women.

Two happy men, whose efferescent personalities seemed to sparkle when they talked, were laughing at the antics of their friend who had been erroneously arrested by the police.

The fat nurse, a woman whose effervescent charm was apparent, claimed that someday she would marry a good-looking millionaire.

Dear Abby

Leave Well Enough Alone

(© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I are both widows (in our sixties) and live in separate houses in a small town. We are very congenial, go everywhere together, enjoy each other's company, and you might say we are inseparable.

My married daughter lives in another town close by. She says I am in a rut (she is right)—that my sister and I see too much of each other and need to go our separate ways for a while. So my daughter has invited me to take a vacation with her just to get away from the same old routine—and she surely doesn't want to include my sister.

I told my daughter that I couldn't just up and go on a trip without inviting my sister because she would be so hurt and I couldn't blame her. I know how I would feel if she did that to me.

So I am on the spot. What should I do? Should I go with my daughter and hurt my sister, or stay home and hurt my daughter?

ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Your daughter may be well-intentioned, but she is putting you on the spot. Perhaps a vacation away from your sister would get you out of a "rut" — but at what a price! As long as you and your sister enjoy each other's company and are congenial, perhaps that "rut" is not such a bad one. Pass up the trip with your daughter. If you were to go, your conscience would prevent you from enjoying it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I recently telephoned a friend of mine and asked her if she was going to be home that evening because I wanted to visit her, and she said, "Yes, I'll be home, watching my favorite television program, so if you want to come over and watch it with me, you are welcome. Otherwise, let's make it some other time."

What do you think of such a friend?

INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: I'd prefer her forthright brand of frankness to the person who tells me I'm "welcome," forgoes her favorite TV program, and resents me for it. Or, the friend who tries to entertain me with one eye on the TV.

DEAR ABBY: Can you help us get the message across to our 16-year-old daughter that it is in extremely poor taste for young people to put on a show of affection in public? I refer to the disgusting manner in which a girl will hang on a boy, and let him put his hands all over her. Our daughter walks down the street with her arm around her boyfriend's waist and vice versa. And when they drive together in an automobile, she practically sits on his lap.

Our daughter says she sees nothing wrong with it. Maybe you can tell her. We can't.

OLD FASHIONED

DEAR OLD FASHIONED: Hello, "young lovers" (wherever you are) and for the "older" ones, too: All the world may love a lover, but he doesn't have to act out his role in public. A boy who respects a girl will keep his hands off her in public, and a girl who respects herself, will make sure he does.

Bridge

Unusual N. T. Works Well

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Alvin Roth of New York is one of the world's greatest players. He is also one of the inventors of the Roth-Stone system. Bridge players can get along without some of the Roth system, but they can't get innovations. Two of these—the unusual no-trump and the negative double—are found in almost every expert kit today.

One of his newest ideas is the unusual cue bid. Today's hand shows the Roth unusual cue bid in action. North wants to be in game and offhand it appears that a no-trump game will be the best spot. In fact North has a typical two no-trump call over West's spade overcall. If he makes that bid, South will raise to three no-trump. East will open a spade, South's queen will bite the dust, North will take a diamond finesse and West will collect six tricks. North and South will complain about bad luck and someone will deal the next hand.

The bidding in the box shows how Alvin would get the no-trump contract into the South hand. North's two spade call is a Roth cue bid and asks partner to bid no-trump with a partial spade stopper. South complies, North raises to three no-trump and nothing can bother South. A spade lead will hold declarer to 10 tricks. Against the club lead he can and probably will make 11, but the important thing is that three no-trump is safe as Fort Knox.

We don't recommend this Roth cue bid for any but welldeveloped partnerships. It doesn't come up often, and if it is going to confuse you when it does, you had better leave it alone. How do you handle a regular slam try cue bid when you are playing this convention? This is easy indeed. The cue bidder repeats the cue bid to show that it is a real one.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Spontaneous generation, the theory that known forms of life emerge from inanimate matter, was proved incorrect by Francesco Redi in 1668 and Louis Pasteur in 1862, says The World Almanac. Redi showed that insect larvae appearing in rotting meat are not produced spontaneously but come from eggs laid in the meat by other insects. Pasteur proved that bacteria causing fermentation are not spontaneously generated, but are carried in the atmosphere.

'Ironside'---Smart Thinking

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There was some smart thinking in the creation of the character Robert Ironside, a crusty, short-tempered cop with a heart of pure golden putty. And it seems now to have been a stroke of almost genius that put him into a wheelchair.

The NBC series "Ironside" not only has this character around to solve a crime a week, but uses it to give the program flexibility.

Thursday night, for instance, the story was designed to melt the heart of every sentimental viewer—with Ironside taking on the protection, care and feeding of a small and very cute foundling.

Just Incidental

The story was built around the baby—its mother trying to escape from an ex-husband, a mental case, and the last minute capture of the madman. But that was only incidental to the scenes of business-like policemen and women fussing over the child. It was "Little Miss Marker" brought up to date, but the idea has lost none of its warmth.

The series, with Raymond Burr as Ironside particularly contributing to the variety and depth of the episodes, has stood up very well all season. It seems to deserve its popularity and almost automatic renewal for a second season.

NBC has found an insurance sponsor so next season it plans to hop aboard the original drama bandwagon that this season has proved so successful and prestigious for CBS.

NBC has announced plans for five such dramatic specials. Plans already are being firmed up for one 90-minute show to be shot in England with Sir Laurence Olivier as host and narrator, and starring Michael Caine, Sean Connery and Paul Scofield.

The series will be called "On Stage," and the first will be broadcast in September or October.

NBC's experiment with original drama this season, a play called "Flesh and Blood," cost a fortune to acquire and produce, but was panned by the critics and pulled very low ratings.

Series-Serial Idea

ABC has come up with a series idea that is a cross between a series and a serial. Best-selling novelist Harold Robbins has been signed to develop "The Survivors."

The idea is to have recurring characters and, while each episode would be complete, it would follow some sort of chronological sequence like soap opera. It may be ready for a midseason replacement next season.

NBC will broadcast a second adaptation of a John Steinbeck book Sunday. The first was "America and Americans," and now comes "Travels with Charley." The latter is an account of his reactions during a 10,000-mile trip with his poodle that took him from New York to California. Henry Fonda once again will be the voice for Steinbecks words in the narration.

However, the little man persuaded the foreman to let him take a crack at a big Douglas fir nearby, marched over to the tree with an axe as big as himself and within seconds the tree was on the ground.

Mr. Jones (the foreman) — Wait a minute, Where did a squirt like you ever learn to cut trees down like that?

Mr. Small (the 97-pound weakling)—Well, I got most of my experience in the Sahara Forest.

Mr. Jones (the foreman) — Sahara Forest? I thought that was the Sahara Desert.

Mr. Small (shrugged) — Yeah—now.

'Ironside'---Smart Thinking

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There was some smart thinking in the creation of the character Robert Ironside, a crusty, short-tempered cop with a heart of pure golden putty. And it seems now to have been a stroke of almost genius that put him into a wheelchair.

The NBC series "Ironside" not only has this character around to solve a crime a week, but uses it to give the program flexibility.

Thursday night, for instance, the story was designed to melt the heart of every sentimental viewer—with Ironside taking on the protection, care and feeding of a small and very cute foundling.

Just Incidental

The story was built around the baby—its mother trying to escape from an ex-husband, a mental case, and the last minute capture of the madman. But that was only incidental to the scenes of business-like policemen and women fussing over the child. It was "Little Miss Marker" brought up to date, but the idea has lost none of its warmth.

The series, with Raymond Burr as Ironside particularly contributing to the variety and depth of the episodes, has stood up very well all season. It seems to deserve its popularity and almost automatic renewal for a second season.

NBC has found an insurance sponsor so next season it plans to hop aboard the original drama bandwagon that this season has proved so successful and prestigious for CBS.

NBC has announced plans for five such dramatic specials. Plans already are being firmed up for one 90-minute show to be shot in England with Sir Laurence Olivier as host and narrator, and starring Michael Caine, Sean Connery and Paul Scofield.

The series will be called "On Stage," and the first will be broadcast in September or October.

NBC's experiment with original drama this season, a play called "Flesh and Blood," cost a fortune to acquire and produce, but was panned by the critics and pulled very low ratings.

Series-Serial Idea

ABC has come up with a series idea that is a cross between a series and a serial. Best-selling novelist Harold Robbins has been signed to develop "The Survivors."

The idea is to have recurring characters and, while each episode would be complete, it would follow some sort of chronological sequence like soap opera. It may be ready for a midseason replacement next season.

NBC will broadcast a second adaptation of a John Steinbeck book Sunday. The first was "America and Americans," and now comes "Travels with Charley." The latter is an account of his reactions during a 10,000-mile trip with his poodle that took him from New York to California. Henry Fonda once again will be the voice for Steinbecks words in the narration.

A scrawny, pallid little man applied one day for a job at a rough, tough Canadian lumber camp. The foreman at the camp took one look at the unmanly specimen, and was ready to boot him quickly out of the lumber camp.

However, the little man persuaded the foreman to let him take a crack at a big Douglas fir nearby, marched over to the tree with an axe as big as himself and within seconds the tree was on the ground.

Mr. Jones (the foreman) — Wait a minute, Where did a squirt like you ever learn to cut trees down like that?

Mr. Small (the 97-pound weakling)—Well, I got most of my experience in the Sahara Forest.

Mr. Jones (the foreman) — Sahara Forest? I thought that was the Sahara Desert.

Mr. Small (shrugged) — Yeah—now.

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has sent to President Johnson a bill to lift the 25 per cent gold cover on U.S. currency and free America's gold reserves for us as ammunition in the international financial crisis.

Excise Bill Approved

Before the Senate's late-evening 39-37 vote sent the House-passed measure to the White House, the Senate Finance Committee approved an excise tax bill viewed by the administration as another key economic weapon.

The bill would retain excise tax rates on telephones and automobiles at current levels rather than letting them drop sharply. It is aimed at fighting inflation and reducing the federal budget deficit. Senate action on the gold cover bill came as the London gold market—target for a massive wave of speculative buying—announced it would close down today at the suggestion of the United States.

The administration had called for passage of the gold cover bill to provide concrete evidence of U.S. determination to maintain the price of gold at $35 an ounce. The bill would free the entire U.S. gold stock—now about $11.4 billion—to meet international commitments.

Speculators are gambling they can profit by forcing the United States to increase the price of gold.

During debate on the gold cover bill, Republicans promised that the Senate soon will get a chance to vote on a tax increase-spending cut package when the body takes up the excise tax bill.

Before approving the excise tax measure, the Senate Finance Committee defeated 9 to 8 a proposal to boost income taxes 10 per cent and to cut federal spending $8 billion in the year ahead.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., the author, pledged he would reoffer the proposal in the Senate debate.

High administration officials, at a Finance Committee hearing earlier in the day, refused to support the spending ceiling. They said it was the wrong way to go about cutting federal expenditures.

Some Common Questions On the Financial Front

By GEORGE TAYLOR

NEW YORK (AP) — What happens to your pay check if the price of gold is increased? Will a car cost you more money?

These are some of the questions people ask when the talk and the headlines turn to the international gold situation.

Economists interviewed by The Associated Press provided these answers to some of the most common questions:

Q—How would a man in the street be affected by an increase in the price of gold from the present rate of $35 an ounce.

A—An increase would mean that the United States had devalued the dollar. At home, pay checks, bank accounts, the costs of domestic products, and real estate would show no change.

The dollar would buy less gold but it would continue to purchase the same amount of goods—housing, cars—as it did prior to devaluation. However, imported goods might cost more.

Any Benefits

A—Hoarders and speculators in foreign countries would reap the immediate profits if they had bought gold for $35 an ounce and sold it, at say, $70. Some economists say doubling the price would end speculative attacks on the dollar since hoarders and speculators presumably would get rid of their gold at the higher price.

Q—Could there be detrimental effects?

A—Some economists foresee a breakdown in world trade and commerce, which has been pegged to gold being worth $35 an ounce. If world trade slumps, jobs would dwindle. Over the long run an inflationary trend would develop.

Q—Why is the price of gold held at $35 an ounce?

A—This is the price at which the United States has guaranteed since 1934 to buy and sell gold. It's the keystone of international finance.

Q—Why a price increase for gold?

A—Some argue a higher price for gold would restore confidence in the dollar and produce economic expansion. It would discourage hoarding and promote gold production, some say. Boosting the price requires congressional action.

Q—Where would a price increase in gold be felt first?

A—In the field of international trade and commerce, a field remote from many people.

Q—What can a person do to protect himself in these uncertain monetary times?

A—"Probably the best thing to do would be to sit still," said one economist. Some have sought refuge in gold mining stocks, which have increased in price recently. But this is a personal investment judgment. Advocates of a tax hike say the best way to help would be to write Congress urging the tax bill passage.

The Tax as a Stem

A—It would tend to take the steam out of inflationary pressures. It would reduce purchasing power and dampen what economists call an inflationary psychology. People expect prices to go up, so they ask for higher wages, say economists. A tax increase long has been recognized in other countries as a traditional, orthodox fiscal step by countries with balance of payments deficits. These countries, one banker said, "would say the United States is taking the right kind of medicine. It would dampen gold speculation and restore confidence in the dollar."

Q—What touched off the current gold stampede?

A—Britain's devaluation of the pound last Nov. 18 sent tremors through the international monetary world. Faith in paper currencies, including the keystone dollar, suffered a blow. Hoarders see gold as a haven from paper currencies, especially in nations where devaluation has occurred frequently. Speculators have been betting on a rise in the gold price and gobbling up large amounts of gold. And in France, the governmental love of gold is unquestioned.

March to N. Vietnam?-- Not Many Take It Seriously

By BARRY KRAMER

SAIGON (AP) — Is it possible: Is there an effort being made to organize a volunteer army of South Vietnamese guerrillas to liberate North Vietnamese from its Communist masters?

Yes, there is, but not many Vietnamese or American officials take it seriously.

A Uniting Idea

"I doubt that they could get past the northern outskirts of Saigon," one veteran American official said.

But more restrained minds see the formation of the "March to the North Army," announced this week by a government spokesman, as an attempt to form another anti-Communist front uniting various nationalist elements.

Two such groups were formed after the Communist Tet offensive, aiming at a no-holds-barred struggle against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

"They're certainly not going to march north tomorrow, if ever," one source said. "They're just using the term "March to the North" to whip up some nationalist sentiment."

Another source to whom Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky has talked about the matter, said, "Conceivably this thing could grow, but at the moment the military aspect of the organization is only being talked about. It's certainly not out of the planning stage."

Formation of such an army would be difficult, since even the regular South Vietnamese army is not sure it can increase its strength by a planned 65,000 men.

Ky Seen in Favor

The brains behind the new group is Nguyen Thien Nhon, a cocky, dashing young man who is a special assistant to Ky.

Korean War veterans recall that when the late Korean President Syngman Rhee threatened to invade North Korea, the Americans maintained a round-the-clock ration of gasoline and ammunition for Rhee's army to prevent the threatened invasion.

No one is seriously comparing the two situations, but the American reaction if the South Vietnamese get serious is likely to be the same. The official U.S. position is that any invasion of North Vietnam is out of the question.

Ky said Thursday that, if there were enough volunteers for the March to the North Army, "we will form it." He added that he would go north with the army.

But these statements are seen as attempts by Ky to gather political support. Informed observers believe that if the new group gains momentum and fits Ky's political ambitions, he will jump into the leadership.

Aides of Lindsay: Nixon Acceptable

NEW YORK (AP) — Aides of Mayor John V. Lindsay, a declared Rockefeller-for-president man, have said they were authorized to say that Lindsay would support Richard M. Nixon if he was nominated by the Republicans.

The mayoral aides, who asked not to be identified, made the statement to a newsman hours after Lindsay discussed the Vietnam war, presidential nomination possibilities in both parties and other matters at a news conference.

Lindsay repeated that his presidential choice is New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The Republican mayor, who refused to support Barry Goldwater in 1964, said he is "absolutely convinced" that this year the GOP "will select a moderate."

Lindsay made that statement after being asked: "If your party does not select a moderate, is it conceivable that you will bolt the party?"

There were a number of questions about Lindsay's attitude toward Nixon, including:

"Does Mr. Nixon fit your definition of a moderate?"

Lindsay's answer:

"Mr. Nixon was vice president under President Eisenhower and during eight years of that administration, that administration and he were moderate."

Senate Measure Adds Ammo For the Crisis Over Gold

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has sent to President Johnson a bill to lift the 25 per cent gold cover on U.S. currency and free America's gold reserves for us as ammunition in the international financial crisis.

Excise Bill Approved

Before the Senate's late-evening 39-37 vote sent the House-passed measure to the White House, the Senate Finance Committee approved an excise tax bill viewed by the administration as another key economic weapon.

The bill would retain excise tax rates on telephones and automobiles at current levels rather than letting them drop sharply. It is aimed at fighting inflation and reducing the federal budget deficit. Senate action on the gold cover bill came as the London gold market—target for a massive wave of speculative buying—announced it would close down today at the suggestion of the United States.

The administration had called for passage of the gold cover bill to provide concrete evidence of U.S. determination to maintain the price of gold at $35 an ounce. The bill would free the entire U.S. gold stock—now about $11.4 billion—to meet international commitments.

Speculators are gambling they can profit by forcing the United States to increase the price of gold.

During debate on the gold cover bill, Republicans promised that the Senate soon will get a chance to vote on a tax increase-spending cut package when the body takes up the excise tax bill.

Before approving the excise tax measure, the Senate Finance Committee defeated 9 to 8 a proposal to boost income taxes 10 per cent and to cut federal spending $8 billion in the year ahead.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., the author, pledged he would reoffer the proposal in the Senate debate.

High administration officials, at a Finance Committee hearing earlier in the day, refused to support the spending ceiling. They said it was the wrong way to go about cutting federal expenditures.

Some Common Questions On the Financial Front

By GEORGE TAYLOR

NEW YORK (AP) — What happens to your pay check if the price of gold is increased? Will a car cost you more money?

These are some of the questions people ask when the talk and the headlines turn to the international gold situation.

Economists interviewed by The Associated Press provided these answers to some of the most common questions:

Q—How would a man in the street be affected by an increase in the price of gold from the present rate of $35 an ounce.

A—An increase would mean that the United States had devalued the dollar. At home, pay checks, bank accounts, the costs of domestic products, and real estate would show no change.

The dollar would buy less gold but it would continue to purchase the same amount of goods—housing, cars—as it did prior to devaluation. However, imported goods might cost more.

Any Benefits

A—Hoarders and speculators in foreign countries would reap the immediate profits if they had bought gold for $35 an ounce and sold it, at say, $70. Some economists say doubling the price would end speculative attacks on the dollar since hoarders and speculators presumably would get rid of their gold at the higher price.

Q—Could there be detrimental effects?

A—Some economists foresee a breakdown in world trade and commerce, which has been pegged to gold being worth $35 an ounce. If world trade slumps, jobs would dwindle. Over the long run an inflationary trend would develop.

Q—Why is the price of gold held at $35 an ounce?

A—This is the price at which the United States has guaranteed since 1934 to buy and sell gold. It's the keystone of international finance.

Q—Why a price increase for gold?

A—Some argue a higher price for gold would restore confidence in the dollar and produce economic expansion. It would discourage hoarding and promote gold production, some say. Boosting the price requires congressional action.

Q—Where would a price increase in gold be felt first?

Q—What can a person do to protect himself in these uncertain monetary times?

A—"Probably the best thing to do would be to sit still," said one economist. Some have sought refuge in gold mining stocks, which have increased in price recently. But this is a personal investment judgment. Advocates of a tax hike say the best way to help would be to write Congress urging the tax bill passage.

The Tax as a Stem

Q—Would a tax increase stem the gold flow abroad?

A—It would tend to take the steam out of inflationary pressures. It would reduce purchasing power and dampen what economists call an inflationary psychology. People expect prices to go up, so they ask for higher wages, say economists. A tax increase long has been recognized in other countries as a traditional, orthodox fiscal step by countries with balance of payments deficits. These countries, one banker said, "would say the United States is taking the right kind of medicine. It would dampen gold speculation and restore confidence in the dollar."

Q—What touched off the current gold stampede?

A—Britain's devaluation of the pound last Nov. 18 sent tremors through the international monetary world. Faith in paper currencies, including the keystone dollar, suffered a blow. Hoarders see gold as a haven from paper currencies, especially in nations where devaluation has occurred frequently. Speculators have been betting on a rise in the gold price and gobbling up large amounts of gold. And in France, the governmental love of gold is unquestioned.

March to N. Vietnam? -- Not Many Take It Seriously

By BARRY KRAMER

SAIGON (AP) — Is it possible: Is there an effort being made to organize a volunteer army of South Vietnamese guerrillas to liberate North Vietnamese from its Communist masters?

Yes, there is, but not many Vietnamese or American officials take it seriously.

A Uniting Idea

"I doubt that they could get past the northern outskirts of Saigon," one veteran American official said.

But more restrained minds see the formation of the "March to the North Army," announced this week by a government spokesman, as an attempt to form another anti-Communist front uniting various nationalist elements.

Two such groups were formed after the Communist Tet offensive, aiming at a no-holds-barred struggle against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

"They're certainly not going to march north tomorrow, if ever," one source said. "They're just using the term "March to the North" to whip up some nationalist sentiment."

Another source to whom Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky has talked about the matter, said, "Conceivably this thing could grow, but at the moment the military aspect of the organization is only being talked about. It's certainly not out of the planning stage."

Formation of such an army would be difficult, since even the regular South Vietnamese army is not sure it can increase its strength by a planned 65,000 men.

Ky Seen in Favor

Ky is known to be behind the plan, although he is not openly organizing it.

The brains behind the new group is Nguyen Thien Nhon, a cocky, dashing young man who is a special assistant to Ky.

Korean War veterans recall that when the late Korean President Syngman Rhee threatened to invade North Korea, the Americans maintained a round-the-clock ration of gasoline and ammunition for Rhee's army to prevent the threatened invasion.

No one is seriously comparing the two situations, but the American reaction if the South Vietnamese get serious is likely to be the same. The official U.S. position is that any invasion of North Vietnam is out of the question.

Ky said Thursday that, if there were enough volunteers for the March to the North Army, "we will form it." He added that he would go north with the army.

But these statements are seen as attempts by Ky to gather political support. Informed observers believe that if the new group gains momentum and fits Ky's political ambitions, he will jump into the leadership.
